SCHLEY ON THE STAND

The Rear Admiral Relates His Own Story.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS RECITAL.

The History of the Campaign Which Ended In the Destruction of Cervera's Fleet Well Under Way When Court Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Admiral Schley yesterday took the stand in his own behalf at the court of inquiry which is investigating his conduct as commander in chief of the flying squadron during the Santiago campaign. He was summoned a few minutes after the court convened at 2 o'clock for the afternoon session, and when the court adjourned at 4 o'clock he apparently had only got well under way in his testimony.

Captain Charles E. Clark of the Oregon had just concluded his statement when Mr. Rayner, rising from his seat, said, "I should like to have Rear Admiral Schley called," and the admiral accordingly was asked to take the stand.

There were still two witnesses on his list who had not been heard, and it was understood to be his purpose not to take the stand until the entire list had been exhausted. He, however, responded immediately to the call, and before the audience was well aware of the fact he had begun his narrative of the campaign which terminated in the destruction of Cervera's fleet.

The audience which listened to his recital was by far the largest which has yet gathered in the gunners' workshop where the court sits. All the reserved seats were occupied, as were the seats set apart for the public at large. In the rear of the room stood probably as many people as found seats, scores of men and women standing upon tables, chairs and windows—in fact, anywhere from which they could see the court.

There was no appearance of demonstration of any kind during the admiral's recital. On the contrary, the silence was almost unbroken except for the sound of the witness' own voice. Only once was there a stir in the room which indicated any feeling on the part of the listeners. That was when the admiral, detailing his conversation with Admiral Sampson in the cabin of the New York at Key West, told how he had assured the commander in chief of fealty to him. When the court adjourned for the day, many of the spectators pressed forward and shook the admiral's hand.

"I was a commodore," the witness began in response to Mr. Rayner's request for a connected narrative of the campaign, "and was ordered to command the flying squadron on the 28th of March, 1898, and served until the 20th day of June of the same year in that capacity."

He had taken command of the squadron at Hampton Roads, Va., hoisting his flag on the cruiser Brooklyn. After relating the organization of the squadron at the Virginia port he said that he had called the commanding officers of the vessels constituting that squadron together, and then he added:

"The plan of campaign was thrashed out. I put the squadron immediately upon a war footing and established pickets and patrols and also the masking of lights."

Admiral Schley plunged immediately into the campaign by outlining at this point the plan which he had indicated to his commanding officers before leaving Hampton Roads, saying:

"During this time I explained to all the commanding officers that as it would be impossible to contrive a plan of battle that would meet unforeseen contingencies the general plan of the squadron would be to cruise in line of battle, and its general principle would be to attack the head and leading vessel, concentrating the fire upon them in order, first, to obtain the moral effect and, second, to throw them into confusion, making a victory over them probably very much more successful and complete. I did that for the reason that the older plans of battle had all been to attack centers and rear, resulting in the escape usually of a part of each squadron. I felt that the attack of the head of a squadron, which was to some extent new, would involve the destruction of the whole, and that was the general plan of action as explained to them on that occasion."

The admiral then detailed the target practice of the squadron daily, saying that no day was bad enough to prevent its continuance. Subcaliber was used entirely. This practice, said the admiral, resulted in an accuracy of fire which was fully demonstrated in the action six weeks or two months later. He also said that the squadron was kept in readiness so far as coal, water and supplies were concerned. On May 12 or 13 he received orders from the secretary of the navy to proceed to Charleston, N. C. The squadron arrived there on the 15th and found orders from the secretary directing him to proceed to Key West and report to Commodore Remey for further instructions.

The flying squadron arrived at Key West on the 17th, the admiral thought, and on the next day he went ashore to pay his respects to Commodore Remey, after having saluted his flag. Continuing his narrative, the admiral said:

"While there the commodore showed me a telegraphic order from the honorable secretary of the navy directing me to proceed with all dispatch to the blockade of Havana. He also showed me a number of other dispatches, the purport of which I remember, but the contents I do not. During the time I was on shore, after having had my conference with him, there were several of the Cuban people resident there who informed me that the province in which Cienfuegos was situated and from that to the westward was almost thoroughly occupied by Spanish troops and that we had better be careful in any attempt at intercourse. I hastened off, and on my way to the ship in the afternoon I thought I saw the New York approaching. At all events, when I got on board, determining to go at once off Santiago, the flagship had arrived, and salutes were exchanged. I went on board to pay my respects and also to talk over the situation with Admiral Sampson.

"I found that the admiral was very much worn, and necessarily so, because his responsibility had been very great. He had had great trouble in keeping his squadron together, and he appeared to me as if he was in a good deal of anxiety, which I could readily appreciate. He showed me a number of orders. Among them was one which stated that a division of the two squadrons had been decided upon, one for the north and the other for the south coast of Cuba, in which he was given the preference of commanding.

"The order, if I remember correctly, stated that under any circumstances I was to remain with my command, and I asked him which of the two stations he would take, and he said he proposed to hold the Havana, or north one. He also told me that whichever side I went on to remember that they were very heavily fortified and that his confidential instructions, which he delivered to me verbally, were that we were not to risk our battleships against the fortified places of the coast until after the Spanish squadron had been disposed of.

"We looked over maps, and I must say I agreed with him. I could not imagine that any one who had studied the military situation of the island at all could have supposed that Santiago would have fulfilled any of the conditions of this instruction. We had a talk together. I told him that I had been ordered to report for duty to Admiral Remey and that, I imagined, necessarily meant himself and that I wanted to assure him at the outset that I should be loyal, absolutely and unreservedly, to the cause we were both representing. Captain Chadwick, who was present—I don't remember whether all the time or not—said, 'Of course, commodore, any one who has known your character would know that it would be impossible for you to be otherwise than loyal.'

"I asked the admiral if there had been established any means of communicating with the insurgents, whether there were any pilots or whether any locality was known where they were to be found. He told me that he did not know, but that when he got the situation better in hand he would communicate with me, but that he thought it would be better for me to start as early as we could get away and blockade Cienfuegos. I said very well; that I was prepared, of course, to go anywhere.

"I then went aboard my own flagship in order to hasten the operations of coaling. While there the Algonquin came out bearing an order from the secretary of the navy through Commodore Remey directing me to go to Havana. I signaled to the admiral to know whether or not he understood that my orders were to go off Havana. He replied by signal that he understood that his coming to Key West modified my orders and that I should be prepared to carry out the orders we had agreed upon in the afternoon. I do not remember whether that was on that afternoon or in the morning, but it was before I left for Cienfuegos."

The next move on the part of the flying squadron, he said, was from Key West to Cienfuegos, Cuba, and the admiral told how, as the commander in chief of that squadron, he had the vessels coaled so that at 7 or 8 o'clock on the morning of May 19 all the ships of the fleet turned their backs upon American soil and laid their course for the southern coast of Cuba. This, he said, was done under the order of the commander in chief, Admiral Sampson.

At this point the witness quoted Admiral Sampson's order No. 5, not failing to point out as he went along that in this order the admiral had said, "I have the situation well in hand, and I will write you and give you any information that suggests itself."

The first event of note on the voyage toward Cienfuegos occurred, Admiral Schley said, after he had been out from Key West three or four hours. It was then that he met Captain McCalla, in charge of the subsquadron, with the Marblehead at its head, which had been doing duty on the Cuban coast near Cienfuegos, whither the commodore with his flying squadron was bound. He related how, in accordance with the usual custom when a naval officer meets his superior in rank at sea, Captain McCalla had asked permission to pass on and told how McCalla had sent the Eagle to communicate with the flying squadron. Admiral Schley also mentioned that the Scorpion had been sent to intercept the Eagle for the purpose of securing whatever information she might bring. "After a little," he said, "the Scorpion returned and reported through the megaphone, I think, identically as is reported in his log, which was all the information he gave us. The Eagle afterward passed close enough to the Brooklyn to hail her by the megaphone and repeated that there was no news. I was on the quarter deck. The thing seemed to be almost burned into my mind, but after what I have heard I begin to think that maybe I was mistaken."

The admiral also related his meeting the Cincinnati and Vesuvius the next morning off San Antonio.

Captain Chester, in command of the Cincinnati, came aboard the Brooklyn, remaining for about three-quarters of an hour. He then related the details of his conversation with Captain Chester, saying that they had "thrashed out a good many subjects."

Admiral Schley placed his arrival off Cienfuegos at near midnight of May 21. He told of hearing guns early that evening while still thirty or forty miles distant from the Cuban coast.

He said that the fleet stopped for the night ten or twelve miles offshore off Cienfuegos and that he had sent the Scorpion ahead of the fleet as a patrol and that toward daylight on the following morning, May 22, all the ships had steamed in close to the harbor entrance. "My recollection now is," he said, "that we went within a mile and looked at the harbor; but, owing to trees and obstructions, it was impossible to see into the harbor. I never saw any smokestacks, and I was a very close watcher on deck, generally from 8 o'clock in the morning until 12 or 1 o'clock at night. There was scarcely a circumstance of any kind that escaped me."

At 9 o'clock of the evening of the 22d the torpedo boat Dupont, the admiral said, arrived with a dispatch from Admiral Sampson. The dispatch referred to was the "Dear Schley" letter. Referring to this dispatch, the witness said:

"I did not remember the fact until within the past few months because there were duplicates of that letter, but I now recall it from the fact that I sent the Scorpion to the eastward in obedience to the injunction contained in that letter to communicate with the scouts, about whose presence off Santiago I was very uncertain, as I think the admiral was, on account of orders having been sent directing them to proceed in the direction of the Spanish main to look for the squadron. The admiral was not certain whether they had got back, nor was I. Therefore I sent the Scorpion east, and that fact fixed the receipt of that letter."

Coming to the blockade of Cienfuegos, the admiral explained the formation of his fleet there, saying that the steaming which had been mentioned in the logs was for the purpose of overcoming the effect of a current which set directly into the bight. He said the ships were constantly setting into the beach and were obliged almost every hour to steam for a mile or two. "And that," he said, "accounts for a good deal of what is stated in the logs about steaming."

In this same connection the admiral said that he had fixed the position of the squadron every morning and every afternoon by what is known as the four point bearing.

With reference to the arrival of the Harvard on the 27th and his conference with Captain (now Admiral) Cotton, Admiral Schley said that he had never received the dispatch reporting in positive terms the presence of the enemy at Santiago. "I never saw it," he said with intense earnestness. "I never saw it, and I am sure that Cotton never delivered it to me. If he had done so, it would be among my papers, and it would have burned itself into my memory so that I never could have forgotten it."

Admiral Schley also referred again to his conversation with Captain McCalla, saying that McCalla did not testify to the whole conversation, and then discussed his dispatch to the navy department regarding the disobeyance of orders. He said that as translated this message was essentially different from the dispatch as he had framed it. He contended that there had been no disobedience, that he had complied with orders in returning to Santiago and held that the proper construction of his dispatch would relieve him of this charge.

At this point the court adjourned.

TO INTERCEDE FOR BOERS.

General Pearson of Botha's Staff Now at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—General Samuel Pearson, who is an adjutant on the staff of General Botha, one of the Boer leaders, has arrived in Washington and is staying at the apartments of Mr. C. W. Van Der Hooght, the Boer representative in Washington.

During a visit to Europe before coming here General Pearson had interviews with Dr. Leyds, the Transvaal agent in that country, and with other leading men from the South African republics. He says the Boers will not give up to the British, but will fight to the end. General Pearson hopes to enlist the sympathies of the people of this country in behalf of the Boer men, women and children who are now kept by the British in reconcentrado camps. There is, he says, no reason for locating them in these camps when there are ample accommodations in the country for them.

There are now 109,000 persons so situated, and during the month of September the mortality among them approximated 2,400 in all. He says the soldiers are willing to submit to the hardships of the campaign and to the rules of war, but the helpless men, women and children in the camps should be accorded humane treament. As the American consul at Pretoria watched after the interests of the British prisoners there he declares it would be proper and just for the Boers to have the representative of some friendly government look after the interests of the reconcentrados.

During his stay in Washington the general will seek an interview with President Roosevelt to acquaint him with the situation existing in South Africa. He also will make a further effort to prevent the shipment of mules from this country to South Africa and to have the matter carried to the supreme court of the United States.

A Careless Act Only.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 25.—Coroner Mix has returned his finding in the case of the death of Edward F. Corrigan, the Yale law school student, for which Henry MacDonald Sedley, a Sheffield Scientific school freshman, has been held by the authorities. The finding of the coroner was not unfavorable to the young student. Stripped of its legal verbiage, the document specifically stated that there was no quarrel between the young men; that "while words were earnest they were not of a harsh or angry nature." In fixing the responsibility for the unfortunate occurrence the coroner was generous in his choice of words, merely announcing in the formal finding that Corrigan came to his death by the careless act of young Sedley.

Armor Test Satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A six inch plate from the Bethlehem works, representing group No. 1 of the armor for the new battleship Ohio, was tested at the Indian Head proving ground yesterday under the auspices of the navy bureau of ordnance. The test was most satisfactory. As a result 400 tons of kruppized armor will be accepted by the government.

Planned to Kill Persia's Ruler.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—"News has been received here from Teheran," says a dispatch from St. Petersburg to The Daily Mail, "of the discovery of a serious plot against the life of the shah. The leaders of the conspiracy were the shah's two brothers, the grand vizier, Sad Azzam, and the shah's son-in-law. The two brothers have been banished for life to Ardebil."

Chile Explains Her Course.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 25.—Chile, replying to a request from the Argentina government for an explanation of the Chilean occupation of the disputed territory in the Cordilleras, asserts that the sole purpose of the Chilean government is to make necessary roads with a view of facilitating the work of the British arbitration commissioners.

Stock Farm Buildings Burned.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The house, all the barns and their contents on the Vestal stock farm of William Rood, a prominent cigar manufacturer of this city, have been destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $10,000, covered by insurance. On the farm were some of the best blooded cattle in the state. All were saved.

Roosevelt's Life Threatened.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 25.—Police Chief Winn said that prior to President Roosevelt's visit to Yale the president had received a letter stating that if he came to New Haven he would be assassinated. That accounted for the strong guard for the president maintained from the time he left Washington until he returned there.

Cuban Murderers Garroted.

HAVANA, Oct. 25.—Andree Roddiguez and Aniceto O'Farrill, negro murderers, were executed here by the garrote. A fellow prisoner acted as executioner, receiving an ounce of gold for each execution, together with a reduction of six years in the term for which he was imprisoned. Death was apparently instantaneous.

UNPARALLELED FEAT

Woman Goes Over Niagara Falls and Is Alive.

PERILOUS TRIP MADE IN A BARREL.

Mrs. Taylor Was Picked Up on the Rocks Below but Little the Worse For Her Terrible Plunge.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Annie Edson Taylor, fifty years old, went over Niagara falls on the Canadian side yesterday afternoon and survived, a feat never before accomplished and indeed never attempted except in the deliberate commission of suicide. She made the trip in a barrel. Not only did she survive, but she escaped without a broken bone, her only apparent injuries being a scalp wound one and one-half inches long, a slight concussion of the brain, some shock to her nervous system and bruises about the body. She was conscious when taken out of the barrel. The doctors in attendance upon her said that, though she was somewhat hysterical, her condition is not at all serious and that she probably will be out of bed within a few days.

Mrs. Taylor's trip covered a mile ride through the Canadian rapids before she reached the brink of the precipice. Her barrel, stanch as a barrel could be made, was twisted and toppled and buffeted through those delirious waters, but escaped serious contact with rocks. As it plunged through the smoother, swifter waters that rushed over into the abyss it rode in an almost perpendicular position, with its upper half out of the water. As it passed over the brink it rode at an angle of about 45 degrees on the outer surface of the deluge and descended as gracefully as a barrel can descend to the white, foaming waters 158 feet below. True to her calculations, the anvil fastened to the bottom of the barrel kept it foot downward, and so it landed. Had it turned over and landed on its head Mrs. Taylor's head must have been crushed in and her neck broken.

The ride through the rapids occupied eighteen minutes. It was 4:23 o'clock when the barrel took its leap. It could not be seen as it struck the water below because of the spray, but in less than half a minute after it passed over the brink it was seen on the surface of the scum covered water below the falls.

It was carried swiftly down to the green water beyond the scum, then half way to the Maid of the Mist landing, where it was caught in what is known as the Maid of the Mist eddy and held there until it reached so close to the shore that it was reached by means of a pole and hook and drawn in upon the rocks at 4:40 o'clock, or seventeen minutes after it shot the cataract. Ten minutes later the woman was lifted from the barrel, and half an hour later she lay on a cot at her boarding place on First street, in Niagara Falls, on the American side.

The barrel in which Mrs. Taylor made the journey is 4½ feet high and about 3 feet in diameter. A leather harness and cushions protected her body. Air was secured through a rubber tube connected with a small opening near the top of the barrel.

Mrs. Taylor is a schoolteacher and recently came her from Bay City, Mich.

A Russo-Chinese Alliance.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 25.—It is reported here that General Yung Lu in a secret dispatch to Li Hung Chang asserts that the empress dowager is anxious to enter into friendly relations with Russia, which power has promised to prevent all foreign aggression and to protect the empress dowager at Peking. It is said also that the dispatch adds that Li Hung Chang must promptly conclude the Manchurian treaty, relying on Yung Lu to support him against the opposition of the southern viceroys.

A Universal Strike.

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 25.—The anarchist propaganda in favor of a general strike is proving fruitful in Spain. Leading anarchists assert that committees throughout the world representing 8,000,000 workers are only awaiting the signal to inaugurate the universal strike proposed by the German workmen and approved by the American and European committees.

Different Issues.

Despite the fact that State and municipal elections are held the same day and the two tickets are combined into one, it is to be hoped that the people of Plainfield will remember the fact that the issues involved are entirely different. The "spel'-binders" of the two great political parties have carefully outlined the features of the State and county campaigns. The issues have been pointed out from rostrum and with the aid of the press. They involve State subjects.

The municipal election is on strictly local issues and this fact should not be lost sight of. At present, the Republicans are in complete control of the city machinery. There is not a single office of any importance held by a Democrat. The policy now being followed out has in it nothing distinctive of Republicanism or Democracy. It is simply one which the present administration believes best for the people of Plainfield.

The question which the voters should answer is whether or not they are satisfied with the present administration of affairs. A vote for the Republican candidates means an indorsement of the existing policy, a vote for the Democratic candidates means a change. The issue is the same that it was last year and two years ago.

Of ocurse, the personality of the candidates is going to make some difference. Every man has his friends in both political parties and he is bound to break down party lines to a greater or less extent. There are many men, who stick strictly to party during a State or county election, that pursue an entirely different course in local politics.

The chief objection to the consolidation of State and local elections was that it would tend to conduct the local fights on strictly partisan lines. Only time will show how well-founded that objection has been.

The Philadelphia Record calls attention to a recent issue of Printers' Ink in which it was announced that the International Express Company would introduce American manufactures abroad by exhibitions after the model of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, and by newspaper advertisements call attention to the displays. The manager says that he considers newspaper advertising essential to the success of every public enterprise.

It is an unfortunate condition of affairs when neither the City nor the Borough High Schools has a football team on the gridiron. The excuse given is a dearth of good material. When do they expect to have a representative eleven if they persist in not training the lower class boys in the art of the game? It would be a wise policy to break in some of the raw material now and then attempt to place teams on the gridiron next fall.

An interesting contest is promised in the First ward election day. This is the second time that the people of that ward have had to decide between William Gloak, Republican, and Walter L. Hetfield, Democratic, as their choice for ward councilman. Last time Gloak won out by a small majority. Each candidate feels that this time he can win.

There is not much probability that Mayor James M. Seymour will appear in Plainfield this campaign, a fact which will be regretted by every fair-minded voter. Franklin Murphy, the other gubernatorial candidate, will surely be here and all Plainfield would like to compare the men.

The wise merchants have begun their active fall campaign. Many valuable bargains which will interest young and old alike can be found daily in the advertising columns of The Daily Press. That is where the enterprising merchant is advertising this year.

Did you ever notice how many people there are every year who are absolutely sure as to the result of the election and find, when the ballots are counted, that it has gone the opposite way? And yet they bob up every fall just as positive as ever.

The interest in the campaign in New Jersey and Union county is growing daily. The Daily Press will keep its readers in touch with the situation which will be described in fair and impartial manner.

Only persistent effort will bring the Plainfield Water Supply Company to action. A constant demand for water meters will eventually bring about their installation.

By all means let the fence between the tracks at the North Avenue station be painted white.

Interest in the city campaign is beginning to grow with considerable rapidity.

One of the Attractions.

Miss Park had a great ovation at New Music Hall before a vast audience of the elite of Washington. She proved a great favorite, as floral designs were showered upon her in great profusion. The designs were many and very elegant; a laurel wreath tied with the national colored ribbons, an easel made of orchids and other choice flowers, from which was suspended a floral cornet in a most artistic manner. There were roses and many other designs. Miss Park's solos were accompanied by an orchestra of sixty-five pieces.—Washington Star.

Miss Anna Park, solo cornetist, will appear with J. Williams Macy in the opening entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course Monday evening.

Wife Didn't Appear.

Mrs. Samuel Kramer, of South Second street, made a complaint Monday before City Judge Runyon that her husband had beaten her. She was told a trial would be held this morning, but at the appointed time she failed to make her appearance. At the request of Kramer's counsel, Wm. Newcorn, the complaint was dismissed.

THE PAN AND MIDWAY REPRODUCED AT CASINO

was invited to sip the beverage for which the country is famous. This room was bedecked with huge fans, quaint pictures, and Japanese lamps. At one end was a large lattice on which trailed southern smilax and cosmos. Scattered everywhere were big crysanthemums, the flower of the country. At one side was a table and on it was loaded cakes and other dainties to be served with the tea. In charge were Miss Elizabeth Cock and Mrs. D. N. Groendyke, together with Mrs. Hugh Hastings, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh and Mrs. Charles E. Brooks.

The Mexican room was the next place that arrested the eye of the guest. There was a space filled with things peculiar to that country. Large blankets were spread, interspersing Mexican flags and bunting. Pictures of scenes in the country where Maximilian met his death added to the general display.

Set apart by itself was the fortune telling booth where Miss May Rodman and Miss Helen Lee made a forecast of one's future by the lines of the hand. In this room were to be purchased fancy articles of various kinds. Mrs. Charles S. Lee acted as "proprietor," while her "clerks" included Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Mrs. Howard Tracy, Mrs. John Gray Foster. Mrs. Frank S. Martin and Mrs. Walter M. McGee.

Mrs. L. W. Serrell conducted the Venetian room and many were the guests who purchased from her and her assistants boxes of candy and bouquets of flowers. Mrs. Serrell was aided by Mrs. E. M. VanBuren, Mrs. George S. Ring, the Misses Holly, Miss May Waring, Miss Josephine Stockton, of St. Louis, and Miss Tina Hyatt. In the centre of "Venice" was a gondola "made in America." Over the mantle hung the arms of Italy and about the room were pictures of that beautiful part of the country where the people use gondolas instead of automobiles. Flags, banners, flowers and a thousand other things made up the decorations. The coat of-arms which attracted considerable attention was painted by Wm. Gilbert. The candies and bon bons were donated by John Wanamaker and Baker, the chocolate maker. Stanley, of this city, donated the flowers. Confectionery was also contributed by J. O. Campbell, of this city. All the donations were liberal and much appreciated by the directors.

Out on the Midway, which was located in the auditorium part of the Casino, there was always a large crowd attending the continuous performance, which consisted principally of kinetoscope pictures and phonographic selections. Mis Tina Hyatt's piano selections were also among the enjoyable features. Impromptu "stunts" were done by some of the guests as well.

S. S. Jenkins, of the Edison Manufacturing Company, of Orange, conducted the biograph part of the performance. He was assisted by James Duncan, an attache of the same concern. A projecting kinetoscope was used. Reproductions of the start and finish of the several races between the Columbia and Shamrock II attracted the most attention. One almost imagined he was witnessing the real thing. The exciting trip of Captain Nissen shooting the rapids at Niagara was vividly reproduced.

The one scene that surpassed all others was that of the Martyr-President, on the occasion of his delivery of his last speech at the Pan-American Exposition. It was truly life-like. The expression of the lamented statesman was exceedingly clear. Another good view at the Pan-American was a panorama of the whole grounds taken at night, when the illuminations were at their height. This is the first attempt to reproduce a night scene in this manner. McKinley funeral scenes were also shown. Some funny pictures made up the remainder of the kinetoscope attraction. This entertainment was given in both the afternoon and the evening.

The phonograph was in charge of William Winans Moore. The selections consisted of speeches, songs and humorous recitations, as well as band music. L. W. Serrell superintended the kinetoscope part of the Midway.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 27.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Bible reading. "I will make it the rule of my life to read the Bible every day."—II Tim. iii, 1-17.

The Christian Endeavor movement has done nothing more worthy of lasting praise than its work in reference to the Bible. It has revolutionized Bible reading with many who were Christions before they became Christian Endeavorers. It has caused the Bible to become most precious to many who scarcely ever looked at it before they pledged themselves to read it every day. This clause of the pledge has resulted in no end of good, and even after 20 years too much emphasis cannot be placed upon it. It has resulted in a tremendous impetus being given to daily Bible reading, and this was and is much to be desired.

The importance and necessity of daily Bible reading should scarcely need to be impressed upon Christian people, and yet, sad to say, it does need to be. The Bible is not read daily as it ought to be. Daily Bible reading is even more neglected than daily prayer. In infancy and childhood we are taught to pray unto God daily, and that habit is seldom ever given up, even though we may wander far away from God. But how few children are taught to read the Bible daily! Alas, how few Christian parents read the Bible daily themselves! Yet what better inheritance could we give our children than the habit of daily communion with God through His word? Timothy had been trained in the word of God from childhood, and when he became a man he continued in the things which he had heard, which made him wise unto salvation. So should all God's children be taught, and so should they continue when they have come to manhood and womanhood.

Daily Bible reading is commended in the Scriptures and the blessings of it emphasized. In Num. vi, 6-9, the people of God are practically enjoined to constantly be in touch with His word, to teach it diligently, to make it the subject of conversation and of thought at home and abroad, in lying down and in rising up. Everywhere and always necessarily include each day. The psalmist says of the blessed man that "his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in His law doth he meditate day and night." Paul declares that the Bereans were more noble than the Thessalonians "in that they received the word with all readiness of mind and searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so."

How can we neglect daily Bible reading? The Bible is the inspired, infallible word of God. It presents to us Jesus Christ, the bread and water of our spiritual lives. It is "the sword of the Spirit," by which alone we can overcome the temptations that daily and hourly come to us. We need it every day. It will help us every day. It makes us "wise unto salvation through faith, which is in Christ Jesus." It "is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a testimony meeting in which each one testifies as to the helpfulness of daily Bible reading.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. vi, 6-9; Ps. i, 1, 2; xix, 7, 8; cxix, 97-112; Isa. xxxiv, 16; Luke iv, 16-21; xxiv, 13-27; John v, 39; Acts, xvii, 10, 11; Eph. vi, 17; Heb. iv, 12.

Do Not Despond.

Do not despond. However rough and uneven the crossings of your earth life may seem, you must look forward to a pleasant harbor at the termination of your journey. You will then be repaid for all obstructions. We are walking in darkness now, but then we shall see clearly. We can take a glance in the mirror of the past and notice that we have often taken the wrong path. The present is hastily glanced at, but the mirror of the future no eye can gaze in, no hand can grasp, but the hand of time. He alone holds the key that will unlock the door. Meanwhile you must cultivate faith, trusting that your darkness will be made light in the day of His appearing.—Religious Telescope.

Christian Contentment.

Christian contentment creates cheerfulness of mind and brightens every condition in life. It secures the divine favor, love and blessing. It fosters conscientiousness, conserves morals and delivers from numerous temptations and ills. Thus viewed it is a prize worthy of every honest effort, a golden crown which should circle every brow, a glory which should adorn every character and a treasure which should enrich every life.—Presbyterian.

God and Daily Life.

He who never connects God with his daily life knows nothing of the spiritual meaning and uses of life—nothing of the calm, strong patience with which ills may be endured; of the gentle, tender comfort which the Father's love can minister; of the blessed rest to be realized in His forgiving love, His tender fatherhood; of the deep, peaceful sense of the Infinite One ever near, a refuge and a strength.—Dean Farrar.

Life and Death.

Life is a lute. The many strings thereof
Are tuned by sorrow and by happiness,
On which the fingers of the Spirit press
And wake their muted music. It is love
And memory that broodeth like a dove,
That sing their fond accompaniments the while—
One with a tear, the other with a smile;
One born on earth, the other born above.
And when our hearts to love's melodious breath
Beat time no more shall all to death belong
And faith and hope be theme for scorn and laughter?
Nay, nay. Life only lieth mute, and death
Is but a bar of rest betwixt the song
We have sung here and we shall sing hereafter.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
PARK AVE. AND RAILROAD

A lady forty-two years of age, by occupation a seamstress, living in Bark Hill, Carroll Co., Md., describes some very distressing circumstances of which she has been the victim. "I had suffered for years," she says, "from indigestion, constipation and nervousness and for over a year had been taking medicine from our family physician. I got better but did not get well. I was very constipated and terribly nervous My nerves have been bad for years. I am always shaky in my hands. At times I would get nervous spells at night. I would feel as though I could not get my breath. I would be more that way in warm weather. The fifth of August I received a sample of Ripans Tabules that I had seen advertised and wrote for. I took one at once, and before I had taken three of them I felt very much better. Before I had taken them all I had made up my mind they were just the thing for me, so I sent for a dozen boxes, and have been taking them, sometimes two, three or four Tabules just as it suits. I am so much better. I was miserable and did not feel like doing anything or going any place. Now I feel so much better than I did. I can say truthfully that Ripans Tabules have made me feel like a different person."

WANTED:—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Topic For the Week Ending Oct. 27, "Habit of Daily Bible Reading." Text, Acts xvii, 10-12.

"Searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so."

The example of the people of Berea is worthy of imitation.

They had a desire to know religious truth and were open to receive new impulses and enlightenment. Paul and Silas told them that Jesus of Nazareth was the Messiah expected of the Jews and predicted in their sacred books. It was a startling announcement. It needed careful investigation. They entered upon it earnestly; they kept it up persistently and conducted it intelligently. Daily they searched the writings of their holy religion to find if Jesus was the Christ. No other course was so sure to yield the desired knowledge and bring decision.

The same thing is true today. No other course will so greatly aid in development of Christian character and activity as daily searching of the Bible.

What is the most helpful way to use the Bible?

No one method is sufficient. Each one of several should be used at different times, as occasion requires.

First.—We need it as an aid to devotion. The rush of business, home cares and social duties crowd religious thoughts and exercises too much from the mind. But healthy soul life is as needful as sound bodies and minds. We must have food for thought, affection and devoted determination. Some time reserved each day for Bible feeding is needful to every growing Christian. Read carefully those parts which cultivate a spirit of loving obedience, trustfulness and loyalty to Christ and the Father.

Second.—We need it as a guide in practical duties of life. For this end we sweep a wider circle in reading. Precept, example, exhortation, confession, history, law, epistle—all are aids in this matter.

Most people are impatient of criticism, though their actions and words may seem to their friends so clearly lacking in elements of Christian consistency. If such will read the Bible faithfully, they will find the mirror held up to their own lives and will recognize the imperfections others see, but which have never before been realized by their owners. No correction and no teacher is as faithful, impartial, patient and persistent as this Bible studied under the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

Third.—We should also read the Bible for its history, literature and biography. The most thorough students are most deeply impressed by its value. Modern scholarship has opened new fields in the search of fascinating interest. Some of their conjectures are startling, but the outcome of all investigation has been to establish on firmer foundation than ever before the fact that these writings are valuable above all others the world has for religion.

If you would grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, do not neglect to study your Bible constantly.

Riches In Poverty.

However mean your life is, meet and live it. Do not shun it and call it hard names. It is not so bad as you are. It looks poorest when you are richest. The fault finder will find fault even in paradise. Love your life, poor as it is. You may perhaps have some pleasant, thrilling, glorious hours even in a poorhouse. The setting sun is reflected from the windows of the almshouse as brightly as from the rich man's abode; the snow melts before its door as early in the spring. Do not trouble yourself much to get new things, whether clothes or friends. Turn the old; return to them. Things do not change; we change. Sell your clothes and keep your thoughts. God will see that you do not want society.—Henry David Thoreau.

How to Know Our Personal Duty.

If we want to do right, we may be sure that God is ready to help us know what is right and ready to help us do it when we know what it is. It is at such a time that "thine ear shall hear a word behind thee saying, This is the way, walk ye in it; when ye turn to the right hand and when ye turn to the left." Then is that "if any of you lacketh wisdom let him ask of God, who giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing doubting." God is pledged to this help. Both Old Testament and New Testament declare this. The only point in doubt is not God's willingness, but our need and faith. Why should that point be in question?—Sunday School Times.

God Loveth All.

Unto every man and nation
God will e'er extend His hand,
Loving, under all conditions,
Those obeying His command.
Neither rich nor poor are favored,
Only for their love to God,
Earning thus the Master's favor,
Treading paths where He has trod.

Those who love and will obey Him
He will never once forsake,
But within their souls be dwelling,
Inner conscience to awake.
He will teach them life's great lessons
That bring peace unto the heart,
And the happiness of spirit
Never will from them depart.

Though the home be low and humble,
God will find a dwelling there,
If He finds the heart is waiting
And is filled with earnest prayer.
Asking Him to come be with them
And to teach them what is right,
He will quickly hasten thither,
Shedding round about His light.

Oh, the blessed, blessed promise
That He never will forsake,
And if we will love and trust Him
Care of us He'll always take.
Then, why should we wander from Him
Into worldly ways of sin,
That we must, ere reaching heaven,
Have a change of heart begin?

By Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Tut—tut!" said Mr. Utterson.

"I see you feel as I do," said Mr. Enfield. "Yes, it's a bad story. For my man was a fellow nobody could have to do with, a really damnable man; and the person that drew the check is the very pink of proprieties, celebrated, too, and—what makes it worse—one of your fellows who do what they call good. Blackmail, I suppose; an honest man paying through the nose for some of the capers of his youth. Blackmail House is what I call that place with the door, in consequence. Though even that, you know, is far from explaining all,' he added, and with the words fell into a vein of musing.

From this he was recalled by Mr. Utterson asking rather suddenly: "And you don't know if the drawer of the check lives there?"

"A likely place, isn't it?" returned Mr. Enfield. "But I happen to have noticed his address; he lives in some square or other."

"And you never asked about the—place with the door?" said Mr. Utterson.

"No, sir, I had a delicacy," was the reply. "I feel very strongly about putting questions; it partakes too much of the style of the day of judgment. You start a question, and it's like starting a stone. You sit quietly on the top of a hill, and away the stone goes, starting others, and presently some bland old bird (the last you would have thought of) is knocked on the head in his own back garden, and the family have to change their name. No, sir; I make it a rule of mine: the more it looks like Queer street, the less I ask."

"A very good rule, too," said the lawyer.

"But I have studied the place for myself," continued Mr. Enfield. "It seems scarcely a house. There is no other door, and nobody goes in or out of that one but, once in a great while, the gentleman of my adventure. There are three windows looking on the court on the first floor; none below. The windows are always shut, but they're clean. And then there is a chimney which is generally smoking; so somebody must live there. And yet it's not so sure; for the buildings are so packed together about that court that it's hard to say where one ends and another begins."

The pair walked on again for a while in silence, and then, "Enfield," said Mr. Utterson, "that's a good rule of yours."

"Yes, I think it is," returned Enfield.

"But for all that," continued the lawyer, "there's one point I want to ask, I want to ask the name of that man who walked over the child."

"Well," said Mr. Enfield, "I can't see what harm it would do. It was a man of the name of Hyde."

"H'm," said Mr. Utterson. "What sort of a man is he to see?"

"He is not easy to describe. There is something wrong with his appearance; something displeasing, something downright detestable. I never saw a man I so disliked, and yet I scarcely know why. He must be deformed somewhere. He gives a strong feeling of deformity, although I couldn't specify the point. He's an extraordinary-looking man, and yet I really can name nothing out of the way. No, sir; I can make no hand of it; I can't describe him. And it's not want of memory, for I declare I can see him this moment."

Mr. Utterson again walked some way in silence and obviously under a weight of consideration. "You are sure he used a key?" he inquired at last.

"My dear sir—" began Enfield, surprised out of himself.

"Yes, I know," said Utterson; I know it must seem strange. The fact is, if I do not ask you the name of the other party, it is because I know it already. You see, Richard, your tale has gone home. If you have been inexact in any point, you had better correct it."

"I think you might have warned me," returned the other with a touch of sullenness. "But I have been pedantically exact, as you call it. The fellow had a key, and what's more, he has it still. I saw him use it, not a week ago."

Mr. Utterson sighed deeply, but said never a word, and the young man presently resumed. "Here is another lesson to say nothing," said he. "I am ashamed of my long tongue. Let us make a bargain never to refer to this again."

"With all my heart," said the lawyer.

CHAPTER II.

That evening Mr. Utterson came home to his bachelor house in somber spirits and sat down to dinner without relish. It was his custom of a Sunday when this meal was over, to sit close by the fire, a volume of some dry divinity on his reading-desk, until the clock of the neighboring church rang out the hour of 12, when he would go soberly and gratefully to bed. On this night, however, as soon as the cloth was taken away, he took up a candle and went into his business-room. There he opened his safe, took from the most private part of it a document indorsed on the envelope as Dr. Jekyll's will, and sat down with a clouded brow to study its contents. The will was holograph, for Mr. Utterson, though he took charge of it now that it was made, had refused to lend the least assistance in the making of it; it provided not only that, in case of the decease of Henry Jekyll, M. D., D. C. L., LL. D., F. R. S., etc., all his possessions were to pass into the hands of his "friend and benefactor, Edward Hyde," but that in case of Doctor Jekyll's "disappearance or unexplained absence for any period exceeding three calendar months," the said Edward Hyde should step into the said Henry Jekyll's shoes without further delay and free from any burden or obligation, beyond the payment of a few small sums to the members of the doctor's household. This document had long been the lawyer's eyesore. It offended him both as a lawyer and as a lover of the sane and customary sides of life, to whome the fanciful was the immodest. And hitherto it was his ignorance of Mr. Hyde that had swelled his indignation; now, by a suden turn, it was his knowledge. It was already bad enough when the name was but a name of which he could learn no more. It was worse when it began to be clothed upon with detestable attributes; and out of the shifting insubstantial mists that had so long baffled his eye, there leaped up the sudden, definite presentment of a fiend.

"I thought it was madness," he said, as he replaced the obnoxious paper in the safe, "and now I begin to fear it is disgrace."

With that he blew out his candle, put on a great-coat and set forth in the direction of Cavendish square, that citadel of medicine, where his friend, the great Dr. Lanyon, had his house, and received his crowding patients. "If anyone knows, it will be Lanyon," he had thought.

The solemn butler knew and welcomed him; he was subjected to no stage of delay, but ushered direct from the door to the dining-room where Dr. Lanyon sat alone over his wine. This was a hearty, healthy, dapper, red-faced gentleman, with a shock of hair prematurely white, and a boisterous and decided manner. At sight of Mr. Utterson, he sprang up from his chair and welcomed him with both hands. The geniality, as was the way of the man, was somewhat theatrical to the eye; but it reposed on genuine feeling. For these two were old friends, old mates both at school and college, both thorough respectors of themselves and of each other, and, what does not always follow, men who thoroughly enjoyed each other's company.

After a little rambling talk the lawyer led up to the subject which so disagreeably preoccupied his mind.

"I suppose, Lanyon," said he, "you and I must be the two oldest friends that Henry Jekyll has?"

"I wish the friends were younger," chuckled Dr. Lanyon. "But I suppose we are. And what of that? I see little of him now."

"Indeed?" said Utterson. "I thought you had a bond of common interest."

"We had," was the reply. "But it is more than ten years since Henry Jekyll became too fanciful for me. He began to go wrong; wrong in mind, and though, of course, I continue to take an interest in him for old sake's sake, as they say, I see and I have seen devilish little of the man. Such unscientific balderdash," added the doctor, flushing suddenly purple, "would have estranged Damon and Pythias."

This little spirit of temper was somewhat of a relief to Mr. Utterson. "They have only differed on some point of science," he thought; and being a man of no scientific passions (except in the matter of conveyancing), he even added, "It is nothing worse than that!" He gave his friend a few seconds to recover his composure, and then approached the question he had come to put. "Did you ever come across a protege of his—one Hyde?" he asked.

"Hyde?" repeated Lanyon. "No. Never heard of him. Since my time." That was the amount of information that the lawyer carried back with him to the great, dark bed on which he tossed to and fro, until the small hours of the morning began to grow large. It was a night of little ease to his toiling mind, toiling in mere darkness, and besieged by questions.

SPORTING.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

It is not probable that the Hope chapel Athletic Association will have an eleven on the gridiron this season.

The Leal's School football team is practicing every afternoon on the old cricket grounds. The players are gradually rounding into form.

The Leal's School Football team will line up against the Rutgers Preparatory School eleven tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The game will be played on Hope Common gridiron.

The two elevens representing St. Mary's choir boys are using the Hope chapel common for practicing purposes. The players are all small, but they are a plucky lot of fellows.

The Alis A. A. football team plays the eleven of the Columbia Field Club, of Jersey City, on the Hope Common gridiron tomorrow afternoon. The visiting team is a strong aggregation, having several former college players in its line up. Alis has been practicing every evening, and despite the heralded strength of the Columbia team, a decidedly close contest is expected.

GOLF.

In referring to the events to come on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, The Daily Press of Wednesday said that a week from Saturday there would be the preliminary round for the Chapman cup. This was an error. The play for this cup is completed. Next season there will probably be a competition for what will be known as the President's cup.

Snow in White Mountains.

Former Mayor and Mrs. C. J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, recently received a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, who are spending their honeymoon at Jefferson, N. H., in which it was stated that one day last week a heavy snow fell at Jefferson and the temperature for a time was near the freezing point. A day or so later the weather cleared and the temperature went up several degrees.

NURSES AT HOSPITAL POISONED BY FOOD.

Members of the Day Force at Muhlenberg Hospital Had a Narrow Escape.

ALL HAVE NOW RECOVERED.

SUPPOSED TO HAVE COME FROM CHEMICALS USED IN CLEANING.

All Were Taken Ill at Midnight and Drs. Tomlinson and Murray Had to Be Hastily Summoned—Prompt Treatment Had Effect.

Six of the twelve nurses at Muhlenberg Hospital, comprising the day force, were accidently poisoned Thursday night by drinking tea which had been brewed in a receptacle previously cleaned with an injurious acid. The young women were taken ill at midnight and Drs. Tomlinson and Murray of the hospital staff were hastily summoned. It was three hours later before the physicians had the patients resting comfortably and out of danger.

The tea which was responsible for the trouble was taken by the nurses at the evening meal. During the afternoon the hospital cook had been busy scouring her kitchen utensils, in the course of which the teapot had undergone treatment with an acid. It is supposed the vessel was not thoroughly rinsed after the scouring treatment had been completed and a small portion of the chemical remained.

Nothing appeared wrong with the beverage when taken and no immediate effects were noticed. The nurses retired at the usual hour but at midnight all were simultaneously awakened by severe pains followed by nausea. On the arrival of the physicians the nature of the trouble was apparent and strong emetics were administerd. At 3 o'clock the pains had disappeared and the general conditions were such that the doctors could return home.

Yesterday the young women were completely out of danger but still very weak and they were not permitted to go on duty. They were able to walk about and the effects gradually wore off. Today all were at their accustomed places.

While the recovery of the patients was comparitively quick, the hospital physicians agree that it was only through the prompt treatment given. The poisoning was of such a nature that had it not been checked at the beginning of its course, the result might have been very serious.

MAY LOCATE AT NETHERWOOD

SITE OFFERED THERE FOR THE FRESH-AIR CAMP.

David Hand Will Furnish Grounds — Others Have Offered to Erect Buildings.

A great many Plainfielders have become thoroughly aroused in their interest in the Fresh Air Camp work that has been in progress at Westfield during the past few years, and the probabilities are that next summer will see the camp located within the limits of Plainfield. For some time past it has been a recognized fact that the present site of the camp is not the most healthful and, while it has answered very well, the location can be improved upon.

There are many noble hearted generous people in this city and, one generous man, whose deep interest has been manifested on several occasions, has offered a beautiful site on high ground. This person is David Hand and the ground he offers is located on Netherwood Heights. It is high ground and very healthful and would enable Miss Curry to bring the children out in the early summer and stay until late in the fall.

Other good-hearted people have offered to erect a suitable building, while others have promised to assist in other ways, thus assuring complete success for the enterprise. It now looks as though everything needed would be supplied before ground is broken for the new building. This will bring to Plainfield Miss Curry and her one hundred babies and the camp would at once become a local institution worthy of generous support from all classes.

There are many advantages in having the camp in this city. It would be easy of access and it would undoubtedly instill a greater local interest among charitable people. The churches would continue their aid and support with more zeal and interest, and the various societies would surely be led to do more than ever for Miss Curry and her little ones.

NEW JAIL FOR MIDDLESEX.

EXPECTED BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS WILL SOON AUTHORIZE ONE.

County Buildings Committee Has Had Plans Prepared for a Modern Jail to Accommodate Eighty-five.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Oct. 26—Acting upon a recent communication from Prosecutor John S. Voorhees, the county buildings committee, of the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders, has decided to recommend at the next session of the board the building of a new county jail to be constructed at a cost of $40,000. It is expected that immediate action will be taken upon the plan so that work may be commenced at once.

Architect George K. Parsell has prepared plans for a complete new structure. The proposed jail will have ample accommodation for eighty-five prisoners. It will be fitted with three tiers of steel cages all in view of the jailor's corridor. There will be separate apartments for women, boys and witnesses. Each cell will be fitted with toilet accommodations and the floor will be of concrete. The structure will be built on plans which will allow additions to be made at any time, thereby increasing its capacity.

MRS. BOND'S FUNERAL WAS HELD YESTERDAY

Obsequies of Woman Who Met Her Death at the North Avenue Station.

MANY FRIENDS PRESENT.

SERVICES HELD AT RESIDENCE OF C. E. BOND, EAST FRONT STREET.

Rev. C. E. Herring Presided at the Service and Spoke Words of Sympath,—Interment in North Plainfield—Honorary Pallbearers.

A sorrowful gathering of relatives and friends assembled at the home of Clarence E. Bond, East Front street, yesterday afternoon, when funeral services were held over the remains of his aunt, Mrs. Isaac Vanderveer Bond, whose tragic death at the North Avenue station Tuesday evening shocked the entire community. Many of the mourners who gathered at the obsequies were numbered among those who mingled with her at the festive occasion from which she departed to meet death.

Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was in charge of the services. In the course of his impressive remarks he took occasion to refer to the uncertainty of this life. He spoke of the house of feasting suddenly plunged into gloom and made a home of sorrow. To the grieving family and friends he declared that death must come sooner or later and that this death was the will of the Creator, and was for some good intent.

In the course of the services two selections, "My Jesus as Thou Wilt" and "Some Time We'll Understand," were rendered with much feeling by Charles L. Lewis. There were numerous floral offerings, among them being set pieces from a Newark organization, of which Mr. Bond is a member, and beautiful designs from members of the family and others.

At the close of the obsequies the remains were taken to the North Plainfield cemetery, where a brief service was conducted by Rev. P. B. Kennedy, a nephew of the deceased.

Those who acted as honorary pallbearers were three sons-in-law of Mrs. Bond—David Tynan, Alexander Archibald and Charles Thomas, of Newark, and Clarence E. Bond, of this city.

Boards of Trade all through the country are preparing to select delegates. The Plainfield Board of Trade has the right to do the same. NO DEMAND FOR "BLACKEY."

VanShank Will Not Be Sent to Pennsylvania to Answer For Complicity in Murder.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, October 26—The Pennsylvania authorities have decided not to ask for a requisition for Chas. VanShank, alias "Long Island Blackey," who is wanted for robbery and complicity in a murder in Monroe county. "Blackey" is in jail here, charged with committing numerous depredations throughout Hunterdon county. He has asked for the right to waive indictment and plead guilty. His case will be disposed of in a few days.

TEACHERS ARE HARD TO FIND.

GREAT PROBLEM IN MANY OF THE LOCAL SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

Some Talk of Even Hiring Teachers at Nominal Salary—Few Like the Responsibility.

A rather peculiar state of affairs exists at the present time in the various Sunday-schools about the city, and so far as can be learned not many schools are exempt. The question that is perplexing the minds of the officers of these Sunday-schools is that relative to teachers. It is a strange fact, there is a scarcity of teachers and a solution to this problem is hard to find. For some time past almost every school has had more or less trouble in getting teachers for the classes.

There are any number of men and women who are competent to teach, but they prefer to be taught and are unwilling to take charge of a class. Nearly every week the superintendents of the Sunday-schools finds it necessary to call for volunteers, but the response is wholly inadequate to the demand. Especially during the summer months the greatest difficulty is experienced. Many members of the schools are away and it is a serious problem getting persons to teach the scholars who attend the sessions of the schools. Some of the officers of Sunday-schools have suggested that teachers be employed at a nominal salary.

This seems to be the only feasible solution to the question, and yet there are others who think that there should be a sufficient number of persons who should be willing to teach for the love of the work. Frequently classes have to be doubled up and one person teach as many as fifteen or more members of a class. In this way the best results are not obtained, as smaller classes, it has been learned by experience, are more easily taught with quicker and better results. There is one Sunday-school in the city that is greatly in need of teachers, and it is a question for serious consideration as to how the members who attend the school are to be taught.

KEPT THE WHEELS OF JUSTICE QUITE BUSY

Lots of Business Came up Before City Judge Runyon This Morning.

SIX CHARGED WITH FIGHTING

ONE MAN INSISTED THAT HE WAS IN COXACKIE, N. Y.

Sent Back to Think It Over—Another Hackman Had Fine Placed Over His Head—That Famous Scrap Case Adjourned For Two Weeks.

An unusual large number of cases kept the wheels of justice grinding in the city court for some time this morning. There were nine defendants, six of which were charged with fighting.

Stephen Murphy and John Kennedy, according to Patrolman Cash, engaged in a "rough house" in Washington Hall, one night last week, during which some good hard blows were exchanged. Both men pleaded not guilty, and the case was laid over for one week to enable Cash to procure witnesses.

William Kennedy was charged by Peter Seader and Charles Barry with assaulting them without provocation in front of the North Avenue station September 28. Immediately after the assault Kennedy had sudden business in New York, and only returned this week. He was fined $3 on each complaint.

A second adjournment of the trial of James Smith, John Porter and John Marra was made for two weeks to allow the city to procure important witnesses. The men are charged with fighting and disturbing the morals and good order of the city, on Grant avenue, two weeks ago.

Andrew Little, who claimed Rahway as his abiding place, was found lying in the gutter on Watchung avenue at 1 o'clock this morning helplessly drunk and with a large gash in his forehead, evidently caused by falling against the curb. He was placed in a cell. When he appeared in court he was still very much befuddled and badly twisted as to his whereabouts. He insisted that he was in Coxackie, N. Y., which place he set out for yesterday and was greatly surprised when the Court told him he had two more guesses. He was sent back to his cell to sober up, after which he will be released.

George Green was arrested last evening for drunkenness and disorderly conduct on Grant avenue. He didn't remember much about the occurrence but pleaded not guilty as a matter of form. He will be tried Monday.

The number of lucky hackmen at the depot who are plying their calling without a $5 fine suspended over their heads for violating the hack ordinance, is gradually diminishing. Chas. Barry was placed among the unfortunates this morning after he had pleaded guilty to the offence. He was also warned to be careful, as the fines are shortly to commence dropping.

LITERARY.

Nothing stronger or more to the point about the political campaign which is just being fought in New York has been written than Jacob A. Riis' article on Tammany which appears in The Outlook dated October 26. Mr. Riis has fought Tammany in many ways in lower New York, as has been told in his "How the Other Half Lives," "A Ten Year's War," and "The Making of an American," which is just concluded as a serial in The Outlook and is to appear in book form. ($3 a year. The Outlook Company, 287 Fourth avenue, New York.)

Nothing could be more timely than three of the articles which go to make up McClure's Magazine for November. William Allen White, in his inimitable style, analyzes Roosevelt in a way which shows this unclassified man in a new light—the true light. Ray Stannard Baker, author of the character sketch, "J. Pierpont Morgan," explains "What the United States Steel Corporation Is, and How It Works," all in a manner that is both interesting and instructive. As a describer of a thrilling contest of speed, Walter Wellman has no equal. The automobile race from Paris to Berlin is described so vividly that one can almost see Fournier flash by at the rate of a mile of a minute. The "true story of a recently discovered 'Treasure Island'" is told by Sturgis B. Rand in "The Romance of Christmas Island." The fiction of the number is well worth reading. There are poems and other features, all of which make the November McClure's a notable number.

The November Forum opens with a timely character sketch of "Theodore Roosevelt," from the pen of A. Maurice Low. It is followed by a paper, "Preserving a State's Honor," in which Willard Saulsbury explains how it has come to pass that Delaware is at present without representation in the United States Senate. "Sugar and the New Colonies" is the title of an article by Charles A. Crampton on the economic significance of our recent expansion. Hon. Martin Dodge, writing on "The Government and Good Roads," reports what has been done by the Washington office, of which he is director, for the improvement of the highways in various parts of the country. In the concluding article S. P. Verner writes optimistically, not to say enthusiastically, of "The Development of Africa."

Will Be on the Firing Line.

Democratic State Chairman Wm. B. Gourley has requested "Farmer Orator" James E. Martine as a "minute man of the party to take his place on the firing line," by addressing a mass meeting at Passaic this evening. Mayor Seymour is the other speaker selected for the occasion.

House-Warming at the Park Club.

There will be a house-warming and entertainment this evening at the Park Club. A good time is promised the members and their friends who will attend the formal opening of the winter season.

Open Meeting for Freedom Castle.

Freedom Castle, K. G. E., will hold an open meeting Tuesday evening. Invitations have been issued to young men, not members of the order, to attend the affair.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A few days ago a Plainfield woman, who was riding on one of the Front street trolley cars, asked the conductor, who was a very young man, to let her off at a certain street. At first he paid no attention to her, and when she asked him a second time, he made the reply "You know where the street is, don't you?" Another woman on the same car asked to be let off at a certain street and she was allowed to get off the car over two blocks out of the way.

A little boy who had learned that complaints of a headache Sunday mornings exempted him from going to church, put in his usual plea one Sunday morning, near church time. The father, whose suspicions had been aroused, carefully examined the boy and finding his eye clear, his tongue clean and his pulse normal, said: "My son, I should diagnose your case as Sabbatics. It is periodical, and only comes Sunday mornings. Get your hat and coat and we will go to church."

The success of a hotel depends in no small measure upon the clerk. If he is genial and thoroughly businesslike, he is sure to add much to the comfort of the guests. Such a person is J. F. Auten who, for two years, has been the faithful and efficient clerk at the Hotel Kensington. During his service Mr. Auten has made a host of friends for the hotel as well as himself, and that he has closely applied himself to his duties is evident from the fact that during the two years he has had a vacation of one week. Mr. Auten's friends wish him continued success.

The discovery of a real snake quietly resting in his overcoat pocket caused "Conjunction" Jones, the nineteen syllable colored character, to shake from head to foot as he stood at the corner of Park and North avenues late yesterday afternoon. There was no mistake about it and the realization made his lips quiver, his eyes shoot about in quick motion and his usually strong voice to quiver as he attempted to ask the bystanders to remove the snake, which is "Conjunction's" most dreaded enemy, except a ghost or a monosyllable. He at last threw off his overcoat only to find that the tiny little snake was dead. Then his wrath rose and as he was threatening all kinds of dire vengence including a promise to cut the heart out of the offender, thrash the joker for fifty cents, and to clean up the street generally, when Patrolman Saffron ordered him to "move on." "Conjunction" says it is sure death to cross his path, and that he "suspecterates" that "dat oyster man, who sells crabs done de work."

"The things that remain" must always command attention and interest. Just now when the old National Academy of Design Building at Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue, New York, has been torn down and the hunt going on for the corner stone, much interest attaches to the delicate and beautiful columns, which will be incorporated in the new building. These columns with their finely sculptured capitals and bases were the gifts of Daniel Huntington, Samuel P. Avery, Cornelius Vanderbilt, William E. Dodge, J. Q. Ward, Henry G. Marquand and John Taylor Johnston, whom Plainfield was proud to number among her summer residents, and who was the father of Mrs. Pierre Mali, of East Front street. When the corner stone of the building was laid in 1863, one of the speakers expressed the hope that it would last forever. Little he dreamed that less than forty years would elapse before New York would want a new building. The columns that are counted worthy of preservation were not copies or adaptations but were specially designed with studies made from nature, the motives being vegetable forms, fruits and flowers intertwined with recognized emblems.

BATTLE OF SANTIAGO

Schley Rehearses Story of the Famous Fight.

AN OVATION FOR THE ADMIRAL.

Brooklyn's Helm Not Eased While Making Starboard Turn, and She Did Not Cross Texas' Bow. Sampson Not to Be Called.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, testifying in his own behalf before the court of inquiry yesterday afternoon, got down to the subject of the battle of Santiago. Resuming the stand after recess, Schley said his movement westward on May 26 was further determined by the knowledge contained in order No. 8 that Sampson was at Cay Frances, protecting the eastward passage to Havana, and therefore he (Schley) should protect the westward passage with the flying squadron in case the enemy had gone that way.

He said that on July 2 he had sent a message to Sampson advising him of suspicious movements of smoke in Santiago harbor, and he said, "I am quite sure it was answered."

He said that he made preparations with Captain Cook regarding the Brooklyn's engines. He didn't have them coupled because he and Cook agreed that they would do well enough with steam under all boilers. He said Cook told him the Brooklyn could make eighteen and a half knots then, and he replied that would probably be two or three knots better than the Spanish ships, as their bottoms were foul.

Admiral Schley gave the impression that he expected the Spaniards out. He began a detailed story of the battle at 2:15.

He said the New York was out of signal distance of the Gloucester, the easternmost vessel of the blockading line, when the Spaniards came out. Therefore he made signals. The first was "Clear ship for action," then "Close up."

The Brooklyn headed direct for the enemy. After ten or twelve minutes' turning with port helm he saw the leading ship make a rank sheer as if to ram.

Admiral Schley said that when it became apparent that the Spanish ships had succeeded in passing our battleship line Captain Cook gave the order to port the helm.

"I did not," he said. "I would have done it in a second. I asked Cook if the helm was aport, and he said it was; hard aport, I think.

"The turn was absolutely continuous. There was no easing of the helm. I never saw the starboard bow of the Texas. We never crossed her bow. We were never within 600 yards of her.

"Some time during the turn Lieutenant Hodgson very properly made some such allusion to me as 'Look out for the Texas,' but there was never any colloquy of any character between us, because in the first place he was too good an officer, and in the second place I would not have permitted it."

Admiral Schley said that the Brooklyn was within 1,100 yards at least of the nearest Spanish ship when the turn was made.

"I saw men running across the deck," he said. "I saw the daylight between their legs with my naked eyes."

Admiral Schley said that at one time the Brooklyn seemed to be engaged alone with all the Spanish ships. He described the killing of Ellis in feeling language. When they were about to throw the body overboard, the admiral said, he asserted, "No, not that for one who has fallen so gallantly." He said that the Brooklyn's signal halyards were shot away and one of the speed cones in falling nearly struck him. It fell overboard.

Schley said he gave orders to signal the Oregon to fire at the Colon, and he thought the order was carried out.

"Before we turned the leading ship was abeam or a little abaft the beam, and when we turned about she was ahead of us—that is, on the starboard bow—and all four ships and the forts were firing at the same time, and from that moment the following ten or fifteen minutes were the most furious part of the entire combat. I remember very distinctly seeing from time to time as my attention was attracted for a moment the jets of water ahead and astern and over and short. The roar of projectiles was one of the things that can be heard only once in a lifetime and then never forgotten. It appeared at that moment that all four of those ships were at work upon the Brooklyn, and up to the moment of turning, so far as we could perceive, there was not the slightest evidence they had even been injured. The thought passed through my mind that, after all our precautions and waiting, those fellows would get away.

"At that moment I felt and I thought I remarked to Captain Cook that we were alone and would perhaps have most of that fight upon ourselves, because I did not know then that the battleships could possibly keep up their speed. But I said to him we must stay with this crowd. I had no idea that we would escape. Of course if they could have shot as well as our people did they certainly would have got us. When we had completely turned around on a westerly course, the ships appeared to have been broken up a little, although still in some semblance of formation, and just at that moment I saw the Oregon breaking in through this cloud envelope. She broke through on to the starboard quarter of the flagship. I had hoisted the signal of 'Close up' and then 'Follow the flag,' feeling that a new disposition was necessary. That signal was replied to, and I saw it repeated. Captain Clark knew very well it was not intended for him, because he was following the flag, so he repeated it for the other ships.

"In a very few moments after we

Oregon broke through the cloud of smoke she was perhaps 400 or 500 yards distant. These two ships, the Brooklyn and the Oregon, were firing in a manner I had never seen before. I never before realized what rapid gun fire meant. Both ships were at that time a sheet of flame. Soon after I saw that the leading ship was evidently battered hard. She lagged astern. I saw smoke coming out of her ports and out of her hatches, and the fact that impressed itself upon me was that the columns were going straight up in the air. I said to Captain Cook, who was constantly at my side and always in my confidence: 'We have got one. Keep the boys below informed of all the movements. They cannot see, and they ought to know.' And he did so throughout the action. Every few moments messages were sent below to the men that were answered oftentimes with cheers which we could hear through the ventilators.

"It appeared to be a very short interval of time after that that I saw a second ship on fire, which proved later to be the Oquendo. She evidently had suffered very severely and started immediately inshore, leaving the Viscaya and the Colon. The Viscaya immediately took a leading position on the bow, and I thought for a little while that she would perhaps outfoot us. The Colon worked inshore, and the time between the dropping out of action of those two ships until the Viscaya turned inshore was a period of perhaps thirty minutes, during which time she was abreast of the Brooklyn and the Oregon. I looked to the eastward and got occasional glimpses of the Indiana and of the Gloucester. I could not see very well what they were doing, owing to the clouds of smoke, though I knew that both were doing admirable work. I felt that the moment those vessels ran into the beach the commanding officers of the ships which could not keep up the pace with the two leaders would take care of the prisoners and would save them from the insurgents as well as from their own fire.

"About thirty minutes, as nearly as I can remember, was the length of time from the turning in or the wounding of those two first vessels until the Viscaya went ashore. She was a little forward of the beam of the Brooklyn and I do not think at any time over 2,300 or 2,400 yards away. She was in most excellent target range, and I remember that a marine stationed in the top reported that he did not see any of the shots of the two ships, the Brooklyn and the Oregon, hitting the water. So I imagine from that that they were striking the ship. It was on the trip outward after the turn. I was very anxious about the ranges, because I did not want the Viscaya and the Colon to get out of good fighting range. Ellis, who was an expert with the stadimeter, constantly kept that instrument on those vessels and, knowing exactly their heights, reported to me that they were maintaining the same range, but I thought my eye was a little more sensitive, and I said, 'Now they are evidently gaining.'

"He went from me the second time, and that was the last I saw of him alive. In performing this magnificent duty he lost his life. He was struck about ten feet from where I was standing. His brains and blood were thrown over a great many people, and some of it reached me. He immediately fell, of course, to the deck, and it was a shocking sight to men who had never seen such things before.

"Just before the Viscaya turned to run ashore she put her helm astarboard, apparently starting out for the Brooklyn or the Oregon, I don't remember which, and evidently at that moment got a very severe wound, for I saw quite an explosion under her bow, and in a moment afterward she put her helm hard aport, turning inshore, smoke coming from all of her hatches."

Admiral Schley in concluding his narrative of the battle, which was very dramatic, closed at 3 o'clock as follows:

"And that ended the battle of Santiago on the 3d day of July, 1898, and I must say that I was very much impressed with the officers and men engaged in that struggle, who fulfilled in the very highest and very noblest degree the traditions of the American navy."

Admiral Schley then said that Admiral Taylor was too far away on the day of the battle to see where the Brooklyn was.

He then entered into a long explanation of his course in regard to the Hodgson correspondence. He said he had no recollection of ever using the words "Damn the Texas," and he defended his course in regard to Lieutenant Hodgson in the same way that he did in his letter to Hodgson and in much the same terms.

Owing to Admiral Schley's voice giving out court was adjourned at 3:40 o'clock.

Preceding the adjournment of the court the question of calling Admiral Sampson to the stand was revived by Judge Advocate Lemly, who reminded Mr. Rayner that he (Mr. Rayner) had suggested some time ago that he desired the admiral called. Captain Lemly said he was prepared to issue the summons if called upon to do so, but Mr. Rayner responded that the incident which had seemed to demand the admiral's attention had dwindled into comparative insignificance, and he added that it was well understood the condition of Admiral Sampson's health was such that he could not be expected to appear upon the witness stand.

As Admiral Schley left the courtroom he was given quite an ovation. A large number of persons had halted outside the courtroom door, and many insisted on shaking hands with him. The assemblage escorted him up the hill from the gunners' workshop in which the court sits to the outer gates of the navy yard.

Secretary Chamberlain Announces Repressive Policy.

REPRESENTATION IS TOO LARGE.

In a Speech at Edinburgh the Present Relations of Opposition and Irish Party Are Declared to Menace British Empire.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 26.—Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, addressing upward of 8,000 persons in Waverley market, Edinburgh, announced that the government intended to frame new rules for the house of commons so as to limit Irish obstruction.

But this was not the only thing Mr. Chamberlain declared the government intended to do.

"The present representation of Ireland is," said he, "an abuse and a scandal. No alteration can be made except in immediate anticipation of a general dissolution, and we are not contemplating that. But when we get nearer to the time we shall ask you whether you think Irish representation is so precious to you, is so valuable to the national interests, that it is desirable to continue it on a scale which gives the Irish a representation enormously exceeding the proportionate representation of Scotland and England."

The colonial secretary went on to point out that on the basis of population Ireland had thirty members too many in the house of commons, and on the basis of her contributions for imperial purposes as considered at the time of the union she had from forty to fifty members too many.

"I say that this constitutes an abuse," he continued, "and there is no reason why it should be perpetuated."

In another portion of the speech, which was largely devoted to the Irish question, he observed:

"If these gentlemen who now openly shout for the mahdi and pray for the Boers, if they had a parliament of their own, if all the strings of Irish government had been in their hands, if they had had the power, is it not certain that they would have refused to pay their contribution to the war and that they would have placed us in a position of embarrassment?"

The relations of the parliamentary opposition with the Irish party, Mr. Chamberlain said, he considered "dangerous to the empire."

In reviewing the war in South Africa, which, he declared again, had been forced upon Great Britain by the Boers, he said the government acknowledged that it had made a mistake as to the time of ending the war and that he admired the tenacity of the Boers. But he insisted that it was the duty of Great Britain to meet this tenacity with equal resolution. Then followed what is regarded as a most important declaration.

"I think the time has come or is coming," said the colonial secretary, "when measures of greater severity may be necessary. And if, that time comes we can find precedents for anything we do in the action of those nations who now criticise our 'barbarity' and 'cruelty,' but whose example in Poland, in the Caucasus, in Algeria, in Tonquin, in Bosnia and in the Franco-German war we have never approached."

The land was transferred for a consideration of $10,000,000.

The Next City Judge.

There is every reason to believe that William Nelson Runyon will succeed himself as the local magistrate who will preside over the city court. After using every possible effort to find a candidate, the Democrats have practically agreed to leave that place on their city ticket blank and allow Mr. Runyon to be re-elected city judge without opposition.

When the name of William N. Runyon was presented for that office, three years ago, there were many who said that he was rather young to fill a position of such responsibility. He had then already served two years in the Common Council, being the youngest member of that body. He was nominated and elected by a large majority. His record as city magistrate, since that time, has been an excellent one. His decisions were fair and impartial and yet tempered with mercy. While the city may not have gained so much income from fines as it did under some of his predecessors, he has shown much wisdom in sentencing the prisoners. Those who thought he was too young for the office have been surprised at the maturedness of his judgments.

There isn't any doubt but that Judge Runyon is one of the most popular young men in the city. That he received the votes of many Democrats was evidenced by the heavy vote he polled three years ago. The Democrats realized that it would take the hardest kind of a campaign to bring about his defeat. Defeat seemed almost certain for whoever accepted the nomination. After much effort to bring a candidate to fill the place, the Democrats have now given up.

The name of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., was placed in nomination at the city convention of the Democrats but it was with the express understanding that he would not, under any circumstances, make the run. The nomination was only made so that the place might be filled and then another name substituted by the committee on vacancies. As that committee cannot seem to find any one, Hetfield has withdrawn and the place is left blank.

Roosevelt and Public Schools.

When Mr. Roosevelt became vice-president, two of his boys were enrolled as pupils of the Force public school building on Massachusetts avenue, of which S. E. Kramer is principal. Now that the Roosevelt family has returned to Washington, a third son, Kermit, has been entered with Mr. Kramer. At Oyster Bay, all the Roosevelt children attended the public schools. This fact in a small village was not, of course, remarkable, nor should the presence of a President's children in the public schools of a large city be regarded as an event justifying lengthy comment. It is, however, highly creditable to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt that in a city where the public schools run in competition with one of the strongest aggregations of private schools in the country, they should have chosen for good and sufficient reasons to send their children to the more democratic institution.

The health boards all through the State are waging campaigns of unusual vigor against a great variety of things. In Bayonne, for instance, the board is actually thinking of trying to limit the length of gowns to be worn by the women in that city. The board declares that these trailing skirts are the means of spreading much disease. In Trenton there is talk about the suppression of the rummage sales on the ground that they, too, assist in the spread of contagious disease.

The Spring Valley correspondent of the Hunterdon Gazette has invaded the sanctity of some young Lochinvar's affairs. It says: "P. L. Rinehart is still courting at Flemington." Is the item meant to injure this particular swain in the eyes of the Spring Valley lasses? Possibly we misinterpret the correspondent, who might have intended to convey the meaning that Mr. Rinehart is in attendance at the Flemington court.

The trouble which was in evidence at the Second ward Republican primary and was subsequently transported to the city convention of the G. O. P., now threatens to appear at the coming city election. Last charter election, the Republicans of the Second ward had their troubles, that being the only ward in the city to give the majority to the Democratic candidate for mayor.

In the election of E. S. Hooley to the vice-presidency of the Evansville and Terra Haute Railroad, that corporation has secured a very able official. The office is one which brings with it much responsibility and requires a man of unusually good judgment to fill it. Mr. Hooley is declared to perfectly answer the requirements.

The well-known popularity of Lewis G. Timpson is expected by the Democrats to win many votes for him as ward Councilman in the Second ward this coming election. He is lined up against the present incumbent, Jan vanHerwerden, whose chief strength is expected to be in Netherwood.

The Republicans of Elizabeth have chosen George A. Squire as their candidate for mayor. As the Democratic candidate, Patrick J. Ryan, happens to be a warm personal friend of Mr Squire, there need be no fear of mud-slinging in that campaign.

The proposed Republican mass meeting in this city again brings to mind the need of a theatre for Plainfield. Several schemes looking toward that end were started some time ago, but nothing definite has yet been done.

It was a new idea to provide a Pan-American Exposition and its Midway for the enjoyment of those who couldn't go to Buffalo to see it. It proved, however, more successful financially than the original.

The painting white of the fence separating the tracks at the North Avenue station may be the means of saving several lives.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

In a recent issue of The Montreal Gazette there is an interesting description of a successful attempt to photograph a steamer shooting the Lachine Rapids, River St. Lawrence. The pictures are now being shown by the kalatechnoscope at Manager F. F. Proctor's theatres in New York, Albany and Montreal. It says: "William Paley, inventor of the kalatechnoscope, who came to Montreal a few days ago to make moving photographs of the Duke and Duchess of York, made up his mind to take a view of a steamboat coming down the Lachine Rapids before leaving town. He engaged a guide and went in a row-boat to the big rock, nearest to the point where the channel makes a sudden turn. He made his first attempt Saturday, but the water was so rough that his pilot failed to land him in time and the journey was so perilous that the pilot refused to attempt the task again on Monday. Mr. Paley had to spend five hours hunting up another man who would undertake the job. They started out at daybreak reaching their destination after a rough voyage, during which the boat was almost swamped several times. Standing ankle deep in water, on the very edge of the rapids, Mr. Paley secured a fine picture of the steamer as she swung into the swiftest part of the current. The nature of the task may be better understood when it is known that Mr. Paley is a man of considerable averdupoise. He weighs 313½ pounds, and it is not to be wondered at that the pilots refused to risk their lives in a small boat with such a heavy cargo. This is the first moving photograph of a boat shooting the rapids that has ever been taken and Mr. Paley is rightfully elated over the success of his venture. The pictures will be developed by Mr. Paley himself and the result will be shown at Proctor's theatres."

GOLD AND SILVER.

The United States Leads the World In Precious Metal Production.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Director Roberts of the mint has prepared a statement showing the production of the precious metals for the calendar year of 1900. It shows that the production of gold in the world that year was 12,457,287 ounces of the value of $257,514,700, a loss in value of $49,070,200 from 1899. The loss was mainly in the Transvaal field, South Africa, and due to the war. The production of South Africa in 1899 was of the value of $73,277,100 and in 1900 $9,671,000. The principal gains were $8,118,000 in the United States and $6,606,000 in Canada. The United States again heads the list. In the United States the principal gains were by Alaska, Arizona, Colorado and Utah.

The silver output of the world amounted to 178,796,796 fine ounces, the largest ever known. It exceeds the product of 1899 by 11,572,513 ounces.

The United States again leads all other producers, with a slight excess over Mexico. There was an important advance in the price of silver during the year, the price ranging from 59.1 cents per ounce in January to 66.3 cents in the last month of the year. The chief factor in the rise was the purchases for the account of the government of India.

FIRE KILLS EIGHTEEN

Others Missing and Injured In Philadelphia Blaze.

PROPERTY LOSS HALF A MILLION.

Flames In an Eight Story Furniture Establishment Spread With Wonderful Rapidity—Origin of Disaster Unknown.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—Eighteen dead and a property loss amounting to about $500,000 are the awful results of a fire which occurred yesterday in the business section of the city. The number of injured is not known definitely, but fully a score of victims were treated at various hospitals. Police and firemen are still delving into the ruins in search of bodies supposed to have been buried beneath the debris, as it is feared that others besides the known dead may have lost their lives in the flames. The buildings destroyed were the eight story structure 1219 and 1221 Market street, occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers and furniture dealers, and three three story buildings occupied by small merchants. The big furniture building extended back a half block to Commerce street and was owned by Henry C. Lea.

Never in its history has Philadelphia experienced a fire which spread with such great rapidity. At 10:20 o'clock in the morning the blaze broke forth in the building occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., and one hour later the horrible sacrifice of life had been made and the immense loss of property had been accomplished. The origin of the death dealing conflagration is unknown. It is said that an explosion of naphtha or gasoline in the basement was the cause, but this is denied by Mr. Wilkinson, who says there never was a sufficient quantity of either explosive about the building to be responsible for the terrible disaster. Rumor has it also that an elevator constructor at work in the basement permitted the flame of his lantern to communicate with some of the gaseous liquids stored in the basement and that this was the cause of the conflagration.

Such a disastrous fire, attended with so great a loss of life in such a brief period, was never before known in this city. Men and women died a lingering, agonizing death in the presence of thousands of spectators who were unable to lift a hand to their assistance. The rear of Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s building faces on Commerce street, a small thoroughfare. On the fire escapes at this end of the building two men and one woman were slowly roasted to death, while the horror stricken throng on the street below turned sick at the sight.

In the front on Market street a woman, driven to desperation, leaped from a window on the top floor and was dashed to death on the pavement. These are but a few of the heartrending scenes attending the conflagration. Firemen claim to have seen men and women, unable to reach the windows or fire escapes, burned to death in the interior of the building. If this be so, little or nothing remains of these victims, and it is doubtful if any portion of their bodies will be recovered.

Seventy-nine of the 100 persons in Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s building when the fire started were employees, and the remainder were customers and outside workmen who were engaged in putting the finishing touches on the new eighth floor. More than half of the firm's employees were on the upper five floors, and it was among these that the greatest number were killed and injured. With the possible exception of the engineer, who is missing, all persons on the first three floors got out of the building safely.

Heavy Canal Shipments.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 26.—The tonnage of the canals for the third week in October was 135,401 tons, which shows that the increase in canal shipments which was evident at the beginning of the season has continued up to the present time. The total tonnage for the same period last year was 111,481, an increase of 23,920 tons. The increased shipment is largely in grain, that of wheat being 9,245 tons this year as against 2,589 tons last year, 9,697 tons of barley as against 4,451 tons last year and 7,950 tons of oats this year as against only 230 tons last year.

Bulgaria Will Punish Kidnapers.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 26.—It is semi-officially asserted that no indication has yet been found of Miss Stone's kidnapers having been in Bulgaria. The Bulgarian government is determined to annihilate the band should it cross the frontier and will deal with the utmost severity with any Bulgarians whose complicity in the kidnaping shall be proved. Great resentment is felt here at the exploitation to the discredit of Bulgaria of a crime committed in another state.

A Prize For M. Santos-Dumont.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—According to Le Figaro, Daniel Osiris, a wealthy Parisian, has written to M. Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, offering him the sum of 100,000 francs as an equivalent of the prize which the aerostation commission seems disinclined to award him in the competition promoted by M. Deutsch.

A Pacing Record Broken.

The advertisements of the Ripans Tabules are made up mainly from actual experiences reported by those who have been benefited by their use. No two persons have exactly the same story to relate, and yet, although the particulars vary with every case, each variation has its counterpart in some other person who will be interested in reading the account and likely to be benefited in the same degree by using Ripans Tabules. To encourage the procuring and sending in of the particulars of remarkable cures and benefits worked by Ripans Tabules, the proprietors make a practice of presenting a small white and gold mantel clock, manufactured by the Seth Thomas Clock Company of Thomaston, Conn. The clock is delivered carriage paid to any person who reports an actual case with sufficient accuracy and detail, with name, age, occupation of patient. The name need not be used in an advertisement if the patient objects, but is needed to make possible a verification of the facts as stated and that they are given with good faith. All correspondence should be addressed to the Ripans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York.

TRIMMING DETAILS.

Velvet Lacings and Many Buttons on Fashionable Gowns.

Velvet lacings are still the vogue, and they serve to fasten the front of the blouses. These lacings also frequently appear on skirt panels, where, however, they give rather a heavy effect.

Buttons are being very much used as trimmings. In the smallest sizes they decorate many a plain tailor made flannel waist. When jeweled, they even appear on evening gowns. A cluster of tiny rhinestone buttons at the back of a soft silk girdle is one of the latest things. It is said to make the waist look smaller. The ends of long sashes are also ornamented with these small beadlike buttons. The large specimens seen on the Louis XV. costumes are often beautiful works of art, some of them representing landscapes or faces, the edges being thickly set with jewels.

An attractive costume for a young girl is shown in today's cut. The material is cadet blue broadcloth. The jacket is made with an open front, and the necessary warmth is assured by the addition of a vest of white broadcloth heavily stitched and trimmed with two rows of gilt buttons. The fancy pointed collars and revers, as well as a narrow strapping outlining the jacket, are of white broadcloth. The sleeves are finished with flaring cuffs trimmed with strappings of the white broadcloth. With this costume there is worn a full tie of black moire and a hat of stitched white felt trimmed with a large wired bow of black moire.

NEW HATS.

Boating Shapes For Morning and Picture Hats For Evening.

The popular boating shape is now seen in felt. It is intended primarily for morning wear, and as such it is made of white felt or any of the light shades to match one's tailor made. All white felt hats, however, are the most stylish, and these are bound with black velvet and trimmed with quills or wired bows. The black and white pompons so popular last summer have become so common that their end is soon predicted. This same boating shape is also carried out in white tulle simply trimmed with a wide velvet ribbon tied about the crown with apparent carelessness.

For dressy wear the picture hat is by far the most popular piece of winter millinery. These picture hats are more effective when they are kept entirely black and when only one large ostrich feather curls around the brim.

Evening hats of white tulle are made in the becoming bolero shapes. They require very little trimming beyond a spray of flowers fastened to the band. Hats of white chiffon mixed with black chantilly lace are among the latest novelties.

The picture hat in the illustration is particularly charming. It is made of black chantilly lace trimmed with folds of black velvet. A black velvet band tilts it up on one side of the front, where there is a huge bow of black velvet, from which a long ostrich feather curls around the brim. Over the edge of the brim, all the way around except directly in front, there is a dropping edge of the chantilly.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

By Robert Louis Stevenson.

SIX o'clock struck on the bells of the church that was so conveniently near to Mr. Utterson's dwelling, and still he was digging at the problem. Hitherto it had touched him on the intellectual side alone; but now his imagination also was engaged, or rather enslaved; and as he lay and tossed in the gross darkness of the night and the curtained room Mr. Enfield's tale went by before his mind in a scroll of lighted pictures. He would be aware of the great field of lamps of a nocturnal city; then of the figure of a man walking swiftly; then of a child running from the doctor's; and then these met, and that human Juggernaut trod the child down and passed on regardless of her screams. Or else he would see a room in a rich house, where his friend lay asleep, dreaming and smiling at his dreams, and then the door of that room would be opened, the curtains of the bed plucked apart, the sleeper recalled, and lo! there would stand by his side a figure to whom power was given, and, even at that dead hour, he must rise and do its bidding. The figure in these two phases haunted the lawyer all night; and if at any time he dozed over, it was but to see it glide still more stealthily through sleeping houses, or move the more swiftly and still the more swiftly, even to dizziness, through wider labyrinths of lamplit city, and at every street corner crush a child and leave her screaming. And still the figure had no face by which he might know it; even in his dreams it had no face, or one that baffled him and melted before his eyes; and thus it was that there sprung up and grew apace in the lawyer's mind a singularly strong, almost an inordinate, curiosity to behold the features of the real Mr. Hyde. If he could once set eyes on him, he thought the mystery would lighten and perhaps roll altogether away, as was the habit of mysterious things when well examined. He might see a reason for his friend's strange preference or bondage—call it which you please—and even for the startling clause of the will. At least it would be a face worth seeing; the face of a man who was without bowels of mercy; a face which had but to show itself to raise up in the mind of the unimpressionable Enfield a spirit of enduring hatred.

From that time forward Mr. Utterson began to haunt the door in the by-street of shops. In the morning before office hours, at noon, when business was plenty and time scarce, at night under the face of the fogged city moon, by all lights and at all hours of solitude or concourse, the lawyer was to be found on his chosen post.

"If he be Mr. Hyde," he had thought, "I shall be Mr. Seek."

And at last his patience was rewarded. It was a fine, dry night; frost in the air; the streets as clean as a ball-room floor; the lamps, unshaken by any wind, drawing a regular pattern of light and shadow. By 10 o'clock, when the shops were closed, the by-street was very solitary, and, in spite of the low growl of London from all round, very silent. Small sounds carried far; domestic sounds out of the houses were clearly audible on either side of the roadway, and the rumor of the approach of any passenger preceded him by a long time. Mr. Utterson had been some minutes at his post when he was aware of an odd, light footstep drawing near. In the course of his nightly patrols he had long grown accustomed to the quaint effect with which the footfalls of a single person, while he is still a great way off, suddenly spring out distinct from the vast hum and clatter of the city. Yet his attention had never been so sharply and decisively arrested, and it was with a strong, superstitious prevision of sucess that he withdrew into the entry of the court.

The steps drew swiftly nearer, and swelled out suddenly louder as they turned the end of the street. The lawyer, looking forth from the entry, could soon see what manner of man he had to deal with. He was small and very plainly dressed, and the look of him, even at that distance, went somehow strongly against the watcher's inclination. But he made straight for the door, crossing the roadway to save time; and as he came, he drew a key from his pocket, like one approaching home.

Mr. Utterson stepped out and touched him on the shoulder as he passed. "Mr. Hyde, I think?"

Mr. Hyde shrunk back with a hissing intake of the breath. But his fear was only momentary; and though he did not look the lawyer in the face, he answered cooly enough: "That is my name. What do you want?"

"I see you are going in," returned the lawyer. "I am an old friend of Dr. Jekyll's—Mr. Utterson of Gaunt street—you must have heard my name; and meeting you so conveniently, I thought you might admit me."

"You will not find Dr. Jekyll; he is from home," replied Mr. Hyde, blowing in the key. And then suddenly, but still without looking up: "How did you know me?" he asked.

"On your side," said Mr. Utterson, "will you do me a favor?"

"With pleasure," replied the other. "What shall it be?"

"Will you let me see your face?" asked the lawyer.

Mr. Hyde appeared to hesitate, and then, as if upon some sudden reflection, fronted about with an air of defiance; and the pair stared at each other pretty fixedly for a few seconds.

"Now I shall know you again," said Mr. Utterson. "It may be useful."

"Yes," returned Mr. Hyde. "It is as well we have met; and, apropos, you should have my address." And he gave a number of a street in Soho.

"Good God!" thought Mr. Utterson, "can he, too, have been thinking of the will?" But he kept his feelings to himself and only grunted in acknowledgment of the address.

"And now," said the other, "how did you know me?"

"By description," was the reply.

"Whose description?"

"We have common friends," said Mr. Utterson.

"Common friends," echoed Mr. Hyde, a little hoarsely. "Who are they?"

"Jekyll, for instance," said the lawyer.

"He never told you," cried Mr. Hyde, with a flush of anger. "I did not think you would have lied."

"Come," said Mr. Utterson, "that is not fitting language."

The other snarled aloud in a savage laugh; and the next moment, with extraordinary quickness, he had unlocked the door and disappeared into the house.

The lawyer stood awhile when Mr. Hyde had left him, the picture of disquietude. Then he began slowly to mount the street, pausing every step or two and putting his hand to his brow like a man in mental perplexity. The problem he was thus debating as he walked was one of a class that is rarely solved. Mr. Hyde was pale and dwarfish; he gave an impression of deformity without any namable malformation; he had a displeasing smile; he had borne himself to the lawyer with a sort of murderous mixture of timidity and boldness, and he spoke with a husky, whispering, and somewhat broken voice; all these were points against him, but not all of these together could explain the hitherto unknown disgust, loathing and fear with which Mr. Utterson regarded him. "There must be something else," said the perplexed gentleman. "There is something more, if I could find a name for it. God bless me, the man seems hardly human. Something troglodytic, shall we say? or can it be the old story of Doctor Fell? or is it the mere radiance of a foul soul that thus transpires through and transfigures its clay continent? The last, I think; for oh, my poor old Harry Jekyll, if ever I read Satan's signature on a face, it is on that of your new friend."

FIGHTING IN SAMAR.

Two Garrisons Attacked—Insurgent Band Driven to the Mountains.

MANILA, Oct. 26.—The people of the island of Samar have been notified to concentrate in the towns; otherwise they will be considered public enemies and outlaws and will be treated accordingly. Intense feeling exists among the troops in Samar. If they can meet the enemy in the open, there will be great retaliation. Many of them have seen and the others have heard of the barbarous treatment to which the dead American soldiers were subjected by the Filipinos recently.

General Sumner reports a fight which took place at daybreak Wednesday at Taysan, province of Batangas, between Companies D and I of the First cavalry and a band of insurgents. There was desultory firing the whole forenoon, when the insurgents were driven into the mountains. The cavalrymen destroyed the insurgent barracks, storehouse, 8,000 pounds of rice and many uniforms and blankets.

The insurgents also attacked San Jose, province of Batangas, which was garrisoned by a detachment of the Twenty-first Infantry, under Lieutenant Patrick A. Connolly. The Americans fought hard, but were unable to prevent the burning of the town.

A MENACE TO CASTRO.

General Andrade Sails For Curacao. Rumored Invasion of Venezuela.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 26.—General Ignacio Andrade, former president of Venezuela, accompanied by his wife and eight children, has just sailed for the island of Curacao by the steamer Caracas, which arrived here from New York.

General Penaloze, who was prominent under General Andrade against General Castro in 1890, is a passenger by the same vessel. He is on his way from Cartagena to Curacao by way of New York, having taken this circuitous route in order to avoid interception.

While General Andrade refused to be interviewed, it is no secret that he is going to Curacao in order to be nearer Venezuela. President Castro has refused to allow General Andrade's wife to land on Venezuelan territory. He will give up his residence here and stay in Curacao. He would not admit that he intended to head an expedition, although he did say that he meant to menace President Castro as much as possible.

Rumors are current in San Juan that he is planning to invade Venezuela by way of Trinidad.

ENGLAND AND THE CANAL.

The New Treaty to Be a Benefit, Not an Injury.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Spectator, dealing with the question of the isthmian canal, says: "When once the canal is made by the United States, opened to the world on equal terms and held so strongly that no power at war with Great Britain will be able to violate its neutrality, the British nation will realize that instead of the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty proving an injury it is a great benefit to the nation.

"That America, though she will make, work and hold the canal, should bind herself to preserve its neutrality as regards a power with which she might be at war is absurd. Such a stipulation would not and could not be observed ten minutes after war was declared. The American isthmian canal, like everything else American, will be used against America's enemies in case of war, whatever jurists may say. We should do the same in case of the Suez canal."

FIVE MINERS KILLED.

Explosion of Gas In a Wilkesbarre Coal Mine.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 26.—A terrific explosion of gas occurred in the Buttonwood mine of the Parrish Coal company, situated one mile south of this city, late yesterday, which caused the death of five men and the injury of nine others. Directly after the explosion occurred a number of brave rescuers at the risk of their lives entered the mine, now filled with dangerous after damp, and brought out the bodies of the dead and injured.

The body of a miner named Philip was the last to be taken out. The rescuers did not come across his remains until 9 o'clock in the evening. So far as can be learned the explosion was caused by the carelessness of one of the Hungarian laborers, who was injured. He opened his safety lamp while at work in his chamber.

SPORTING.

BASKET BALL.

The following changes have been made in the official basket-ball rules of the A. A. U.:

1. Scoring—The committee felt that a field goal should be worth more than twice as much as a goal from the foul line, so decided to allow three points instead of two for a field goal, the goal from foul line remaining the same.

2. Dribbling—This rule was fully discussed in all its phases and suggestions sent in fully considered. It was finally decided to eliminate the calling of a foul for throwing for a goal at the end of a dribble, but to substitute the following: If a player dribbles the ball and throws a goal it shall not count and the ball is to be thrown up in the centre; if he misses it the ball is in play. And again they decided that a dribble is two or more bounces and that it shall not be a foul for a man to catch the ball with two hands and fumble, allow it to bounce on the floor once and catch it again with both hands. It is a foul to dribble with two hands twice.

Substitute Players—Players may not only be changed during the intermission between the halves except for sickness or injury. A player once taken out of the game cannot play again in that game.

When the whistles of the referee, umpire and scorer sound simultaneously, the referee shall decide which one takes precedence.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

An exciting football game was played on the Putnam avenue gridiron yesterday afternoon between the Netherwood Terrors and the Baby Elephants. The score ended in a tie of 5 to 5. The Terrors touchdown was made by Jack Loiseaux after a splendid forty-yard run. The Terrors were captained by Jack VanDeventer and the Elephants by Gordon Stewart. The tie will be played off at a future date.

GOLF.

The semi-finals for the Holiday cup will be played this afternoon on the links of the Park Golf Club. Arthur H. Serrell and William B. Faber have been drawn to play together. The other pair will be Senator Charles A. Reed and Charles L. Nichols. Senator Reed will be unable to be present this afternoon and will default his match to Mr. Nichols. The finals will be played on Election Day at the convenience of the winners this afternoon.

ARMY PLANS.

Reduction of the Philippine Force to Be Checked.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Having reached a decision to check, at least temporarily, the natural reduction which is going on in the United States army in the Philippines as a consequence of the expiration of terms of enlistment Secretary Root has before him details of a plan for replacing these men from the forces now in the United States.

While a final decision as to the particular organizations to exchange has not yet been reached, it is in contemplation to withdraw from the Philippines the Fourth, Thirteenth, Seventeenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Twenty-third infantry, the organizations to return to the United States in the order in which they went to the islands. Before leaving the Philippines there will be many changes in these organizations, however, for it is the intention to exchange into them from the other regiments in the Philippines the men whose terms of enlistment are about to expire.

To take the place of returning troops the department will send out the Eleventh, Twelfth and Fifteenth cavalry and the Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth infantry. The cavalry organizations will be brought up to the maximum strength by recruitment before they go out, while the infantry regiments will be swelled to the exceptional figure of 1,500 men each.

In addition at least 1,000 men will be recruited and sent out in battalion organizations for attachment to depleted regiments in the Philippines.

The quartermaster's department is making every preparation to discharge this heavy transportation problem, and it is believed that the movement can begin within a month after the orders issue.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Industrial Situation Very Satisfactory—Good Prices For Wheat.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

With mills, shops, factories and furnaces assured of full operation until the end of the year as a rule and many contracts already running far into 1902, there is no occasion for anxiety regarding the industrial situation. Jobbers are still urgently asking prompt deliveries by manufacturers of staple lines, while opening transactions in fancy goods for the holidays are unusually early, showing that dealers anticipate a large trade.

Eastern makers of boots and shoes are still engaged on late orders for winter goods, and contracts come in freely from the west for spring lines. In woolen goods conditions are quiet on account of the warm weather, but mills are fully occupied, and producers of knit goods have orders for some time. Strength in the raw material is conspicuous, mills buying freely. In cotton goods the situation is disturbed by the action of a large manufacturer who advanced wages 5 per cent a short time ago and again this week announced a 5 per cent rise to go into effect on Nov. 4.

More satisfactory prices are received by domestic wheat growers, last year's figures being surpassed, notwithstanding the largely increased yield just harvested. Smaller crops of other cereals and hay caused the use of much wheat in fattening live stock, and, with lard more than 2 cents above last year's prices and mess pork $3 a barrel higher, this has been a most profitable proceeding.

Failures for the week numbered in the United States 240 against 205 last year and 29 in Canada against 28 last year.

TWO EXCITING GAMES ON LOCAL GRIDIRONS.

Alis A. A. Won From Columbia F. C, of Jersey City, 12 to 0.

LEAL'S SCHOOL DEFEATED.

RUTGERS PREP. SCHOOL TOO HEAVY FOR LOCAL ELEVEN.

Arlingtons Defeated Plainfield Association Foo ball Team By Score of 2 to 0—Game Was Played at Newark.

The football season in Plainfield was really opened Saturday afternoon, when two interesting contests were played on the gridiron at Hope Common. Big crowds witnessed both games. The Leal's School eleven was defeated by the Rutgers Prep. School by a score of 6 to 0. The Alis A. A. played a clever game, winning from the Columbia Field Club 12 to 0.

The Association football season was also opened, the Plainfield team going to Newark and meeting defeat at the hands of the Arlingtons, 2 to 0.

RUTGERS PREP, 6; LEAL'S SCHOOL, 0.

Although defeated by a score of 6 to 0, after a grim football battle, the Leal's School eleven in its game with the Rutgers Preparatory School team, of New Brunswick, played on the Hope Common, Saturday afternoon, demonstrated that it is a formidable young aggregation. The odds were against the Leal boys. Their opponents were older and heavier, but notwithstanding all this the local team put up a strong fight, and whenever the ball was in its possession the New Brunswick "Preps" were kept guessing.

The single touchdown and the goal from touchdown were scored in the first half after the visitors' attack was repulsed time and again by the plucky lads from Leal's. That ended the scoring, for the latter team went into the fray with renewed determination.

The first half ended with a grandstand play by William Schoonmaker, Leal's quarter, who worked a trick. He skirted the right end and succeeded in making a brilliant dash of some forty yards before he was tackled. The ball was within fifteen yards of the Rutgers goal when the whistle was blown.

In the second half the Leal's boys got down to hard work and it was soon evident that the visitors were on the defensive. They withstood the attack of their opponents much better and on one occasion got the ball on downs. One fumble only marred the even play of the local team. It was at the beginning of this half that William Schoonmaker's feat was repeated by Abbott, who made a brilliant run of forty yards. In this half Leal's quarter advanced with the ball when it was snapped to him on one occasion and the ball was given to Rutgers. The game was called when the ball was in Rutgers territory.

Hall, Abbott, Biglow and the Schoonmaker brothers were the stars of the local team. The marked improvement in Leal's play since the Plainfield High School contest is due to the coaching of Charles Dupee, who came in for a good share of praise on the part of the large crowd, which witnessed the game.

The line up:

Rutgers Prep.		Leal's School.
Cole, Capt.	right end	M. Perkins
Murphy	right tackle	Whiteside
McGibbon	right guard	Biglow
Deven	centre	Minford
Green	left tackle	C. Perkins
Lang	quarter	W. Schoonmaker
Mittag	right half	Abbott
VanVechten	left half	B. Schoonmaker
Hay	full	McGee

Touchdown — VanVechten. Goal from touchdown — Hay. Referee—Charles Dupee, of Plainfield. Umpire—Herman Wright, of New Brunswick. linesmen, Morris Dumont, of Plainfield and John Farrar, of New Brunswick. Time of halves, twenty and fifteen minutes.

ALIS A. A, 12; COLUMBIA F. C, 0.

The Columbia Field Club football kickers, of Jersey City, bucked up against the Alis A. A. eleven of this city Saturday afternoon and were done to the tune of 12 to 0. A crowd of at least five hundred people witnessed the encounter until the game was called on account of darkness toward the end of the second half.

It was easily seen that although the contesting teams were about evenly matched in strength and weight, the agility of the Alis boys told and they succeeded in keeping the visitors on the defensive throughout the major portion of the game. At times the weakness of the Alis line was evident and the plunges of the Columbia boys made holes in it.

Plainfield kicked off and the Jersey City full back advanced the ball some twenty yards, but fumbled when he was downed. A fellow player got the ball. Slowly but steadily the pigskin was worked down into the Alis territory. The Alis boys woke up and made a good stand. They got the ball on downs and then commenced the parade up the field. The local boys banged the line of their opponents and frequently made their five yards on a single down.

Within a short distance of the Columbia goal the ball was passed to Cuming, the local left half back, and he took it over the line. Phillips kicked the goal. When the time was called at the close of the first half the ball had again been forced up the field by the Alis boys to within five yards of the visitors' goal. The Columbia boys were battered pretty heavily and the team was weakening.

In the second half the visitors were hammered, but they put up a strong fight and contested every advance by the local team. The odds were against them, as the Plainfielders did not apparently show any bad effects of the work against them. After some effort Cuming again crossed the line and Wittkie kicked the goal.

It was getting quite dark by this time, and after the two teams had played for a few minutes after the next kick off, the game was called by agreement of the two captains.

McClure, the right tackle, of the Alis team, played the game for the Plainfielders, while Egan also did good work as well as Cuming and Phillips. Giddis was put in for Egan, at right guard, during the second half.

The line up:

ARLINGTON, 2; PLAINFIELD, 0.

The Plainfield Association football team opened its season Saturday by going to Newark and playing a very exciting game with the Arlingtons of that place. After two hard-fought halves the game ended with the score standing 2 to 0 in favor of the Newark team.

Throughout the contest there were many brilliant plays, the local team being especially active. The Arlingtons scored two goals in the first half, but were unable to pass the Plainfielders for any more in the second.

Next Saturday the P. A. F. C. will have for opponents the strong Hoboken team. The game will be played on the Clinton avenue grounds, beginning at 3:30 sharp.

The line-up of the teams Saturday was as follows:

HOUSE WARMING AT PARK CLUB'S HOME

Delightful Affair Marked The Opening of Social Season at That Club.

WAS PRETTILY DECORATED.

MANY FRIENDS OF THE CLUB WERE PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED.

Young People Enjoyed a Dance Later in The Evening—Affair Arranged by House Committee—Those Assisting.

A delightful affair in the nature of a housewarming marked the formal opening of the fashionable Park Club's fall and winter social season at the clubhouse, Saturday evening. In many respects the affair reminded one forcibly of the many pleasant occasions held a few years ago. Mingled together were the social leaders in both the city and borough smart set. Sociability was the feature, it being the desire of those in charge to give all an opportunity to renew acquaintanceship after the quiet days of the summer season. During the early part of the evening Herbert J. Harold's orchestra frequently discoursed popular selections, giving life and pleasure to the merry throng.

The cozy clubhouse was made more beautiful through the arrangement of choice decorations. These consisted of palms, chrysanthemums of varied shades, ferns and autumn leaves. These decorations blended with pretty effect. In the refreshment room the table was embellished through the use of white chrysanthemums and ferns.

It was about 10:30, when the older set began to withdraw, that the young people were given an opportunity to enjoy a delightful programme of dances. There were many young folk present, including several from New York and adjoining cities, and they were much pleased that they had not been forgotten in the arrangement of the programme for the evening. The dancing was continued until nearly midnight, when the festivities were concluded with regrets.

There were many persons who assisted much in making the opening such a success. Primarily the house committee, consisting of Augustus VanDeventer, Charles L. Nichols, Nelson A. Miller, Mrs. I. S. Murray and Mrs. J. P. Northrop, arranged for the opening and it spared no pains in its efforts to make the affair complete.

The house committee was ably assisted by a reception committee, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Hallock, Mr. and Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen and Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee. The two commmittees were kept very busy throughout the evening in attending to various details and entertaining the guests.

Mrs. I. S. Murray and Mrs. J. P. Northrop presided at the tables in the refreshment room, and they were assisted by a bevy of charming young women, consisting of Miss Helen Phillips, Miss Frances Phillips, Miss Saidee Mae Howell, Miss Alice Barlow and Miss Daisy Eisberg.

During the season it is the intention of the house committee to give a series of similar entertainments with dramatics and dances. They will probably be given every two weeks, and will undoubtedly prove just as successful as the first.

The new house which Alexander Russell Bond is building on Netherwood Heights for the occupancy of himself and bride, is nearing completion. Mr. Bond, assisted by a friend, has taken the full charge of construction and when the house is completed it will be a model one.

ATTEMPTED TO PROVE HE RAN "SPEAK EASY"

John Kavanagh and George Green Arraigned in City Court for Fighting.

WHERE DID HE GET DRUNK?

ON THAT QUESTION, THE WHOLE CASE WAS HINGED.

So Much Contradictory Testimony That City Judge Runyon Reserved His Decision to Review the Case in Private.

Through the arrest of two men following a scuffle in the hallway of John Kavanaugh's restaurant, on Grant avenue, Friday evening, the police in the City Court this morning attempted to bring forward evidence to prove that the proprietor was selling liquor illegally.

John Kavanagh and George Green were really on trial for being the participants in the fight, but the assertions and denials on both sides waxed so long and hot that the original charge was lost sight of and the former was everything but directly accused of running a "speak easy."

From the testimony of Patrolman Totten, who made the arrests and the two defendants, Green was the cause of it all. He spent some time in the vicinity of Grant avenue and South Second street, Friday evening, and somehow and somewhere, neither was made clear, he became drunk. In the course of his wanderings he got into Kavanagh's private hallway and the latter took steps to eject him. Green was thrown on the front stoop, and as he fell Kavanagh was seized by Totten and placed under arrest.

Kavanagh claimed to be on his own premises and resisted, finally breaking away from the officer and closing the front door from the inside. Green was then taken into custody and with Kavanagh, who was served with a wafrant, appeared before City Judge Runyon this morning.

The testimony for the greater part of the trial hinged on the question as to where Green got enough liquor to become drunk. He himself pleaded entire ignorance and Michael Watson, proprietor of the Grant avenue house, declared it was not in his place as he had been told to go home after drinking six glasses of ale. Immediately after his ejectment from Kavanagh's, Green told Totten as much that he had procured drink from that place. His whereabouts were accounted for with the exception of from 8:30 until 10:15 and the prosecution endeavored to make it clear that he was in Kavanagh's during that time.

Kavanagh denied giving Green liquor or that he was in his place and declared that instead of Totten arresting him, he should have made complaint against Totten. The testimony in regard to the fight and arrests was so conflicting that the court decided to reserve decision on the whole matter until Saturday morning.

HONORED GREAT KING.

King Alfred's Millenial Commemorated at the North Plainfield High School This Morning.

The millenial of King Alfred the Great was appropriately commemorated at the North Plainfield High School this morning. The two speakers were William H. Larrabee and A. V. D. Honeyman.

Mr. Honeyman described the attractive points of interest in the mother country, particularly those which had a bearing on his subject, which was "Alfred's Country."

Mr. Larrabee spoke on "What Alfred Did." He referred to the learned monarch's grand achievement in uniting the peoples; making the Saxon language the mother tongue instead of Latin, and also of his conversion of the Danes.

BOYS WENT TOO

Relief Hose Company of the Borough Attended Its First Fire.

A flue at the residence of George Egel, Sr., of Somerset street, was found to be on fire early last evening. Warren Engine Company and Relief Hose Company responded to a still alarm sent in and the fire was speedily extinguished, before any damage was done. This is the first occasion that the Relief boys have had the opportunity to answer a call. Eight members of the company, which is composed of twenty lads, were on hand.

GOLF CONTESTS ARE DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Play For Cup at Both of The Local Golf Clubs Saturday Afternoon.

BUT FEW WERE ENTERED.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT BOTH OF THE COURSES, HOWEVER.

Honors at Hillside Went to Robert Abbott And Miss May Holly—N. A. Miller Won at Park—Some Finals For Holiday Cup.

While golf will be played over the local courses well into the winter, the active season with its various competitions is drawing to a close. While there are as many playing over the courses, the entries are not as numerous as they were in the spring and summer. The fact that the various contests have narrowed down to a few is probably responsible.

Saturday proved an ideal day for the sport and both of the local courses were crowded. While the number of entries was not large, much interest in the results was manifested.

PARK GOLF CLUB.

None of the leaders in the play for the President's cup, at the Park Golf Club links, managed to score in Saturday's competition for that trophy. Samuel Townsend, who captured second honors, gained a place up among the leaders and has a possible chance of finishing in front if he wins the remaining two competitions. The day's honors went to Nelson A. Miller while Charles L. Nichols carried off third place.

The day's scores were:

	G.	H.	N.
N. A. Miller	114	30	84
Samuel Townsend	107	21	86
Charles L. Nichols	116	29	87
William B. Faber	113	21	92
George T. Rogers	111	18	93
Arthur H. Serrell	107	13	94

H. D. Hibbard	11
Charles A. Reed	10
George T. Rogers	9
Arthur H. Serrell	7
S. St. John McCutchen	6½
Samuel Townsend	6½
Joseph H. Howell	6
H. G. Phillips	6
Charles W. McCutchen	6
Allan B. Laing	5½
Morgan T. Townsend	5
Charles B. Morse	5
William A. Townsend	5
Frank Rogers	5
Lesley W. Hallock	5
Joseph O. McKelvey	4½
Charles L. Nichols	4
James H. Simpson	3
Joseph L. Myers	3
Townsend Bushmore	3
Herbert S. Rogers	3
Nelson A. Miller	3
William B. Faber	2½
William J. Butfield	2
Henry O. Wells	2
Fred P. Taylor	1
Henry Studdiford	1
W. de la R. Anderson	½

The semi-finals for the Holiday cup were also played during the afternoon, Arthur H. Serrell and William B. Faber played together, Serrell giving Faber eight handicap on the eighteen holes. Charles L. Nichols and Senator Charles A. Reed were drawn for the other match, but Senator Reed was unable to be present and defaulted the match.

Serrell and Faber had a close match of it. At the end of the first round, they were even up. Faber finally won out two up. Serrell's ragged approaches cost him the match. Charles B. Morse acted as umpire for the match. The finals will be played off on Election Day.

HILLSIDE TENNIS AND GOLF CLUB.

As the season is drawing to a close, the number of competitors in the various events at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club seems to decrease and, while the course is filled with players, there is a gradual dropping off in the number of those who participate in the contest for the various trophies.

Saturday Miss Margaret Goddard was the only contestant for the Mellick cup and by winning three points she now holds fourth position with a total number of 10½ points. Miss VanHerwerden still holds the lead with 30½ points and she is considered the winner of the trophy. Miss Goddard's score is as follows:

	G.	H.	N.
Miss Margaret Goddard	130	18	112

The standing for the trophy to date is as follows:

	Points.
Miss VanHerwerden	30½
Miss Daisy Eisberg	12½
Miss Maud VanBoskerck	11
Miss Margaret Goddard	10½
Miss May Holly	8
Miss Margaret Tracy	6
Miss Adelaide Ball	5½
Miss Mary Whiton	3
Miss Edith Tracy	3
Miss Marjorie Fleming	2
Miss May Evans	1
Miss Margaret Holy	1

Another interesting event of the morning was the final play for the Fisk Handicap cup Miss May Holly and Miss Lida VanHerwerden. Miss Holly won the competition 5 up and 3 to go, but she was given 28 strokes on Miss VanHerwerden. The large handicap given Miss Holly was too much for Miss VanHerwerden, although the latter played a strong game and would have won no doubt on even terms.

The only event of the afternoon was the weekly play for the Golf Committee cup and there were just seven contestants who turned in their scores. Robert Abbbott won first honors which gives him a total of eight points. This places him in third position. Roger F. Murray finished and with a total of six and one-half points, he is now tie with W.L Glenney for fourth position. They each had three points and with a-half additional they are now tie with Dr. Richards who has three and one-half points.

The scores for the Golf Committee cup are as follows:

	G.	H.	N.
Robert Abbott	85	6	79
Roger F. Murray	89	7	82
Dr. B. VanD. Hedges	90	6	84

Dr. F. C. Ard	90	5	85

The harvest home at Muhlenberg Hospital will be held Thursday, November 7, and not this week Thursday.

ENLARGING PLANT.

Demands on Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Company Necessitate a Larger Plant in This City.

Ground was broken this morning to enlarge the plant of the Hibbard Rodman-Ely Safe Company on Clinton avenue. This company has found that its present plant is wholly inadequate for the business being done and it is the purpose to make the plant twice as large. In all the company owns 1,400 feet along the railroad and no doubt all of this will be used. In the course of time the plant at Amboy will be merged into the one in this city.

In enlarging the plant it will be necessary to increase the number of employes. The prospects for the future are very bright for the company as large orders are being received every day for safes. Alexander Humphrey, of New York, is president of the company, and H. D. Hibbard, of this city is the vice-president.

A Good Entertainment.

J. Williams Macy has appeared eleven years in the Newark Y. M. C. A. Course and eight years in the Boston Course. Mr. Macy's great versatility enables him to give an enjoyable evening of humor, pathos, song and story. He will entertain with Miss Park in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course entertainment this evening.

FIGHTING FOR WILL THAT CAN'T BE FOUND

Continuation of the Gisser Will Case in Orphan's Court at Somerville.

CASE ADJOURNED FOR WEEK.

MRS. OCTAVIO MYERS, A STEP DAUGHTER, CLAIMS SHE IS INTERESTED.

Alleges That a Former Will Provides for Her—Legal Battle Over the Caveat Filed by Mrs. Myers—Before Judge Schenck.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Oct. 28.—The Charlotte A. A. Gisser will case came up again in the Orphan's court Friday, before Judge Schenck, and it is quite possible there will be considerable time before the dispute is settled.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Gisser committed suicide in North Plainfield with the aid of a 32 calibre revolver. Her will was offered to Surrogate H. Newton Spencer for probate and her stepdaughter, Mrs. Octavia Myers, filed a caveat against it, although she was not mentioned in the will nor would inherit under the intestate laws. Her lawyer, Winfield S. Angleman, of Plainfield, claims she was an heir under a previous will and that all the property Mrs. Gisser had came from Mrs. Myers' father.

The first will cannot be found, and Friday Mr. Angleman cited some decisions in different cases to show that it required the same testamentary capacity to revoke as it did to make a will.

W. V. Steele, of this place, the counsel for James P. Powers, of Elizabeth, the executor of the present will, admitted that it was true what Mr. Angleman claimed in regard to destroying and making a will, but the proper remedy, he thought, was to offer the former will, the one Mrs. Myers claims under, and that the only right that the statute gave her to caveat was that a person would take under the will caveated against or under the intestate laws. Therefore, he said, if the former will is not produced the present one should be admitted to probate.

Mr. Angleman then again told how they had not been able to obtain the old will. It was said to be among the papers of the deceased, but the executor could not find it. He claimed they had a perfect right to come in and caveat and a right to be heard in the matter. If the former will is not found, he said he would file a bill in chancery to establish the old will as a last document.

Judge Schenck laid the matter over for one week, when he will decide whether or not Mrs. Myers has a right to caveat.

TOO MUCH PROSPERITY.

'Twas That Which Caused the Downfall of a Trio of Friends Yesterday.

A penitent trio of prisoners appeared before City Judge Runyon, this morning, all of who owed their downfall to Thomas Brennan's inability to stand prosperity. They were Brennen himself, who lives on West Third street, John Gardner, of Elizabeth and Patrick Purcell, of Cranford.

Brennan is a machinist but by practicing frugality, he laid by enough to buy himself a horse, which the former owner said was a high stepper and once belonged to Nancy Hank's class. Yesterday he took the animal out for a brush and ended up in Garwood where he met Gardner and Purcell. After drinking the health of each other and the horse Brennan invited his friends to ride behind the thoroughbred and they returned to this city.

When they reached the West End, Brennan was so anxious to show the envious residents his new trotter that he drove him over the speed limit up and down South Second street, until Patrolman Higgins took all three to the lockup. This morning the court thought they had been punished enough by being in jail all night and let them go.

To Compel Exchange.

A bill has been filed in the Court of Chancery by Reed & Coddington, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Cutter, to compel the specific performance of an agreement of exchange made with Mrs. Anna Hanigan. Mrs. Hanigan, it is alleged, agreed to convey a property on Sandford avenue in exchange for another on Richmond street, on certain terms.

LITERARY.

The November number of Scribner's Magazine contains the opening chapters of F. Hopkinson Smith's longest and most important story, "The Fortunes of Oliver Horn." In the concluding paper on "Russia of Today," Henry Norman deals with those large questions of national policy and diplomacy that bear so intimately on the future peace of the world. General F. V. Greene in his final paper on the United States Army, makes an interesting comparison between the armies of '61 and of today, and gives some impressive facts regarding the magnitude of the battles and the great cost in human life of the War of the Rebellion. In an article on "Marquis Ito, The Great Man of Japan," Frederick Palmer gives an interesting account of the early adventures and accomplishments of the great Japanese statesman. The second article by President Roosevelt, "With the Cougar Hounds," describes a number of encounters with the cougars and contains a great deal of matter that is distinctly valuable to the naturalist and the student of animal life.

Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, contributes an interesting paper to the November Cosmopolitan on "The Overcrowding of Great Cities and Remedies for It." Apropos of the discussion of the invasion of England by Americans, Edmund Gosse furnishes in the same number an essay scoring Englishmen for their narrowness of intellect. Incidentally he has a hit at American intellectual life in the twentieth century.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

The Herald Square Theatre is the scene of another great musical triumph, as Dan Daly and the new Geo. W. Lederer production "The New Yorkers" are filling that spacious playhouse at every performance these days. The play is unusually bright and entertaining, and Dan Daly is funnier than ever in his inimitable way. Catchy musical numbers are a feature of the production, and "Strolling in Society," "Take Me Back to Herald Square" and "When You Sail for Paris in the Spring," are among those which are being whistled and hummed about town. Miss Virginia Earl is charming as usual in the part of "Olive Green," and the other prominent members of the supporting company including, William Cameron, George Schiller, Thos. Evans, Rose Beaumont, Bonnie Clark, Carrie Perkins and Anna Laughlin, are scoring individual success. A special matinee will be given Election Day.

Rev. John McMurray, of the Monroe Avenue church, has returned from Mt. Freedom, N. J., where he attended a meeting of Methodists.

GREAT INDUSTRIAL GROWTH.

SUMMARY OF DEVELOPMENT OF MANUFACTORIES FOR YEAR.

Interesting Facts Contained in Report of Chief of New Jersey Bureau of Statistics.

William Stainsby, Chief of the New Jersey Bureau of Statistics, has prepared for his report of this year a statement showing the new manufacturing enterprises commenced, and old establishments enlarged, during the twelve months ending Au ust 30, 1901, which shows a wonderful development in industrial lines during that period in New Jersey.

The information was obtained from the most reliable sources at the command of the Bureau and may be regarded as substantially correct.

Many of the new manufacturing plants in the list are actually completed; others are in course of erection, and some few had not yet progressed beyond the stage of planning the buildings, at the time the report was compiled. The statement covers 153 separate establishments; of this number 119 are new, and 34 are enlargements of old plants. Only in a comparatively few instances were the projectors of the new industries prepared to give a definite statement as to the amount of capital to be invested, that being obviously dependent upon the cost of work and other contingencies that could not be foreseen. The same as to the hands to be employed; where figures are given, they are only estimates which may fall short, or be ahead of the number which will be required when the shops are completed and ready for work.

The new capital to be invested, accepting the estimates of the firms who have reported on the subject, is about $9 000,000, and the additional number of hands who will find employment through these new enterprises is, also by estimate, nearly 18,000.

Below is given the number of new establishments and enlargements in some of the leading lines, as tabulated from the report.

	New.	Enlargements.
Machinery and metal lines	22	12
Silk	11	1
Oils, paints and chemicals	6	1
Leather goods and shoes	7	1
Pottery and porcelains	5	2
Glass	4	3
Tobacco	4	1
Shirt manufacture	3	1
Electrical	2	1
Carpet and rugs	2	1
All others	53	10
Total	119	34

Naturally, the location selected for most of these new works, particularly the larger ones, are in and about the old established industrial centers of the State, such as Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, Paterson and Passaic. But almost every section of New Jersey where good transportation facilities either by rail or water exists, has received some share of the industrial growth. In addition to the cities above named, the principal places benefited are Trenton, Camden, Bayonne, Rahway, Millville, Burlington, Freehold, Keyport and Rutherford.

THE M'KINLEY ARCH.

Association Issues a Statement Regarding the Washington Memorial.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The William McKinley National Memorial Arch association has issued the following statement to the public:

"President McKinley's memory is enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen, but their unexampled affection demands expression in a material memorial, national in character, to be erected at the national capital, the scene of his greatest labors and achievements. The William McKinley National Memorial Arch association has been incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia to meet this desire by the erection of a memorial arch in honor of President McKinley in the city of Washington by national popular subscription.

"President Roosevelt has accepted honorary membership in the association.

"It is proposed to place the memorial arch preferably at the Washington approach to the memorial bridge across the Potomac connecting Washington and Arlington, which President McKinley earnestly desired and recommended to congress as 'a monument to American patriotism.'

"Contributors to its fund will be made members of the William McKinley National Memorial Arch association. The treasurer, Hon. Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury of the United States, Washington, will receive all contributions and will forward certificates of membership to all contributors. Contributions of money may be handed to postmasters, managers of telegraph, telephone and express offices or deposited with banks or other financial institutions and newspapers. They are hereby authorized and requested to receive and transmit contributions to the treasurer.

"The association heartily invites and confidently expects the co-operation of the governors of states and territories, the mayors of cities and all other public officials, of the press of the country, of the churches, colleges and schools and of all organized societies and requests that they will take immediate action to promote its objects by making and securing subscriptions. All communications except remittances should be addressed to Thomas F. Walsh, Washington.

"The association is in sympathy with the proposition to erect a suitable memorial to the late president at his grave in Canton, O."

The Final Week at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Oct. 28.—This is farewell week at the Pan-American exposition and as such will crowd all manner of entertainment into a few days. Western New York will own the exposition on Wednesday. In addition this will be exhibitors' day, and from all the various exhibits valuable and useful souvenirs will be distributed to the visitors. Negotiations are in progress to secure a football game between teams of national reputation for the afternoon of Saturday. The last day of the City of Light will be fittingly celebrated. One of the events of farewell day will be a sham battle in the esplanade, the opposing forces being the regulars stationed at Fort Porter and the Indians from the Indian congress, many of whom have participated in actual warfare upon the plains. This sham battle will be as realistic as any imitation can be.

No News From Miss Stone.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 28.—During the last few days there has been a voluminous exchange of dispatches in cipher between Spencer Eddy, secretary of the United States legation, and Consul General Dickinson, who is now in Sofia, regarding the efforts to rescue Miss Stone, the abducted American missionary, from the brigands. The legation is reticent, and nothing has been made public as to the progress of the negotiations. A dispatch from Samakov, Bulgaria, dated Oct. 27, 5:30 p. m., says, "The release of Miss Stone, the missionary, has not yet been effected."

Quiet Sunday at Wilkesbarre.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 28.—Yesterday was the fourth Sunday of the street car strike and the first of the four Sundays to pass off without a riot. A boy was arrested for throwing a stone at a Bellevue car, but this was the extent of disorder. President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers came here on his way to attend the Mitchell day celebration in Wilkesbarre tomorrow. He commended the course of the local mine workers in taking up the fight of the street car men.

Four Miners Entombed.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 28.—A bad cavein occurred in the Highland Boy mine, near here, in which four miners were entombed. After working for twelve hours rescuers succeeded in reaching and getting two of the men out alive. The other two miners, although still entombed, are alive, and their signals can be heard distinctly by the rescuers, who are bending every effort to reach their comrades.

Warlike Preparations.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—"The Chilean government announces the mobilization of the army for the end of November, ostensibly for maneuvers," says a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Buenos Ayres. "The Argentine fleet has been ordered to be provisioned and coaled, and the sailors are working day and night. Three thousand manifestants have arrived."

A Rock Drilling Contest.

LEADVILLE, Colo., Oct. 28.—Malley and Chamberlain, a Leadville rock drilling team, won first money, $750, and the world's indoor championship as a result of a three days' contest here. They drilled forty and one-eighth inches in fifteen minutes. The second money goes to Ross and McNichols of British Columbia.

A FIGHT IN PANAY.

Twenty-five Insurgents Killed Near Passi.

GOOD REPORTS FROM GENERAL HUGHES

Aggressive Tactics of Americans Having a Pacifying Influence. The Recent Trouble In Samar Due to Lack of Food.

MANILA, Oct. 28.—The constabulary report a fight with insurgents near Passi, province of Iloilo, island of Panay, in which twenty-five insurgents were killed and three captured, together with a quantity of arms and ammunition.

The news from General Hughes regarding conditions in the island of Cebu is encouraging. Lorega has surrendered, with his entire force and one cannon and seven rifles, while General Hughes is negotiating for the surrender of Maxilot, who styles himself "governor politico militar." His surrender will mean the pacification of the province.

Lack of food and the harassing effects of the aggressive tactics now pursued by the American forces are having their influence upon the natives. In many places where rice is doled out by the government only enough is given for one meal, so that it is hardly possible for any large quantity to find its way to the insurgents.

It is believed that the recent manifestations in the island of Samar were chiefly due to the lack of food, the insurgents finding it necessary to make outlets to the coast in order to obtain this.

The first labor problem growing out of the new tariff has arisen. A hat and umbrella factory employing 600 hands has found it necessary to close. The lawyers are making a protest to the commission, urging protection, as the same goods from Germany can be sold at half the price it takes to manufacture them here.

Dispatches from Catbalogan, Samar, say that stringent and energetic measures are being taken to suppress the insurrection in that island. General Smith has notified all the presidentes and head men of the pueblos that in order to avoid trouble they must surrender all arms and turn over the persons implicated in the Balangiga massacre before Nov. 6, threatening that otherwise the presidentes will be sent to the island of Guam, the villages destroyed and the property confiscated. Marines under Major Littleton W. T. Waller have been stationed at Balangiga and Basey, and ten gunboats are vigilantly patrolling the Samar coast. Most of the towns in the southern part of the island have been destroyed.

Naval Cadet Loveman Nos, commanding the gunboat Mariveles, who had gone ashore at Nipa-Nipa, south Samar, to prevent smuggling, was attacked by the insurgents. He lost his revolver and was shot and boloed.

Lieutenant Louis J. Van Schaick reports that in an attack by insurgents on the municipal police and scouts at Sabang one scout was killed and two of the police were captured. The insurgents secured two Krag-Jorgensen rifles, two shotguns and 200 rounds of ammunition. Lieutenant Van Schaick has been ordered to occupy the barrio, or suburb, of Sabang.

Masonic Memorial Dedicated.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The magnificent memorial erected by Mecca temple, Mystic Shrine, at Kensico cemetery was dedicated yesterday in the presence of a notable gathering of Freemasons. The memorial is located in the Shriners' large plot in the cemetery and is a granite stairway surmounted by two massive panther bodied sphinxes and was erected to the memory of the late potentate of Mecca temple, Augustus W. Peters, thirty-third degree. A bronze medallion portrait of Potentate Peters in bas-relief adorns the facade of one of the columns, and underneath that is a bronze tablet bearing the dates of his birth and death.

Bold Safe Robbery.

BEREA, O., Oct. 28.—One of the boldest safe robberies ever perpetrated in this vicinity occurred in almost the heart of the village. The hardware store of Lawrence & Brightman was entered, the large safe was wrecked, and the robbers made good their escape, carrying with them booty aggregating more than $100,000. Baldwin university bears the heaviest loss. C. C. Brightman, the junior member of the firm, is also treasurer and a trustee of Baldwin university, and all of the valuable papers of the institution which were left in Brightman's custody were kept in the safe.

Sick Citizens Can Vote.

In Victoria a sick voter can record his vote by post; it has been enacted that he can obtain his ballot paper through the local postmaster from the returning officer, fill it up in the presence of the policeman, who must not look at the name he is writing, and post it.—N. Y. Sun.

WEYLER IS A LIBERAL

Spanish War Minister Creates a Sensation.

MILITARY DUTIES ARE FOREMOST.

The General May Succeed Sagasta as Premier, and His Declarations Cause Considerable Surprise.

MADRID, Oct. 28.—During the sitting of the Spanish chamber of deputies, which proved sensational, Senor Romero y Robledo cleverly led the minister of war, General Weyler, to define his attitude and intentions. General Weyler declared that while the war in Cuba lasted his views were totally distinct from those of the Liberal party, but that when the war was at an end the motive for separation disappeared, and he saw nothing to prevent him attaching himself to a Liberal government.

"I have always faithfully observed discipline," he continued, "and he who talks of dictatorship is the enemy of discipline. Our recent maneuvers have proved that good feeling exists between the people and the army. As for dictatorship no one thinks of such a thing. Dictators are the offspring of circumstances.

"For myself I may say this: I have never thought of being one, nor do I now. Nevertheless, if my aid were asked at a moment of gravity I do not know how I should decide between my political and military duties, but I should always incline toward the latter."

Loud and prolonged uproar interrupted the minister of war, and several of his ministerial colleagues were unable to restrain expressions of surprise at his words.

"I am a politician and a Liberal," he resumed, "but before all I am a soldier, and if necessary I will defend our institutions and parliament."

Senor Romero rejoined, "I take note of the declarations of the minister of war on the subject of a dictatorship."

General Weyler's speech largely occupies public attention in view of the possibility that he may become premier if Senor Sagasta, whose health is indifferent, should find it necessary to retire. El Imparcial remarks that "a dark cloud enshrouds General Weyler since the debate."

Hunting For Tobacco Lands.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Secretary Wilson announces that experts of the agricultural department will hunt all over the United States and its new possessions for conditions favorable to the cultivation of the filler tobacco such as is now raised in Cuba, so that if possible all the filler tobacco used in this country eventually may be raised within our boundaries. "The United States," he said, "is now paying $8,000,000 for wrapper tobacco. We have succeeded in finding in this country the conditions under which all the wrapper tobacco we need can be raised here, and experts of the department of agriculture for the first time are seeking soils adaptable to the cultivation of the fine filler product. We have parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Texas selected for the investigations of our experts, and land for similar purposes will be selected in all our new island possessions, with a view to ascertaining how and under what conditions the filler product can be built up here."

Killed a Boy For Fifty Cents.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 28.—"I killed a boy last night," said Tobin Hansen, a Dane, thirty-five years of age, to the officer in charge when he walked into the central police station. "I killed him for money, and I only got 50 cents. That is not enough, so I came to give myself up." Hansen described the locality in which the deed had been committed, and the police found the boy's body. It was identified as that of Samuel Marotte, a son of Samuel Marotte, a well known spice and coffee merchant.

Seriously Injured at Football.

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Arthur Hadley, a member of the Mechanicsville Young Men's Christian association football team, was seriously injured in a game here. During the game he was rendered unconscious, and it was not until he had been worked over for ten minutes that he was revived. It was discovered he had suffered internal injuries.

To Breed Hornless Herefords.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Oct. 28.—Warren Gammon of Des Moines, Ia., noted as a breeder of registered cattle, has secured eleven of the seventeen known mulley Hereford cattle in the United States for the purpose of establishing a distinct new breed of cattle to be known as the Polled Herefords.

Postoffice Thief Located.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 28.—J. B. Evans, better known as "Topeka Joe," the famous postoffice robber who escaped jail here recently, has been located in the woods near Sarnia, Canada, and a posse of men is on his track. There is a heavy reward for his recapture.

Jockey Sloane Takes a Fall.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—"Cash" Sloane, the American jockey, fell yesterday afternoon while riding on the race course at Warsaw. He was picked up unconscious, but revived before he was taken to his residence.

Russian Town Burned.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—"The town of Bobruisk, in the government of Minsk, has been destroyed by fire," says a dispatch to The Daily Mail from St. Petersburg, "and several lives have been lost."

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; light northerly winds, becoming variable.

HE ALONE TO BLAME.

Father of Leon Czolgosz Has Little Sympathy For His Son.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 28.—The last message from the father of Leon Czolgosz, the condemned assassin who will pay the penalty for his terrible crime in Auburn prison tomorrow morning, comes from an interview given yesterday afternoon.

The elder Czolgosz was asked what he had to say finally to his unfortunate son. The old man's eyes filled with tears as he replied deliberately: "Tell Leon that I hope that he may rest in peace, that he will become reconciled to God and will meet his end bravely. Tell him that as much as I and all of our family regret his most unhappy plight we can do nothing to interfere, that he alone is responsible for his unfortunate position and that he must meet his punishment as a consequence."

Further conversation elicited the information that the purpose of the visit of Waldeck Czolgosz to Auburn is to arrange for the disposition of the body after the law's mandate has been carried out. No communication has been received by the elder Czolgosz from Waldeck, and this is taken to mean that the father's presence is not desired at the death scene. The entire arrangement of the after part of the law's course are in Waldeck's hands, and what steps he will take is a matter of uncertainty.

No Notoriety For Czolgosz.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The time that Leon F. Czolgosz, assassin of President McKinley, has to live is reckoned by hours now, but there has been no relaxation of the stringent rule under which the prisoner has been secluded since his confinement. Immediately after the execution the clothing of the murderer, with the vast accumulation of mail that came to the prison for him, will be burned, and, if possible, the request of the parents of the dead man for his remains will be evaded. It is feared that the removal of his body to Cleveland would lead to scenes of an unfortunate nature, and the prison officials are very anxious to avoid anything of the kind. The plan of burning the clothing and letters of the murderer will prevent the exhibition of relics by those who pander to the morbid. The hour of 7 tomorrow morning is the time set for the execution.

THE KING HAS A CANCER.

It Is Asserted That Three Operations Have Been Performed.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Reynolds' Weekly Newspaper is the first British paper to assert that King Edward is suffering from cancer of the throat. It declares that since his majesty's accession three operations have been performed for the removal of papilloma on the left vocal chord and that one was removed from the right vocal chord last week.

"Assistance was hastily summoned," says this journal, "as his majesty was breathing with difficulty, and an immediate operation was performed. But it was regarded as only a temporary relief, the injured epithelium now having become a cancerous growth, and serious developments are expected."

Forest Fires In Pennsylvania.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 28.—The western slope of the Alleghany mountains through Fayette county is now ablaze from the Yough river through into West Virginia, and mountaineers are fleeing from their doomed homes with their families. Careless hunters started a dozen fires during the past week, and the brush is as dry as tinder. Streams that were never known to go dry are without water, and only a drenching rain will stop the swiftly spreading destruction. The fire has been spreading for a week, and the glare at night can be seen for miles. The destruction has been enormous to crops, fences, barns, stock and dwellings.

Knitting Mill Hands Strike.

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The Mohawk Knitting mill at Cohoes is idle owing to a strike of the knitters and winders. The men demanded that a man who had been discharged for what they claim is a trivial offense be taken back. The demands of the men were refused, and they quit work, causing a suspension of operations, throwing out of employment about 500 men and women. The men say they will not return to work unless the discharged employee is taken back, and the company refuses to do so. It is not likely that the mills will be started today.

Car Shortage For Coal Carrying.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—The Ledger in its coal article today says: The anthracite coal trade goes along in about the same channel. The demand is good, but not excessive. The prudent are ordering coal and filling their bins, but the advent of cold weather will, it is expected, soon produce a rush of orders that will tax the facilities for delivery. Car shortage restricts the movement, and it is not at all improved, the roads universally complaining that their equipment is not equal to the traffic demands upon it.

Mulattos Not Heirs.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 28.—The court of common pleas in Florence county, this state, last week decided that a marriage contracted in this state between a white man and negro woman in 1867 was invalid and that the children born of such marriage do not inherit from an estate left to the lawful grandchildren of the testatrix. The real estate in dispute is said to be valuable, and the loss will be heavy to the mulatto claimants.

A Score Eaten by Wolves.

VIENNA, Oct. 28.—Twenty-three persons have been eaten by wolves, says the Neues Wiener Journal, while working in the fields near Witebsk, Poland.

SHORT CUT TO HAWAII.

Steamship Company to Send Cargoes Across the Isthmus.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—It is reported in maritime circles that an arrangement has been effected between the Panama Railroad company and the American-Hawaiian Steamship company, now plying between New York and Philadelphia and San Francisco and the Hawaiian Islands, by which the cargoes will be transferred at the isthmus to the railroad. This transshipment would mean a clear saving of forty-five days in a voyage which occupies about four months and would do away with the present perilous trip through the strait of Magellan. It also means an immense saving in coal, as the new arrangement would bring the terminus of the line 9,000 miles nearer. Agents of the steamship company declined to confirm the statement that such an agreement had been effected, but as negotiations to that end have been pending general credence is given to the report.

The American-Hawaiian Steamship company has been engaged for a year past in conveying sugar from our tropical possessions and in return voyages has carried out quantities of machinery and manufactured goods. A fleet of six vessels is now in service, and three more vessels are about to be added.

By the proposed arrangement the fleet will be divided, and three vessels will ply between this port and New York and Colon, the Atlantic port, on the isthmus, while the other three will run between Hawaii, San Francisco and Panama on the Pacific coast. The distance from Philadelphia to Colon is 1,981 miles, while the long voyage "round the Horn" to Panama is in round figures 11,000 miles.

AMERICAN INVASION.

Proposition of Pittsburger Favorably Received In Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—The offer of Murry A. Verner of Pittsburg to buy all the municipal and private street railways of St. Petersburg, introduce electrical traction and organize a complete system of electric tramways has been received very favorably by the local press. The municipal council has been discussing the matter for several years, but Mr. Verner's offer is the first genuine step toward the introduction of electricity. The city owns three lines, and a number of other lines are owned and operated by two private companies. The city has begun legal proceedings against these companies with a view to unifying all the surface traction companies, and Mr. Verner's offer stipulates that the city shall turn the private lines over to him when the matter has been litigated.

Mr. Verner's offer is regarded by the press as straightforward, businesslike and fair. It is too early to predict success, since many cooks help make a broth in this city, but the municipal council was not approached until Mr. Verner, who has been to St. Petersburg three times within fourteen months, had carefully studied the whole problem from a financial and technical point of view and through his local representative, Mr. H. A. Heydecker, the American vice consul, had sounded various authorities about the matter.

London Befogged.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—West and central London have been enveloped in a black fog, which plunged the entire fashionable part of the city into impenetrable darkness. The fog found its way into the theaters and music halls until in many cases the stage was scarcely visible. Cabs took refuge under the lights of public houses, refusing to move, and scores of busses were abandoned around important landmarks, their drivers not daring to proceed. The scenes about the emptying theaters were chaotic, the cries of the confused and helpless people only adding to the confusion.

An Upset Lamp Burns Five.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 28.—Thirteen-month-old Robbie Busler at his home, 40 Arch street, Allegheny, pulled a lighted lamp from a table and was fatally burned. His mother, Mary Busler, in her efforts to save the baby, was seriously burned about the head and breast. Her recovery is doubtful. Three neighbors, Peter Grimes, Patrick McDermot and James McGovern, were all painfully burned about the face and hands while extinguishing the flames which enveloped the mother and child and threatened the destruction of the house.

The President's Birthday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Yesterday was the forty-third anniversary of the birth of President Roosevelt. Occurring on Sunday, there was no formal celebration, and the day was spent very quietly. Dr. Nichols, a friend from Baltimore, was at the White House a portion of the day, and at night Commander Cowles was a guest at dinner. The president attended religious services at Grace Reformed church, as usual.

Neck Broken Playing Football.

COLUMBUS, O. Oct. 28.—John Sigrist, center rush of the Ohio State University football team, is at one of the city hospitals with a broken neck. Sigrist was injured in the game with Western Reserve. An X ray examination showed that the third cervical vertebra was fractured. An operation will be performed, but there is little hope that it will avail. Sigrist's body is paralyzed from the shoulders down.

Cuban Customs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—A comparative statement issued by the division of insular affairs of the war department shows that the total receipts from customs sources in Cuba for the first nine months of 1901 were $11,584,837; for the same period of 1900, $11,828,742, and for 1899, $10,797,407.

A THRILLING CHASE.

Suspected Express Robber Outwits Detectives.

MONTANA BILL OFFERED IN NASHVILLE

When Arrested, the Man Fights His Way Clear and Speeds Away With Stolen Conveyances—Bloodhounds Shot.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 28.—A desperate man fought his way clear of two city detectives here and after a thrilling chase made good his escape. In his race for liberty he utilized a two horse wagon team, a horse and buggy and a riding horse, all forcibly taken, while two dead bloodhounds mark the first portion of his trail.

Officers believe the man is one of the gang that held up the Great Northern express near Wagner, Mon., last June, his attempt to get change for a $20 bill of the series secured in that robbery attracting attention of the police to him.

A rawboned man about 5 feet 10 inches high, with florid complexion, offered the bill in payment of a small purchase made in a storehouse on the public square. Difficulty in making the change caused the salesman to closely notice the bill, which proved to be on the Montana bank. The police were quietly notified, the clerk meanwhile delaying the matter of change.

Detectives Dwyer and Dickens were soon on hand and, approaching the man, demanded his name.

"Ferguson," was the reply, and after another question or two Detective Dwyer informed the man he was under arrest. Quick as a flash Ferguson had a revolver in each hand and started for the door. A hand to hand fight ensued, both officers grappling with the stranger, who proved more than a match for them. Using his pistols as clubs he fought his way to the door and fled down the street.

A passing ice wagon caught his attention, and the three negro occupants were soon out of his way. Then at a fire engine clip the wagon was headed across the Cumberland river bridge into East Nashville, a fusillade of shots following it.

Out Woodland street went the flying team, but a sudden turn into First street brought it to grief. One of the horses fell and broke its leg, but the fugitive was not to be delayed. Running across First street, he held up an old negro who was driving by in a buggy, and the flight was continued.

Out into the commons he sped. Once the buggy overturned, but was quickly righted.

Finally the tired horse was abandoned, and after a dive into Shelby park on foot the supposed bandit secured another horse hitched at a point near the park. Then, after a sensational ride, the horse was left and the flight continued on foot. Farther out pursuers found two of their bloodhounds shot to death a short distance apart, and after that the trace of the man was lost.

The sheriff, with a large posse, is out scouring the country for the missing man. When the buggy was abandoned, the man threw away a wallet containing $1,040 in ten and twenty dollar bills of the Montana bank. The money was recovered by Chief of Police Curran.

Twenty-one Fire Victims.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—A large force of workmen are engaged in clearing away the debris at the scene of Friday's fatal fire—Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s furniture store on Market street. No bodies have been found since the twenty-first victim of the fire was recovered from the ruins. The police and fire officials believe that some of the missing may still be in the ruins. There are five bodies at the morgue which cannot be identified, they having been burned beyond recognition.

Delaware Town Destroyed.

LAUREL, Del., Oct. 28.—Delmar, a town of about 1,000 inhabitants, situated in the extreme southern end of this state, has been almost wiped out by fire. Nearly 250 people are homeless, and the property loss is estimated at about $100,000. Owing to the poor facilities for fighting the flames the fire was soon beyond control of the local fire department, and aid had to be asked of Salisbury, Md., a short distance away.

Powers Convicted Again.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Oct. 28.—Ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers has been convicted again of being accessory before the fact to the murder of William Goebel in January, 1900, and for the second time has been sentenced to imprisonment for life. The second trial began Oct. 8 and has continued with three sessions daily, court adjourning late at night.

Large Issue of Japanese Bonds.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 28.—The Japanese treasury announces the issue of bonds to the amount of 16,500,000 yen. Of this sum 8,000,000 yen will be devoted to the redemption of other bonds, while the remainder will be utilized in defraying the cost of the Chinese expedition.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Duchess of Manchester, who was Miss Helena Zimmerman of Cincinnati, was accouched of a daughter Saturday. Both mother and the child are doing well. The infant will receive the names Mary Alva Montagu.

Another Mine Explosion Victim.

How It Stands.

The present political campaign in New Jersey this year differs in several respects from those of previous years. If the reports from all over the State are to be believed, the two gubernatorial candidates have succeeded in stirring up more genuine enthusiasm than has been seen for many years outside of a National campaign. This is said to be particularly true of South Jersey where both Franklin Murphy and Mayor James M. Seymour have lately been directing their energies.

It has not only been a campaign of education, but one of personal acquaintance. Both candidates have spent a great deal of time in meeting voters personally and speaking on the issues and the situation. Thousands of hands have been shaken and then there have been the speeches. Each candidate was accompanied by a little group of his party's cleverest speakers who have assisted at the receptions and thrown in a few telling arguments from the platform.

As far as Plainfield is now concerned it cannot be said that there is a great deal of enthusiasm over the State election on the part of either side. More attention seems to be drawn to the charter election and the vote on the local candidates. The two elections have always been separate heretofore and the people have not yet grown accustomed to considering them together. In the State election party lines will evidently be drawn very closely. For the county candidates there is likely to be more or less scratching. The fact that each ticket contains a Plainfield man will largely influence this. Then there is a strong feeling among many local Republicans against Frederick Miller. Both Moffett and Sulzer are likely to profit by that feeling.

Judging from what may be heard on the street corners and at the station, there is going to be a heavy demand for pasters in the city election. The chief fight appears to be likely over the ward Councilmen and Councilmen-at-large. The mutterings in the Second ward are particularly apparent. It cannot be said to arise from any strong feeling against the Republican administration but rather appears in the nature of a factional disturbance.

If the anti-administration forces succeed in uniting before election, there is a possibility of the personel of the Common Council being slightly changed. Failure, however, to poll their issues and make a solid fight will mean a return of the present administration. Alone the Democrats cannot hope for victory here and it is only with the assistance of the dissatisfied Republicans and the independent vote that they can elect a single man to a city office.

It is probable that the city of Plainfield will eventually have a new High School. A visit to the present quarters of that department of the city public schools makes it very evident that the present quarters are decidedly cramped. The Board of Education has been working toward the desired end for some time but the troubles over the new school law put a stop to the movement temporarily. If the board will keep the public fully informed as to its progress in the matter, there is likely to be but little opposition to the erection of a new High School building if constructed on economical lines.

The Philadelphia Record relates that when the great English advertiser, Harmsworth, was asked whether he used street car and omnibus advertising and posters he said: "No, I don't, because I don't believe in them. They may do for some advertisers, but we have tried them and found they did not pay us. We pin our faith to newspapers and we know that our investments pay."

Long and continued pressure is the only thing which will induce the Plainfield Water Supply Company to install water meters that will register accurately. Such meters are now built but the company is not anxious to make the outlay required.

With its usual enterprise, The Daily Press was the first to announce the results of the big college football games to the Plainfield public, Saturday evening. Bulletins were posted giving the scores soon after the games were completed

Franklin Murphy is coming to Plainfield, Thursday. There isn't any doubt as to the kind of reception he will receive. In such a Republican stronghold as this, he is going to find himself a very popular man.

Even if they cannot have their gubernatorial candidate here, the local Democrats have decided to have a mass-meeting anyway and introduce the Assembly candidates to the Plainfield public.

Despite the fact that the boys of Somerville's militia company have been practicing for years, the Plainfield soldier boys demonstrated the fact that they were the better marksmen.

The local Democrats are preparing to fight the city campaign on the ground that their candidates would, if elected, run the city's affairs in a more economical fashion.

The danger of people walking off trains on the wrong side at the North Avenue station would be obviated if the fence separating the tracks was painted white.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and its Citizens.

George A. Squire, the Republican candidate for mayor of Elizabeth, has been fortunate in his political career. He has been twice elected to the Assembly, is now serving as president of the Rahway Reformatory Commission, and now, by the grace of the Anti-Spring Election act and the accident of death, he has an opportunity to secure a still more lucrative office. In case of his success he should return thanks to Providence and the crushed Mr. Meeker.—Newark News.

* * * * *

Judging from the increase in registration as compared with the figures of last year, the Meeker act isn't depriving anyone of the right of suffrage who is entitled to vote. The chief argument in favor of election-marger was that it would increase interest in the franchise and bring more voters to the polls. The new law seems to be doing just what its advocates said it would do. The bigger the legitimate vote the better government we shall have.—Camden Post-Telegram.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

(Special Correspondence.

Scotch Plains, October 28—Edward Johnston led an interesting weekly meeting of the Baptist Young People's Society in the parlors of the church last evening, subject, "Daily Bible Reading a Healthful Habit." During the meeting Wm. Carroll, of the Strong Place Baptist church, Brooklyn, who was Rev. Mr. Shott's traveling companion upon his trip to the National B. Y. P. U. convention held in Chicago during the past summer, gave an interesting talk about their trip and the convention work.

The football game Saturday afternoon between the Junior eleven and the Young Tigers, of Westfield, on the gridiron in the rear of the public school, proved to be a very interesting game while it lasted. COMPANY K WON THE MATCH.

LOCAL MILITIA BOYS WERE VICTORIOUS BY 23 POINTS.

Team Shoot With Company M on the Latter's Range at Somerville.

Victory perched on the banner of Company K, of this city, in its contest with Company M, of Somerville, on the latter's range, Saturday afternoon. Although the Plainfield team demonstrated that it was handier with the gun than the Somerville shooters, neither team was up to its standard in marksmanship. As it was Company K won out by the narrow margin of 23 points, scoring 388 out of a possible 600, as against 365.

The Plainfielders took a squad of sixteen men with them on the trip. Usually five shooters are selected from each company, but Captain Dungan kindly agreed to six men being chosen. Captain Browning won the toss and selected the winward side of the range. Some of the men made particularly poor scores. Wikoff and Harsel, of Company K, did not do themselves justice, and neither did Davis, of Company M.

PLEA TO IMPROVE SOCIETY.

POWERFUL SERMON BY REV. W. T. GRIFFIN AT TRINITY CHURCH.

Told How People Neglect the Opportunity to Better Social and Political Conditions.

A strong plea for one to exert his divinely given power for the betterment of social conditions was made by Walter T. Griffin, of this city, in a sermon delivered by him last evening, at Trinity Reformed church. Mr. Griffin is United States consul to Limoges, France, and at present is sojourning here on a leave of absence from his post of duty.

The speaker chose as his text 2d Peter, I, 3 and 5, which are: "According as His divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and Godliness, through the knowledge of Him, that hath called us to glory and virtue," and, "Besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue, knowledge."

The word "virtue" as here used, said he, means energy, power, force, strength. Faith, without energy, is nothing. This is the age of dynamite. It is the age when nothing seems to be impossible. The engineer finds a way to get through the mountain, and over a river, or under it, if need be. It is done with dynamite, with force, with power. God meant that he should use that force. When He said that His virtue went out from Him, when His garment was touched, He meant His power went out from Him.

"We must use our energy, our power, to upbuild, not tear down," he continued. "We deplore the condition of society, and yet we are society. The state of the social world is condemned, and we do nothing to better it. Are we not responsible for the existence of such men Czolgoss?

"If a weak or fallen person approaches us, we shun them instead of attempting to lift them up. The same condition exists in politics and good men say they will have nothing to do with it. The responsible citizen spurns it and by doing so places the control in the hands of the worst element. He will not attend his primary because of the class he comes in contact with. And he refuses to exert his energy to better it. We cannot straddle anything today. By remaining inactive, we are acting for the worse.

"Every one of us is on the firing line. We must give an account of ourselves. The power is given us.

"If the machinery of the ship at sea be detached from the pumps, and the ship is sinking the pumps are no good. They lack power. So it is with us, if we detach ourselves from God. We must connect ourselves with Him, if we would use our energy, our force, our strength, our power, for good."

SUGGEST THE NETHERWOOD.

Owners Bring It Before Miss Gould as Proper Site For Veteran's Home.

Miss Helen Gould, who, by her interest in and her generosity for the Spanish-American War Veterans, has proved herself to be their friend, is now quite anxious to erect a home for these veterans, where they may receive every comfort and attention. In view of this fact, the owners of the Hotel Netherwood are endeavoring to get Miss Gould interested in the plan to locate the home at the Hotel Netherwood. The matter has been brought to the attention of Miss Gould and the projectors are hoping for a favorable reply to a proposition made to her.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

A Specimen of Word Manipulation That Is Hard to Get Ahead Of.

The intelligence displayed by some desk sergeants frequently excites the awe and wonder of the operators at police headquarters in Brooklyn, whose duty it is to receive reports of police happenings over the telephone from the various station houses, says the New York Times.

The other night a sergeant in one of the South Brooklyn precincts was sending in a report about a slight accident in which a man was injured. The ambulance surgeon who attended the man had described the nature of his injury to the intelligent patrolman on the post, and the latter jotted it down in his book while returning to the station house. The intelligent sergeant, reporting to headquarters, described the man's injuries as follows:

"He received a precise wound of the alteration."

"A what?" asked the astonished operator.

The sergeant repeated the description of the wound.

"Say," said the operator, "you don't expect me to enter any such fool report as that, do you? You'd better study the thing over."

The sergeant consulted with the patrolman and then returned to the telephone.

"I made a mistake about that, old man," he admitted to the operator. "The officer says it's a spliced wound of the abandonment. It's dead easy to get mixed on them medical terms, you know."

To the operator the thing was now shrouded in impenetrable darkness. Despairing of obtaining any light from the sergeant or patrolman, he called up the ambulance surgeon at the hospital.

"Say, doc," he asked, "what kind of an injury has that man got whom you just brought in?"

"An incised wound of the abdomen," explained the surgeon.

Pawing the air wildly and pirouetting like a whirling dervish, the operator made for the electric fan, turned it on and flung himself, limp and perspiring, back into his chair.

Advice About Writing Stories.

In a letter about story-writing, sent by Louisa M. Alcott to a young author in 1874, and now first published in the Ladies' Home Journal, she advises him to introduce his characters at once, as that instantly interests readers, and says of her own early work: "Instead of describing places or people I plunged into the heart of my story and opened it with a conversation, letting the actors unfold the plot and themselves dramatically. From that time my goods sold well, and this was the secret in a great measure. Learning to write short is another good thing; and the art of taking a very simple event or character and making it true to life with the mixture of the comic and pathetic that exists in what we call human nature. Put your own experience into your tales and they can't fail to be good."

Regulating a Clock.

It is not, of course, possible to seize hold of the hands of a clock and push them backward or forward a tenth or a twentieth part of a second, which is about the limit of error that is allowed at the Greenwich observatory, so another method is devised. Near the pendulum a magnet is fixed. If it is found that the pendulum is going either too fast or too slow a current of electricity is switched on and the little magnet begins to pull at the metal as it swings to and fro. It only retards or accelerates the motion by an infinitesimal fraction of a second each time, but it keeps the operation up, and in a few thousand swings the tenth or the twentieth part of the almost invisible error is corrected, thus making the clocks "keep step" at the proper instant of time.—London Daily News.

Delicacy Appreciated.

"Your friend says you are quick at repartee," said the young woman.

"That is very sweet of her," answered Miss Cayenne. "I don't know when I have been more touched.

"I had no idea you ever took a compliment so seriously."

"Oh, it isn't the compliment I care for. It is the consideration. She must be a true and loving friend or she wouldn't take such a round about way of declaring that I am ill natured."—Washington Star.

LOCKS UP MARRIED SON.

Severe Measures Adopted by Irate Father to Curb Youth's Affections Bring Him to Grief.

For keeping his 19-year old son a prisoner, fastened with chains, and whipping him, Barr McLein has been committed to jail at Anderson, S. C., charged with cruel treatment and assault. Henry McLein married without his father's consent. His parent had, in fact, prohibited his continuing attentions to Miss Florence Yancey, with whom Henry was in love. Florence was a near neighbor, and one of the only girls Henry was permitted to visit, and when he acknowledged to his father that he loved her this privilege was denied him. But love was stronger than fear of a stern father, and Henry made secret preparations to marry.

On the appointed evening he let himself down from his bedroom window, and went with his sweetheart to find a preacher. They were married and had reached the girl's home, when the elder McLein arrived, and, seizing his son, carried him forcibly from the presence of his young wife. The groom was kept a prisoner for days. Finally his bride and her parents laid the matter before a magistrate, and a warrant was issued for McLein. Henry was released, and went before the magistrate to give evidence against his father. He had, he said, been kept chained in a room and beaten.

The father was promptly committed for trial at the court of sessions. Henry McLein went from the court to his father-in-law's house, where he is now with his bride.

YOUNG WILLIAM TELL FAILS.

Daring Young Marksman Shoots His Father's Lip Instead of His Cigar.

The daring act of william Tell in shooting an apple from the head of his son found emulation the other night at a saloon at No. 414 Hughes avenue, Baltimore, but in this case it was the son who essayed the display of marksmanship, his father being the target.

Edward Thomas, Jr., 12 years old, has long been known as a crack shot. So proud has his father been of the fact that he has frequently allowed the boy to shoot apples from his head and cigars from his mouth. The other night Edward outdid himself.

The saloon was crowded, and when several strangers scouted the idea of the son attempting, or the father permitting such a thing, the parent took his stand in a corner of the room, and, placing a lighted cigar in his mouth, ordered the boy to knock the ashes off with his trusty rifle.

Crack went the rifle, while the spectators stood on tiptoe to witness the feat. To their surprise, Edward, Sr., swerved about and fell to the floor. Thinking he was killed a doctor was hastily summoned, when it was found that the bullet had passed completely through his upper lip.

New Cure for Drunkenness.

Police of Paris are investigating a curious case. The wife of an engineer, whose husband was in the habit of beating her when he was drunk, reached the limit of patience the other day and determined to inflict a lesson on him. When he arrived home about two o'clock in the morning in the usual condition she conducted him into the workshop, flung him face downward, fastened him securely, and, taking the bellows from the forge, proceeded to blow him up. The pain he suffered brought him to his senses and his cries summoned the neighbors, who released him, seriously ill with peritonitis. His wife was arrested.

Her Message Was Declined.

An old lady of New Brunswick, N. J., came to New York city on a visit the other day, intending to return that night. She discovered that she had inadvertently carried the key of her home with her. Entering a telegraph office on Broadway, she put the key on the counter, saying: "Please send that to my husband, in New Brunswick, by telegraph, or he won't be able to get his dinner."

DYSPEPSIA.

A gentleman residing in Oregon, Wis., recently said: "For a long time I was troubled with dyspepsia. Having considerable hard work to do, if I followed the cravings of my appetite it was sure to result in those horrible distressing pains of the stomach. When in the most agony I would endeavor to obtain partial relief by some 'grandmother' treatment, which, if of any benefit, was to strengthen the imagination that the distress was a trifle less. At times I suffered intensely. It was while visiting my sister Cora that I was recommended to try Ripans Tabules, which I soon discovered were a blessing. I am never without them now, and I recommend them as a God-send to those troubled with dyspepsia."

CRAPE AND GRENADINE.

Simple Styles Which Can Be Carried Out at Home.

White silk crepon makes lovely afternoon gowns. A long skirt very full at the back and having a full ruffle is the usual model for such dresses. This ruffle is often laid in tiny tucks running vertically and stopping within a few inches of the bottom in order to allow the fullness to spread. The bodice is also tucked or fulled into a deep lace yoke, and if the gown is for a young girl a sash of black taffeta or white crepe de chine is a useful and pretty addition. A gown of this description can be easily made at home by clever fingers, and it is very useful for informal dinners or even afternoon receptions.

Black grenadine dresses can also be made in this way, and a chic touch can be added by a bolero of lace and velvet ribbons. There is a new soft material on the poplin order which is very handsome in white, pale gray and mauve, although for some reason it does not look well in black. This makes up into very stylish visiting gowns and even tailor made costumes.

Our illustration shows a French hat of white felt which would look very smart with one of the new long coats or pale gray tailor mades. It is trimmed with a gathered band of black velvet passed through a square gold buckle and terminating in a square bow in the back. Over each side of the brim a black ostrich feather curls, and an invisible band of black velvet raises the hat sufficiently in the back to give it a forward dip. JUDIC CHOLLET.

NEW COLORS.

Brown Tailor Mades the Latest Edict of Fashion.

Brown tailor mades are very stylish just now, but they are only becoming to slender figures and they should be worn only with cream white or pale yellow blouses. In fact, the limited number of colors which can be worn with brown is the chief reason why it will never be a popular color with those who have to plan out their wardrobes carefully.

Greens of all shades have at last returned to favor, and they are to be extremely popular for evening as well as day wear.

Myrtle green is especially stunning in velvet, and this is being used by fashionable women for Louis XV. gowns.

PARISIAN VISITING TOILET.

All black and all white costumes still continue the rage, and no other color or combination of colors can approach them for elegance.

All shades of ecru are to be more popular than gray this year, as they go especially well with the brown furs, which are the fashion.

A charming visiting toilet is the subject of today's sketch. It is made of chrysanthemum red broadcloth trimmed with narrow bands of black astrakhan fur. The skirt is cut perfectly plain, with very little fullness at the back, and the flare around the bottom is gained by three gored ruffles, which are put on quite full and each edged with the astrakhan fur. This gives the triple overskirt effect so dear to the heart of the Parisian. The jacket is cut blouse fashion, with a high turndown Napoleon collar edged with the astrakhan and broad revers faced with white panne, which is braided and also edged with the astrakhan. The broad cuffs are also of the white panne, braided and edged with the astrakhan. The crush belt is of the black panne.

The smart hat is of chrysanthemum red silk mull, with a shirred brim and a crown of cream embroidery. For sole trimming there is a big, square bow of black velvet. JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

By Robert Louis Stevenson.

round the corner from the by-street there was a square of ancient, handsome houses, now for the most part decayed from their high estate and let in flats and chambers to all sorts and conditions of men; map-engravers, architects, shady lawyers, and the agents of obscure enterprises. One house, however, second from the corner, was still occupied entire; and at the door of this, which bore a great air of wealth and comfort, though it was now plunged in darkness except for the fanlight, Mr. Utterson stopped and knocked. A well-dressed, elderly servant opened the door.

"Is Dr. Jekyll at home, Poole?" asked the lawyer.

"I will see, Mr. Utterson," said Poole, admitting the visitor as he spoke, into a large, low-roofed, comfortable hall, paved with flags, warmed (after the fashion of a country house) by a bright, open fire and furnished with costly cabinets of oak.

"Will you wait here by the fire, sir? or shall I give you a light in the dining-room?"

"Here, thank you," said the lawyer, and he drew near and leaned on the tall fender. This hall, in which he was now left alone, was a pet fancy of his friend, the doctor's, and Utterson himself was wont to speak of it as the pleasantest room in London. But to-night there was a shudder in his blood; the face of Hyde sat heavy on his memory; he felt (what is rare with him) a nausea and distaste of life; and in the gloom of his spirits he seemed to read a menace in the flickering of the firelight on the polished cabinets and the uneasy starting of the shadow on the roof. He was ashamed of his relief, when Poole presently returned to announce that Dr. Jekyll was gone out.

"I saw Mr. Hyde go in by the old dissecting-room door, Poole," he said. "Is that right, when Dr. Jekyll is from home?"

"Quite right, Mr. Utterson, sir," replied the servant. "Mr. Hyde has a key."

"Your master seems to repose a great deal of trust in that young man, Poole," resumed the other, musingly.

"Yes, sir, he do, indeed," said Poole. "We have all orders to obey him."

"I do not think I ever met Mr. Hyde?" asked Utterson.

"Oh, dear, no, sir. He never dines here," replied the butler. "Indeed, we see very little of him on this side of the house; he mostly comes and goes by the laboratory."

"Well, good-night, Poole."

"Good-night, Mr. Utterson."

And the lawyer set out homeward with a very heavy heart. "Poor Harry Jekyll," he thought, "my mind misgives me he is in deep waters! He was wild when he was young—a long while ago, to be sure; but in the law of God there is no statute of limitations. Ay, it must be that; the ghost of some old sin, the cancer of some concealed disgrace; punishment coming,pede claudo, years after memory has forgotten, and self-love condoned the fault." And the lawyer scared by the thought,brooded awhile on his own past, groping in all the corners of memory, lest, by chance, some Jack-in-the-box of an old iniquity should leap to light there. His past was fairly blameless; few men could read the rolls of their life with less apprehension; yet he was humbled to the dust by the many ill things he had done, and raised up again into a sober and fearful gratitude by the many that he had come so near to doing, yet avoided. And then, by a return on his former subject, he conceived a spark of hope. "This Master Hyde, if he were studied," thought he, "must have secrets of his own—black secrets, by the look of him; secrets compared to which poor Jekyll's worst would be like sunshine. Things can not continue as they are. It turns me cold to think of this creature stealing like a thief to Harry's bedside; poor Harry, what a wakening! And the danger of it; for if this Hyde suspects the existence of the will, he may grow impatient to inherit. Ay, I must put my shoulder to the wheel, if Jekyll will but let me," he added, "if Jekyll will only let me." For once more he saw before his mind's eye, as clear as a transparency,the strange clauses of the will.

CHAPTER III.

A fortnight later, by excellent good fortune, the doctor gave one of his pleasant dinners to some five or six old cronies, all intelligent, reputable men, and all judges of good wine; and Mr. Utterson so contrived that he remained behind after the others had departed. This was no new arrangement, but a thing that had befallen many scores of times. Where Utterson was liked, he was liked well. Hosts loved to obtain the dry lawyer, when the lighthearted and the loose-tongued had already their foot on the threshold; they liked to sit awhile in his unobtrusive company, practicing for solitude, sobering their minds in the man's rich silence after the expense and strain of gayety. To this rule, Dr. Jekyll was no exception; and as he now sat on the opposite side of the fire—a large, well-made, smooth-faced man of 50, with something of a stylish cast, perhaps, but every mark of capacity and kindness— you could see by his looks that he cherished for Mr. Utterson a sincere and warm affection.

"I have been wanting to speak to you, Jekyll," began the latter. "You know that will of yours?"

A close observer might have gathered that the topic was distasteful; but the doctor carried it off gayly. "My poor Utterson," said he, "you are unfortunate in such a client. I never saw a man so distressed as you were by my will; unless it were that hide-bound pedant, Lanyon, at what he called my scientific heresies. Oh, I know he's a good fellow—you needn't frown—an excellent fellow, and I always mean to see more of him; but a hide-bound pedant for all that; an ignorant, blatant pedant. I was never more disappointed in any man than Lanyon."

"You know I never approved of it," pursued Utterson, ruthlessly, disregarding the fresh topic.

"My will? Yes, certainly, I know that," said the doctor, a trifle sharply. "You have told me so."

"Well, I tell you so again," continued the lawyer. "I have been learning something of young Hyde."

The large, handsome face of Dr. Jekyll grew pale to the very lips, and there came a blackness about his eyes. "I do not care to hear more," said he. "This is a matter I thought we had agreed to drop."

"What I heard was abominable," said Utterson.

"It can make no change. You do not understand my position," returned the doctor, with a certain incoherency of manner. "I am painfully situated, Utterson; my position is a very strange—a very strange one. It is one of those affairs that can not be mended by talking."

"Jekyll," said Utterson, "you know me; I am a man to be trusted. Make a clean breast of this in confidence, and I make no doubt I can get you out of it."

"My good Utterson," said the doctor, "this is very good of you; this is downright good of you, and I can not find words to thank you in. I believe you fully; I would trust you before any man alive, ay, before myself, if I could make the choice; but indeed it isn't what you fancy;it is not so bad as that; and just to put your good heart at rest, I will tell you one thing; the moment I choose, I can be rid of Mr. Hyde. I give you my hand upon that; and I thank you again and again; and I will just add one little word, Utterson, that I'm sure you'll take in good part; this is a private matter, and I beg of you to let it sleep."

Utterson reflected a little, looking in the fire.

"I have no doubt you are perfectly right," he said, at last, getting to his feet.

"Well, but since we have touched upon this business, and for the last time, I hope," continued the doctor, "there is one point I should like you to understand. I have really a great interest in poor Hyde. I know you have seen him; he told me so; and I fear he was rude. But I do sincerely take a great, a very great interest in that young man; and if I am taken away, Utterson, I wish you to promise me that you will bear with him and get his rights for him. I think you would, if you knew all; and it would be a weight off my mind if you would promise."

"I can't pretend that I shall ever like him," said the lawyer.

"I don't ask that," pleaded Jekyll, laying his hand upon the other's arm; "I only ask for justice; I only ask you to help him for my sake, when I am no longer here."

Utterson heaved an irrepressible sigh. "Well," said he, "I promise."

CANINE TASTE FOR CHEESE.

The Assertion Is Made That Dogs Prefer It to Any Other Kind of Food.

"'Do dogs like cheese?' Well, I should say," exclaimed a waiter in a lunch cafe, reports the Philadelphia Record. "I imagine that dogs prefer cheese to any other food that is going. I didn't know this myself till two or three months ago. Then, one afternoon, a man happened in here with a very nice fox terrier, and I tossed the animal a lump of cheese from a plate which a pie-eater had just abandoned. 'Oh, he won't eat that,' said the owner of the dog. 'Very likely not,' said I. But by that time the terrier had hopped with a grunt of joy on the morsel, and he swallowed it with such a blissful look as I never saw on a dog's face before. And—would you believe it—the next morning, bright and early, that fox terrier came in here alone, and ran to me, and looked up in my face, wagging his tail. I thought I knew what he wanted, but, to make sure, I threw him a bit of meat. He turned away from it in disgust. Then I threw him a bit of cheese, and he was happy. He hung around two days. His owner located him at last and took him home. 'I'll keep a stock of cheese on hand for him hereafter,' said the owner, 'or otherwise I know that he'll return to you again.'"

SOME HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Radical Methods of Dealing with Certain Domestic Difficulties That Never Fail.

To remove ink stains from carpet—burn the carpet.

Light is essential to health—also to the owners of gas stock.

To rejuvenate ancient butter—turn it over to the soap-grease man.

If you would never have tainted fish, order nothing but salt pork.

If shutters are removed during the afternoon they will not slam at night.

A splendid thing for mosquitoes is a fat man who isn't troubled with insomnia.

Never deposit hot ashes in a wooden vessel. Ask the government to lend you an ironclad.

Never use kerosene to kindle a fire. A load of kindling wood is much cheaper than a funeral.

To prevent preserves from molding—place them on the top shelf of a closet and give the key to a small boy.

Great Chicken Farms.

There are great chicken farms in Virginia. The land down in the Old Dominion is become so poor that it will not grow crops, so they are going into the poultry business. Salem, Rivington and Riverton have immense poultry farms.

True to Genius.

"You remember Queerun, who was always so full of big ideas for making money?"

"Quite well. What has become of m?"

"That's what I was going to tell you. His last scheme was to dig a tunnel under the Atlantic ocean between the United States and England. He had the thing figured down to a nicety, and had all the estimates to show that such a tunnel could be constructed for $3,375,000,000. He spent six months making his calculations, and then, all at once, he gave it up."

"What did he do that for?"

"The capitalists he was trying to get to back him had him run in for vagrancy."—Chicago Tribune.

ROMANCE IN LOST BUNDLE.

It Leads to Courtship and Final Elopement of Street Car Conductor and a Girl.

A State street cable car, a lost package and the red brick barn on Thirty-ninth street, where the Chicago city railway rolling stock is housed at night, form the background of a romance between a downtown salesgirl and a young man who until the other day collected nickels from patrons of the car line. The principals in the romance, which is said to have culminated in an elopement, are Miss Hazel Gardner, of 4225 Wabash avenue, who has been employed in a downtown department store, and Edward J. Douglas, a conductor on the State street line.

ON HIS CAR.

It was after the girl's recovery of a lost package, in which the conductor had inserted a note to the owner, that the two became acquainted. Douglas became a regular caller at 4225 Wabash avenue on his night off. The young man's attentions were objected to by Mrs. Estelle Daily, mother of the girl. She forbade Douglas to call, but, it is said, the couple found frequent opportunity for meetings on his street car. Then there were clandestine meetings at the car barns at Thirty-ninth and State streets.

After this Mrs. Daily caused the arrest of Douglas. The young man was served with a notice to appear before Justice Rhoades. Afterward, relenting, Mrs. Daily agreed to sign a bond for his release.

When the case was called, Douglas was not present. His sweetheart was not in hand either, and inquiry developed the fact that they had been seen going downtown together early in the day and that Miss Gardner had confided to one of her girl friends that they intended to elope.

WOMAN CONVICTED AS MAN.

Her Sex Discovered Only After She Had Remained in the Penitentiary Eleven Months.

For 11 months the officials at the Nebraska state penitentiary at Lincoln have supposed that a prisoner, known as Burt Martin, was a man. The discovery that the convict was a woman, and that her real name is Lena Martin, was made two days ago by the prison physician. She was arrested, tried and convicted at Springview, Keya Paha county, as a man, a year ago for horse stealing. Recently her cell mate intimated to the guards that an investigation would not be barren of developments. This was made when the prison physician was called to attend her.

BURT MARTIN.

She has donned woman's clothes and will serve out the remainder of her three-year sentence. She seemed to take it as a joke when the discovery was made. Her mother lives near Springview. She is 20 years of age, large, and coarsely built for a woman. She comes from a ranch country, and was not known by her nearest neighbors, 20 miles away.

Veritable City of Padlocks.

Irkutsk, Siberia, is a city of padlocks. There are more padlocks on the shutters and doors of an Irkutsk shop than can be found in an English city of 200,000. There are as many as three padlocks on some shop doors, and every lower story shutter bears from one to five. The padlocks weigh from a pound to 15 pounds. The popular size is five pounds, and two and one-half inches thick.

Is Full of Electricity.

Henry G. Walkins, of Appleton, Wis., declares that his system is overcharged with electricity. With his eyes shut, and his ears stuffed with cotton, he can tell when he comes within 100 feet of electrical machinery; and during a thunderstorm he is in a state of constant agitation. He attributes his peculiarity to the fact that his mother, two months before his birth, was struck by lightning.

FORMER PASTOR PREACHED.

TWO INTERESTING SERMONS BY REV. W. C. O'DONNELL.

Filled the Pulpit at Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Yesterday Morning and Evening.

Large congregations were present at the morning and evening services in the Monroe Avenue church yesterday, at both of which Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, of Flemington, former pastor of the church, was in charge. Mr. O'Donnell delivered two very interesting sermons.

In the morning his text was from Jeremiah xxii:29, "O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord." He spoke of the Bible and God's word, referring in many ways to their greatness and true worth. In the evening his text was from the Epistle to the Romans viii:38 39, "For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord." From this he drew a powerful lesson of the love of God and the happiness extended to its possessor.

A man who has the love of God, Mr. O'Donnell said, is the owner of a rich treasure which all the world cannot take away from him and which will never fail. It is the privilege of all to come into the possession of this priceless truth and once a man builds his foundation upon it, sophistry and argument cannot break him down. The parting words of many great leaders, including the late lamented president, demonstrates this fact. The unceasing, unchanging love of God is the secret of a triumphant death.

The Fall Piano Trade.

There is an unusual activity in the piano trade, now that the fall season is here. A great competition pervades the first-class houses throughout the country more so than usual. This is especially to be observed in the well-known firm of J. & C. Fischer.

The assortment of high-grade pianos at their warerooms, No. 33 Union Square, West, was never more complete or varied.

They call attention to the unique designs and ornamental case-architecture of their instruments, and an inspection of them will amply repay those who are in the way of purchasing a piano that is renowned for tone, quality, artistic workmanship and durability all over the land. The Fischer piano has for over half a century maintained its reputation as the artistic home piano of America.

THREE COUPLES CELEBRATED.

REMARKABLE COINCIDENCE MARKED WEDDING SATURDAY NIGHT.

Mrs. Jennie D. Smaley and Charles Hayes Were Quietly Married at the Bride's Home.

A very quiet wedding ceremony took place Saturday evening at the home of Augustus Runyon, of Lafayette place, when his daughter, Mrs. Jennie D. Smaley, was made the wife of Charles Hayes, of Dunellen. The happy event was witnessed only by the immediate relatives and intimate friends of both parties.

The ceremony took place in the parlor and was performed by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, of Flemington. The bride was gowned in white and was unattended.

Following the tying of the nuptial knot, the guests partook of an elaborate wedding supper, during which Mr. and Mrs. Hayes were overwhelmed with congratulations. They afterward left on a trip which will include a visit to various points of interest in the south. On returning they will reside in Dunellen.

By a coincidence, the occasion was the silver anniversary of the wedding of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubbell Hayes, of Dunellen, and the golden anniversary of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Randolph, of this city. All were present and came in for a goodly share of the congratulations and well wishes.

THANKS FOR AID.

Those Who Have Aided The Women's Exchange in Its Entertainment.

The members of the executive board of the Woman's Exchange wish to extend their sincere thanks for assistance tendered in aid of the entertainment given in the Casino last week Thursday, also to Messrs. C. J. Fisk, William Winans Moore, A. L. Force, Charles S. Lee, Lemuel W. Serrell, J. W. Gaskett, H. G. Runkle, J. A. Smith & Bro., Fred Endress and others for their generous interest and support.

The aim and purpose of the Exchange is to aid gentlewomen in reduced circumstances to honorable self support. In very many instances they are women in every sense of the word so cut off from opportunity to earn a livelihood, that they prefer starvation to an application for public charity. To many of these the Exchange has proved a merciful providence, and it is the desire of the members of the board that the people of Plainfield should now fully understand the efforts of the Exchange to provide legitimate and suitable employment for those really worthy and in need.

Couldn't Explain.

Charles Hackett and Otto Hausechild, both of Elizabeth, were arrested by Roundsman Mattox, last evening, who found them begging on South avenue. When they were arraigned in court this morning, Hackett, who looked the typical hobo, could not explain satisfactorily his having possession of a Duke of York hat and a silver table knife. He was sentenced to twenty days and Hausechild, who was but seventeen years old, was given some fatherly advice and released.

N. W. Pike Was the Speaker.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Morse, N. W. Pike, of East Front street, delivered his address last evening entitled "The Pride of Nations and Power of Representative Men," at the First Church of Christ."

HOW THEY ESCAPED BOXERS.

MISSIONARY TELLS THE STORY OF THE CHINESE OUTBREAK.

Rev. Mark Williams Spoke at the Congregational Church on Foreign Missionary Sunday.

The story of one of the most remarkable escapes during the recent anti-foreign outbreak in China was related at the Congregational church yesterday morning by Rev. Mark Williams, one of the participants. Although it was told in a simple and impersonal manner, it was not difficult to read between the lines of the faith and heroism of that little band of missionaries who were compelled to flee for their lives across the desert of Lobi.

It was the occasion of the Foreign Missionary Sunday at the Congregational church. Rev. Mark Williams had been one of the American Board missionaries located at Kalgan, 140 miles north-west of Pekin. The fact that the mission workers appeared so indifferent to the Boxer out-break up to the last moment, thereby resulting in the death of a number, was accounted for by the speaker. They had grown so accustomed to little outbreaks, which never assumed any real strength or danger that they supposed the Boxer revolt was one of the same class.

Rev. Mr. Williams told the story of his flight from Kalgan over the desert to Siberia and home by the way of Russia. Providence seemed with the little party. Many times were they saved when it appeared that there was no chance of escape. The story was an interesting one and the large congregation listened to it eagerly.

At the Christian Endeavor meeting in the evening Rev. Mr. Williams spoke and told something of China, the people and the progress of Christianity there.

Remembered His Family.

Samuel Hannigan was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning, charged by Patrolman McCarthy with drunkenness and disorderly conduct on Park avenue Saturday afternoon. On inquiring into his family affairs the Court learned he had a wife and four children, and taking this into consideration sentence was suspended.

Bank Stock Sold Well.

An auction sale of stock of both of the local banks was held this morning in the offices of Reed & Coddington. Ten shares of the First National were sold to J. Wesley Johnson at 138 and ten of the City National to Mrs. A. D. Suydam at the same price. There were quite a number of bidders present.

Hard Luck Again.

Charged with being helplessly drunk on North avenue, Saturday night, Frederick Handy, of Philadelphia, was arraigned in the city court this morning. He told a hard luck story of no work and begged to be allowed to return to his family. Sentence was suspended with a warning.

Municipal Ownership Won.

A debate on municipal ownership was held by the girls in the government class of the North Plainfield High School this morning. The debaters displayed remarkable ability in handling the subject. The judges decided in favor of municipal ownership.

DOCTORS AN OSTRICH

Surgeon Operates on Big Bird Under Trying Conditions.

Professional Wrestler Succeeds in Downing the Unwilling Patient and the Doctor Then Treats Long Cut in the Bird's Neck.

A car load of ostriches came into Indianapolis by freight the other day. Their presence was made known by an impatient ring at the telephone of Dr. Garstang, local surgeon of the Big Four. The doctor answered.

"Can you treat ostriches?" a voice asked.

"I might," said the doctor, thinking some wag friend was talking. "Or I might treat parrots or humming birds, but I don't make a specialty of it."

"I'm not kidding," the voice continued, as he explained that he was the Brightwood station agent and that a car load of ostriches was "hung up" there. He further explained that one of the birds had accidentally cut its neck and there was fear that it was seriously injured.

Dr. Garstang at once communicated with Dr. W. B. Craig, veterinarian. Both leaped into the buggies and hurried to the Massachusetts avenue station, to which point the car containing the ostriches was taken from Brightwood. Dr. Craig was accompanied by Maurice Lynch, his driver, wherein he was lucky, as Maurice is a wrestler and boxer of no little consequence.

When the doctors entered the car they found it full of ostriches, whose long necks were as high as the roof and as low as the floor. Dr. Craig, who is almost as big as an ostrich himself, faced the largest group, containing nine. A big black ostrich darted out his head and tried to seize the doctor's Scottish Rite pin.

LIFTED ITS FOOT.

Another cleverly pulled off a suspender buckle from an inquiring laborer who had intruded into the car. He fled. The injured ostrich was bleeding from a long wound in its neck.

Dr. Craig understood at a glance what was to be done. The wound must be treated with antiseptics and sewed up. The sewing, he said, would be like sewing a bootleg. But how to do this was a question. He appealed to the two men who had charge of the ostriches. Carl Kirkham, the keeper, said the only way was to get men enough to hold the ostrich. There was himself and his assistant, Fred White. They were about half enough. The doctor turned to Lynch.

"Here's your star engagement on the mat," he said.

Lynch said naught, but rolled up his sleeves. The box car was pulled alongside an empty car and a gangway constructed. Across this the ostrich was forced with some difficulty. The chief danger, Kirkham explained, was that injury makes an ostrich ferocious, and a blow from his foot is like the knockout blow of a mule. The keepers got the bird by its mighty wings and Lynch got a hammerlock hold.

There was a struggle, much grunting and a few expletives not usually printed, says the Indianapolis News, and then down went the ostrich. Lynch changed his hold and got a half-Nelson and a foot hold. The big bird tried vainly to rise again, but Lynch and the keepers had him foul.

Dr. Craig washed the wounds with antiseptics and took 20 stitches on each side. The injury was probably caused by a splinter and may be fatal. The neck was not bandaged, but was plastered with antiseptic dressing. Then the ostrich was allowed to rise and Lynch took a long breath.

"Shake," he said. "I have no hard feelings."

The big bird wheeled and lifted up its foot. It set it down alongside Lynch's left leg, and under it half of Lynch's trousers leg went too. Lynch received a new pair, with the compliments of the Big Four.

The 15 ostriches belong to Thomas A. Cockaburn, of Hot Springs, Ark. They have been exhibited in the east and were reshipped to Mr. Cockaburn's Arkansas ostrich farm from Long Branch, N. J. They are valued at $1,500 each. Several present got real ostrich feathers while the wrestling match between Lynch and the bird was in progress.

MADE THEIR REQUEST FOR REDUCED RATES

Committee From Board of Trade Interview General Passenger Agent Burt.

WILL CONSIDER THEIR PLEA.

NO HOPE OF TWO TICKET OFFICES FOR THE PRESENT.

Ten and Twenty Trip Tickets are Now Under Consideration—Will Enforce Law About Renting of Fifty Trip Tickets

L. B. Woolston and Robert A. Meeker, representing the local Board of Trade, visited Passenger Agent C. W. Burt, of the New Jersey Central, at his home on West Seventh street, last evening, and held an hour's discussion with him in regard to concessions for the Plainfield people from the railroad officials. Several very important matters were considered and while Mr. Burt could give no immediate reply to their requests, he approved of them in part and declared they would be carefully enquired into.

The principal subject talked over during the conference was that of the trip ticket system now in vogue, but upon the rental of such tickets the Central has placed a ban. The committee asked that if the tickets were to be abolished, a reduced excursion rate to New York be established in their place. They also asked for a ten and twenty trip ticket to be issued, such as is used on the Lackawanna road.

Mr. Burt stated that the Central officials realized and agreed that Plainfield was the best paying station on the road and for that reason were always ready to listen to the traveling part of its residents. The ten and twenty trip tickets, such as suggested by the committee, he said were being considered. The fifty-trip tickets would still continue to be issued, but the road would enforce the law which declares that no one but a licensed person may sell or let out transportation tickets on railroad or steamboat lines. All ticket agents of the Central are licensed, and this would mean that the fifty-trip traffic would be more directly under the control of the railroad officials than it has been heretofore.

In regard to the placing of a ticket agent in the old station for the convenience of west bound travel and providing better lighting facilities in the tunnel and around both stations, Mr. Burt informed his callers that these matters were out of his jurisdiction. They came under the head of the motive department, but in his opinion, he said, this body at present would not attempt to deal with the west bound ticket question. The matter had already been thoroughly discussed, and to do as the Board of Trade requested would entail an added expense of at least $1,200 a year. This, the officials thought was not guaranteed by the traffic, although it is known that the western business of the road is steadily on the increase. The trouble has been alleviated somewhat by an order which recently went into effect, compelling the baggagemaster and his assistants to check baggage without making it necessary for passengers to cross over after purchasing a ticket.

It was the intention of the committee to meet the members of the Board of Trade after the conference, and make a formal report, but as the hour was so late it was postponed. Action will be taken upon the matter at a future meeting.

BURGLARS OPENED SAFE IN MYSTERIOUS MANNER

Robbery at Butcher Shop of Jeppe Sorensen on Watchung Ave Last Night.

CAPTURED $100 IN SILVER.

ONLY PROPRIETOR AND HIS SISTER KNEW THE COMBINATION.

And Yet the Safe Was Opened Without Being Damaged—F. O. Herring Also Had a Visit From Burglars.

Complete mystery surrounds a burglary which took place some time during the early hours this morning at the butcher shop of Jeppe Sorensen on Watchung avenue. A safe located in a small office in the front of the building was opened without being injured in any way and a drawer containing $100 was extracted. The money was entirely in silver.

Chief Kiely was notified of the robbery shortly after the shop opened for the day's business. He was informed by Mr. Sorenson that no one but himself and sister, Miss Christine Sorensen, was acquainted with the combination and furthermore that it had never been written out. He was positive that he had locked the safe, last night, when he left for home at 11:30.

In order to learn if the safe had been tampered with to effect an opening Chief Kiely requested F. O. Herring, of Park avenue, a member of the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company, to make an examination. Mr. Herring was emphatic in his declaration that the combination had been worked successfully and that no part of the safe was injured. Entrance to the shop was probably effected through a side window, which it has always been the custom to leave open.

While examining the safe this morning Mr. Herring remarked to the police that his home had been visited by burglars last night, but nothing with the exception of an old revolver, bought in a foreign country, and kept as a relic, was taken. The prowlers were heard by a servant girl who informed the family of the fact this morning.

"COLANTHA" COMING.

The Pythian Goat Will Visit Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., Friday Evening.

"Colantha," the celebrated Pythian goat, now making a tour of the country, will visit Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., Friday evening, November 8. It will be received by Perseverance Lodge and Crescent Company, U. R. K. of P., and will be accompanied by Black Prince Company, of Newark; Colantha Company, of Jersey City; Volunteer and Harmony Lodges, of Elizabeth. At present the goat is in Elizabeth, where he will remain several days.

The members of Perseverance Lodge are preparing for a big time on the evening of November 8 and the goat will be given every courtesy. It is said that the animal will eat nothing but Huyler's candies, thus making his food quite expensive. He is very good-natured, however, and is always glad to meet members of the Knights of Pythias.

NOT A BANKRUPT.

Petition Dismissed by U. S. District Court in Case of L. E. Hart.

Levi E. Hart, of Westfield, successfully resisted yesterday a petition filed by Theodore S. Bird in the United States district court, at Trenton, asking that Mr. Hart be adjudged a bankrupt. On behalf of Mr. Hart a demurrer was filed by Counsellor W. S. Angleman, who claimed that the petition failed to show any acts of bankruptcy or facts sufficient to give the court jurisdiction. The petitioner was represented by Hon. Carroll Robbins, of Trenton. After hearing the arguments of counsel, Judge Kirkpatrick decided that the demurrer was well taken and dismissed the petition.

AFTER TRUANTS IN BOROUGH.

NORTH PLAINFIELD BOARD OF EDUCATION TO COMPEL ATTENDANCE

Arranged the School Calendar for the Coming Year—Fixed Date for Commencement.

Parents of borough children will run the risk of arrest should they fail to see that the young ones attend the public schools regularly. It was so determined at a meeting of the Borough Board of Education, held last evening.

It was decided that notices to parents of children neglecting school duties should be placed in the hands of Marshal Campbell, who is the borough truant officer. The parents will be given a reasonable time to comply after service of the notice. The last resort will be the arrest of the parents, and fine or imprisonment. The parents will be dealt with directly in all cases.

The matter of school vacations during holidays was also considered. A two-weeks' vacation will be given at Christmas time. It is proposed to close schools the Friday preceding Christmas and to reopen them the Monday following New Year's day. Easter week will also be granted as a vacation, but the schools will be kept open Good Friday. The first holiday to come will be Thanksgiving day. With this holiday the pupils will also be granted the day following.

Commencement day in the Borough High School is set for June 20. The place of hold the exercises has not as yet been selected.

A request was made to the board for permission to use the cooking-room in the Charles W. McCutchen Manual Training School. It was presented on behalf of young women in the borough anxious to receive instruction under the direction of Miss Bessie Taylor, the teacher in cooking. A committee was appointed to compute the expense to the school in order that it may be defrayed by the parties desiring to use the department. Only residents of the borough will be permitted to receive instruction.

WORKERS AMONG LITTLE FOLKS IN CONFERENCE

Sixth Annual Institute of the Primary and Junior Sunday-School Teachers' Union.

TWO SESSIONS WERE HELD.

MISS HARLOW, OF PHILADELPHIA, WAS THE CHIEF SPEAKER.

Gave an Example of How She Teaches the Primary Department at John Wanamaker's Sunday-School—Other Participants in the Sessions.

The sixth annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church. There was a large attendance of members of the local union, while there was a good representation from the unions in New Brunswick, Elizabeth and other nearby places.

The exercises open in the afternoon with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. J. P. Mosher. After the singing of a primary hymn Mrs. J. A. Powlison illustrated the teaching of a primary song. This was followed with a talk by William D. Murray, who took for his subject "Children's Ways." Mr. Murray is superintendent of the school at the Crescent Avenue church, and has had a wide experience in teaching children. He made his talk exceedingly interesting and valuable to the teachers present.

Following Mr. Murray's talk a pleasing vocal solo was given by Miss Cornelia Miller. The Sunday-school lesson for next Sunday was then taught by Miss Annie S. Harlow, primary teacher in John Wanamaker's Sunday-school in Philadelphia. The subject of the lesson is "The Death of Joseph," and Miss Harlow taught the lesson exactly as she will teach it next Sunday to her large class of children. She illustrated her talk and made it both helpful and interesting to all. To illustrate the lesson some of the teachers formed a class and they answered the questions as interrogated by Miss Harlow.

After the teaching of the lesson a vocal solo was given by Miss Julia J. Ketcham. Then followed short talks on various methods used in teaching. Mr. Murray explained the use of a sand map which he uses and other teachers spoke of the useful ess of this map. The afternoon session then adjourned and supper was served by the local union. During this time there was plenty of opportunity for social intercourse and the exchange of ideas of work.

The evening session opened with devotional exercises conducted by F. E. Smith, after which Mrs. Robert W. Barnes, secretary and treasurer of the Union, presented her report of the past year's work. This showed a total membership of forty-seven, with an increase of eight during the year. The average attendance at each meeting was twenty. Meetings have been held every Monday afternoon during the year but one, and the omission was on account of stormy weather. There was collected during the year $60 06 and the disbursements were $48.60, leaving a balance of $12 46. The report showed that there were visitors at every meeting. There was an expression of deep regret over the death of one member, Miss Blanche Fellows.

After the report, there was the roll call, each member responding with an appropriate verse of Scripture. The name of the New Brunswick Union was called and the member responded to the number of fifteen. Miss Cornelia Miller again gave a vocal solo.

Miss Harlow, of Philadelphia, was introduced by the president, Miss Nettie J. Beeching, and gave an address on "Character Building." She reviewed the history of the child from the time he enters Sunday-school until well-advanced in age. She told of the best methods known to build up the character of the child and of the obstacles to be met. In giving her talk she illustrated the different stages in the life of a child on a blackboard, showing how often the disposition, likes and dislikes change. She gave many interesting incidents in her own experience to show how many different kinds of children a teacher is brought in contact with and what methods should be used for each class.

Miss Harlow urged the attendance of young children at Sunday-school, and the patient instilling in their minds of the necessity of regular attendance. She did not believe that because a boy bubbles over with life and is filled with laughter, much to to the annoyance of the teacher, that

DRILL COMPANY WILL REMAIN AT EASTON.

Easton Agrees to Build Two Bridges to Connect With Proposed Site in So. Easton.

DIRECTORS MET YESTERDAY

REPORT OF INVESTIGATIONS OF SITES MADE BY MR. SWAN.

No Action Taken as Yet, but There is Little Doubt But That Easton's Offer Will Be Accepted and Additional Plant Built.

While formal action has not yet been taken, there seems to be no doubt but that the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company will continue at Easton, Pa. This change in its plans was brought about by an offer made by the people of Easton, which was considered at a meeting of the board of directors of that company, which was held yesterday. There is plenty of available land across the Lehigh river in South Easton. Two bridges, one for railroad cars and the other for foot passengers and wagons, will be built to connect the present factory with the available land across the river. These bridges will be erected without cost to the company while the land can be obtained at reasonable terms.

The meeting of the directors yesterday, was held to hear the report of E. E. Swan, concerning the many available sites he had investigated. He presented a lengthy report with all the necessary facts in tabulated form concerning 150 different sites. Plainfield was included in the list. At the same time, Easton's offer was presented.

The officers of the drill company have realized for some time that it would be practically impossible to move the present works without enormous cost and such delay as would seriously cripple the establishment. It was decided that it would be better to establish another plant and gradually enlarge it so that eventually the entire plant might be transferred. The chief objection to another plant across the Lehigh river was the lack of transportation facilities. To overcome that, the proposition of the erection of the two bridges was made.

This proposition was considered very favorably by the directors and there seems but little doubt that they will accept it formally in the near future. It has the advantage to the company that none of the employes will be compelled to move elsewhere.

STEPPED ON HIS HEAD.

Now the Italian Wants Damages From the Driver of the Horse.

Suit has been begun in the Elizabeth district court by Hetfield & Hetfield, of this city, representing Pasqual Perretta, against Dr. Ernest Buckley, of East Orange, for $300 damages, for alleged injuries received through the negligence of the physician.

It is claimed that while driving on West Front street July 31, the doctor drove his horse in a reckless manner and that one of the animal's hoofs alighted on the Italian's head. The plaintiff is an employe of the Plainfield Water Supply Company. Nelson and Wm. N. Runyon are counsel for the defendant. The case will come up November 8.

FIRST ENTERTAINMENT OF THE STAR COURSE.

Large Crowd Present at Y. M. C. A. Hall Last Evening to Attend It.

AN ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME.

J. WILLIAMS MACY, HUMORIST, WAS THE CHIEF ENTERTAINER.

Ably Assisted by Miss Anna Park, Cornet Soloist—Miss May Vincent Whitney Was the Accompanist—Programme Greatly Pleased.

The initial number of the series of entertainments, to be held during the fall and winter months under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., and known as the Star Course, was given last evening in the institution's hall, with J. Williams Macy, the humorist, as the central attraction. As a story teller, as a reciter and as a buffo basso he is simply immense, and without any assistance is perfectly able to keep any audience in an uproar. With him on this occasion, however, was Miss Anna Park, a cornet soloist of undoubted ability.

From first to last the audience, which filled every seat, was well entertained and did not fail to demonstrate its approval of the various numbers by long and hearty applause. At times it seemed as if the whole hall shook with the laughter produced by the clever work of the humorist and with the applause caused by the pleasing renditions of the instrumentalist.

"Grand Fantasia" and "Souvenir de la Suisse" as cornet solos by Miss Park, to the accompaniment of Miss May Vincent Whitney, of this city, were so well rendered that the audience was not satisfied until encores were given. Miss Whitney played no small part in the numbers and her work was much appreciated.

The song "A Friar of Olden Time" was so well sung by Mr. Macy that it was some time before the applause subsided. James Whitcomb Riley's story, "The Old Man and Jim," was of a pathetic character; "Waking the Young 'Uns," afforded room for acting, while "The Young Man Waiting" capped the climax as a "side-splitter." In this last selection the humorist described the actions of a young woman dressing while the young man patiently waited in the parlor below. There was more truth than fiction in it, and for that reason it was all the more enjoyable.

"Matildy's Beau" was good, but "Encouragement, or the Dusky Damsel," was better. He impersonated the damsel to perfection. Another negro sketch, which gave some idea of Mr. Macy's ability, was "When the Folks is Gone," where he describes the actions of a frightened old colored man when left alone in a country mansion. What probably took with the audience, especially the married portion, was the song entitled "A Department Store Ditty." The busy husband tells in a realistic way the fate he met when on a shopping tour with his wife. The concluding number, "The Whistling Boy," in which he mimicked the style of the average boy's whistling, brought down the house.

Miss Whitney acted as accompanist for the songs of the humorist as well as for the cornet solos of Miss Park.

A New Back For An Old One—How It Is Done In Plainfield.

Sometimes the back aches with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; sometimes pain shoots across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use plastering or rubbing the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. To exchange a bad for a new and stronger one follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. R. A. Martin, of No. 70 Jackson street, says: I had pain in my back and loins for about a year or more no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning, just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Not withstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain but they strengthened me in other ways.

THE STONE ABDUCTION.

Husband of One of the Captives Tells of the Crime.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Gregory M. Tsilka, husband of the woman held captive with Miss Ellen M. Stone by Bulgarian brigands, in a letter dated Salonika, Turkey, Oct. 7, and just received by the Rev. Howard A. N. Briggs, pastor of Waverly Congregational church, Jersey City Heights, says:

"On Tuesday last, a week ago, a large party of us were traveling from Donsko to Djumajo. On our way we found ourselves surrounded by a band of armed men, about thirty in number, all armed with the latest rifles. They demanded our surrender and then made us climb up a thick forest, stopping here and there to examine the place. After half an hour or more we were ordered to sit down. Then they chose Miss Stone, an American missionary, and my wife, and, taking two of our horses, they went farther in, while they kept us, the rest, till the next morning, so that we could not go and report to the government. Just at the time, before the taking of the ladies, we had to witness a most terrible thing. They had captured at the same time—a little before or after, we don't know—a Turk, and while they tied his hands back they were beating him with the backs of their rifles, and finally, taking his own knife, they stabbed him seven times, and he fell dead.

"For a long time we had to wait and hear nothing. Oh, the agony and the sleepless nights that we have spent waiting and watching, with no answer! Finally we got a letter telling us that the reason of their capture was to get money. They demand more than $100,000. It is a very large sum, and it seems impossible to get it. I am confident that our friends in America will do all in their power. Pray for us. When my wife gets free, you shall have a long story of her experiences. God grant her freedom.

"I would have written sooner, but I have been in the hands of the government, being examined and cross examined almost every day. Many people have suffered terribly on this account. Some have been beaten to death with the hope that before they died they would tell where the missionaries are. The inhabitants all around the place where they were captured are in prison or have run away and deserted their homes."

No Word From Miss Stone.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 29.—Those who have been in hourly expectation of favorable news regarding Miss Stone and her companion have again been disappointed. Nothing definite has yet been reached in the dealings with the missionary's abductors. A point which is much discussed among those here who are interested in the case is what shall be done if the brigands insist on being paid the £25,000 (Turkish) which they at first demanded. Scarcely half that sum is available thus far, and it is believed that should an agreement on reduced terms be impossible the offer of a less sum than £25,000 (Turkish) will be withdrawn, even at the cost of the life of Miss Stone.

The Discovery a Poor Ship.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Sir Clements Markham, president of the Royal Geographical society, writes to the papers today appealing for subscriptions to the amount of another £10,000 to cover the cost of the Norwegian whaler Morgenen, which has been purchased as a relief ship to the antarctic exploration ship Discovery. The Discovery on the voyage to Cape Town showed very serious defects. Although proving herself an excellent and stiff sea boat, she leaked badly, turned out to be a slow sailor and was found wanting in adequate coal capacity. These shortcomings, Sir Clements Markham points out, are additional reasons why a relief boat for the antarctic expedition is an imperative necessity. As the Discovery was the first ship built in Great Britain for polar expeditions these revelations are disappointing.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 29.—The Tennessee conference has expelled Rev. B. A. Cherry from the ministry and membership of the M. E. Church South. The Rev. Cherry was charged with fraudulently collecting insurance on personal property, in the destruction of which he is alleged to have been a co-incendiary.

SCHLEY QUESTIONED

Rigid Cross Examination by Captain Lemly.

THE ADMIRAL IS NOT FRUSTRATED.

Only About One-third of the Ground Covered During the Entire Day. Two Witnesses Yet to Be Called For Defense.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The cross examination of Admiral Schley began yesterday before the court of inquiry, and hardly more than a third of the ground was covered when the court adjourned at 4 o'clock. After Admiral Schley concludes two other witnesses will be called in his behalf, Admiral Barker and Captain Thomas Borden. The latter was an officer of the marine corps aboard the Brooklyn. The judge advocate then will call his witnesses in rebuttal, of whom there are understood to be more than fifteen, and it is probable that Admiral Schley's counsel will call witnesses in surrebuttal.

The crowd present, while hardly so large as on Friday last, when Admiral Schley told the story of the battle of Santiago, showed unabated interest in the proceedings. Nothing sensational developed, and the only outburst in the court occurred when Mr. Rayner, Admiral Schley's counsel, objected to a line of inquiry of the judge advocate designed to criticise Admiral Schley's alleged failure to formulate a plan of battle with the declaration that as Admiral Sampson was in command his junior had no right to plan an order of battle.

Admiral Schley concluded his direct examination, which continued only about ten minutes after the court convened in the morning, with a statement of the effect of the fire of the respective fleets at Santiago, showing that 36 per cent of the hits suffered by the enemy were scored by the Brooklyn's 5 inch guns, while his ship received 70 per cent of the hits from the Spanish ships.

Captain Lemly's cross examination was very searching. Admiral Schley, however, appeared to be unruffled throughout the examination, frankly admitting on several occasions that he could not remember little details after the lapse of three years. One line of inquiry which the judge advocate tried to press to show that Admiral Schley did not proceed "with dispatch" from Key West to Cienfuegos by attempting to contrast the speed made between Charleston and Key West with the time between Key West and Cienfuegos was curtailed by a decision of the court which confined the questions to the time subsequent to May 19, the day on which the flying squadron left Key West.

The retrograde movement, the firing upon the Colon and the battle of Santiago, which constitute the main features of the precept, were not touched upon.

A Strike Within a Strike.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 29.—Scranton has reached a unique position in the way of the street railway strike. Because of the discharge of two of their number the nonunion men brought here to take the places of the regular employees, who went on strike four weeks ago, have themselves inaugurated a strike. Eleven of them quit yesterday morning and six last evening. These say that there are only twenty-eight of the imported men left and that twenty of these will quit when they finish out an even week and get their pay. It is reported that 100 men employed in Buffalo during the exposition are on their way here to man the cars.

Attempt to Wreck a Train.

TORRINGTON, Conn., Oct. 29.—An attempt was made last night to wreck the northbound passenger train on the Naugatuck division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad due here at 7:46. A huge bowlder was placed on the track near the local station. The train struck the bowlder with such force that it was imbedded in the front of the engine. There were about fifty passengers aboard the train, but none was seriously injured. The authorities can find no clew to the miscreants who attempted the deed.

Entombed Sixty-one Hours.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 29.—After being entombed in the Highland Boy mine at Bingham, Utah, sixty-one hours, Charles Nutting was taken out by the rescuing party that has been constantly at work since the cavein occurred. He was alive, but very weak, when found. One other man, William Anderson, is still in the mine, and the rescuing party will continue at work until he is found. There is no hope, however, of finding him alive.

Father and Daughter Shot.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 29.—A special from Meridian, Miss., reports the shooting of A. A. Crenshaw, a Newton county farmer, and his eighteen-year-old daughter by a lawyer named Foy who had called to serve a writ of attachment. The farmer and his daughter opened fire on the lawyer, and he returned the fire. Crenshaw is thought to be fatally hurt, but the girl will recover. Foy escaped injury.

Gold Coin Found.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 29.—The captain of the British schooner Attractor, from Grand Cayman, West Indies, reports the finding of considerable gold coin on a reef in Colombian waters. The coin bears date of 1751 and resembles Mexican coin. It is thought it went down with a vessel wrecked years ago. The coin will be brought here and assayed. The find created excitement at fruit ports.

THE ASSASSIN DEAD.

Czolgosz Pays the Penalty of His Fiendish Crime.

A QUICK AND QUIET ELECTROCUTION

Doomed Man Showed No Signs of Grief or Repentance In Final Interviews—Remains to Be Buried In Prison Yard at Auburn.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 29.—At 7:15 o'clock this morning Leon F. Czolgosz paid tribute with his life to the law as the murderer of President William McKinley.

The electrical machine was made ready for its work yesterday. Auburn prison was carefully guarded, and the city was in its normal calm. Nothing occurred of a sensational character.

Walter N. Thayer, former warden of Dannemora prison, at the request of Superintendent Collins was present to assist Warden Mead during the execution.

Czolgosz was dressed in a very simple manner for the execution, a pair of black trousers, a loose gray shirt and a pair of gray socks completing the outfit. He wore no undergarments and no shoes.

Long before the gray light of morning broke Warden Mead and his assistants were astir. Most of the twenty-six witnesses selected to attend the execution had arrived at the prison by 6:30 o'clock. A few came before daylight.

Among those who witnessed the execution were Superintendent Collins, State Treasurer John P. Jaeckel, Superintendent of Public Instruction Skinner, Sheriff Caldwell and District Attorney Penney of Erie county, Justice White, who presided at the assassin's trial; Dr. C. F. McDonald, Prison Physician Gerin, G. R. Peck and C. F. Rattigan of Auburn, County Judge Underwood and President Lispenard of the state prison commission. State Treasurer Jaeckel acted as foreman of the execution jury.

When the assassin emerged from his cell to pay the penalty of his crime, he traversed a distance of twenty-five feet. He passed two of the cells on the same side of the building as the one he left, walked fifteen feet to the narrow corridor, five feet down that and through a great iron door that is only opened when the law demands the taking of a life.

Through this door he passed. The door was shut behind him instantly, so that no sound might reach the ears of the other men in the condemned cells. Five feet from the door stood the chair of death.

Once in the chair short work was made by the trained assistants of the executioner in affixing the apparatus to his limbs and head and connecting the wires that descend from the roof of the conical metallic cap placed on the head of the prisoner with the arms and legs of the chair, which were sheathed with active electrical conductors.

A hurried examination was made to see that everything was all right. Then the warden, with a handkerchief in his hand, signaled to the executioner that all was ready.

Electrician Davis turned on the fatal current, and in a moment, which seemed to the tense minds of the witnesses an eternity, the assassin of William McKinley was a lifeless corpse.

Czolgosz suffered a slight nervous attack late yesterday, but remained sullen and stoical up to the time the prison closed at 10 o'clock. He refused to heed the words of the priest who came to urge spiritual preparation for death and declined to either re-embrace Roman Catholicism or renounce anarchy. He showed no strength of love for kin, nor did he turn to any of those higher considerations which ordinarily claim the thoughts of men occupying his position. He may have suffered untold torture, but outwardly he seemed to be sullen and indifferent.

The state is not to surrender possession of his body, and by sundown it will have been secretly interred in ground controlled by the officials of Auburn prison.

Waldeck Czolgosz, brother of the murderer, foreseeing endless difficulties and possibly angry demonstrations in an attempt to give the body ordinary burial, heeded the advice of Superintendent of State Prisons Collins and Warden Mead and formally relinquished all claim to it. He merely stipulated that at the close of the autopsy the body should be buried intact. All chance of an unhappy and unfortunate sequel to the execution either in displays of popular contempt or the exhibition of ghastly relics is therefore finally estopped.

The plan of burning his clothing and papers was carried out immediately after the execution.

Czolgosz held his last two interviews last night, the first with Superintendent Collins and the second with his brother and brother-in-law. Both of the interviews were brief, and the interviewers did most of the talking until the question of religion was mentioned, when Czolgosz broke from his seeming lethargy and violently denounced the church and the clergy and made his relatives promise that there should be no service for him living or dead.

Prior to the late evening interviews Czolgosz reluctantly received Fathers Fudzinski and Hickey. It was late in the afternoon and occurred after he had once refused to meet them. When they reached the prison, Superintendent Collins conveyed their request for an interview to the prisoner. Czolgosz sent back word that he did not care to see them, but the priests asked to be allowed to go to him despite his refusal.

Superintendent Collins consented and personally escorted them to the cell. The priests remained with Czolgosz for three-quarters of an hour and earnestly pleaded with the prisoner to repent and pray for divine forgiveness. He rejected all their advances, however, and they regretfully withdrew. They told the prisoner they would hold themselves ready to answer a call from him at any hour of the night. The prisoner suffered no loss of appetite and during the day ate heartily the usual allowance of food given to prisoners. Throughout his entire confinement he possessed a good appetite, and his physical condition had been excellent.

The resolution of Superintendent Collins to prevent spectacle or sensation in the transportation and burial or cremation of the body of Czolgosz took new zest from two offers that were submitted by men of questionable enterprise. A museum keeper in one of the larger eastern cities telegraphed him an offer of $5,000 spot cash for either the body or the garments of the murderer, and the owner of a kinetoscope wired Warden Mead that he would pay $2,000 for permission to take a moving picture of Czolgosz entering the death chamber. The superintendent also had his suspicions aroused as to the motives of some of the relatives of Czolgosz in seeking the body in view of their poverty and the trouble and danger possible in connection with its removal and disposal.

HOME FROM BRAZIL.

Minister Bryan Returns After Two Years' Efficient Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Charles Page Bryan, United States minister to Brazil, called at the state department yesterday to pay his respects to Secretary Hay. He has returned to the United States on leave for the first time in two years and is going from Washington to his home in Chicago. Mr. Bryan reports a considerable improvement in the financial conditions in Brazil and says that the entire country is tranquil. Aboard the United States steamship Atlanta he personally visited nineteen governors of Brazilian states. This cruise took the Atlanta into many ports where a United States man-of-war never before had been seen and into some where a warship of any kind never had been.

Mr. Bryan has devoted himself for the past two years to an earnest effort to cultivate closer trade relations between Brazil and the United States, and now all American products are accorded "most favored nation" treatment on entry into Brazil. Minister Bryan in speaking of a published report to the effect that Brazil discriminates against American flour in favor of Argentine flour said that such was not the case; that there was no discrimination.

He says it is expected the force in Cuba will be very much reduced and hopes that the force in the Philippines also can be reduced.

Six Injured by Gun Explosion.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 29.—By an explosion of a Colt's automatic firing gun at Fort Leavenworth Captain Charles T. Menoher and five men of the Twenty-eighth battery of field artillery were wounded, three severely. The gun, a new one, was being tested and was allowed to become too hot, and when a shell came into the breech after firing the shell exploded, tearing out the breech, fragments of which struck and injured the men.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 29.—Sewell's sawmill, situated about four miles from Texarkana, has been destroyed by the explosion of a boiler, the force of the explosion driving the boiler a hundred feet from its foundation. Engineer Martin was instantly killed, Mr. Sewell, the owner of the mill, and Mr. Nolan of Texarkana were seriously injured and several workmen hurt by flying splinters.

Mrs. Grant Ill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, widow of General U. S. Grant, is ill at her home here. She has been confined to her house since her return from Canada about ten days ago. At present her illness is not regarded as critical. It began with a cold, and the developments have been such as to alarm her friends. Today she was thought to be a little better.

Great Britain Offers Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—As a quick way of adjusting the claims of a small number of American citizens who were deported from South Africa and the Transvaal as a military necessity the British government has offered to pay the lump sum of $30,000 over to the state department, which will distribute the money among the claimants.

REPORT ON ORDNANCE.

General Buffington Favors the Krag-Jorgensen Rifle.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—General Buffington, chief of ordnance, in his annual report argues strongly against the detail system so far as concerns his own department. He points to the cultivation by European countries of special ordnance experts as showing the necessity for making this service a life work. He refers briefly to the necessity of reforming the system of allotting contracts, pointing to two cases where for three years and for seven years respectively the department has had contracts dragging along which it had been forced to make by congress and otherwise.

General Buffington submits a bill looking to the complete equipment of the national guard with the Krag-Jorgensen. He says that this rifle has met with approval, but he has not been content with that and has made a sample rifle much simpler, cheaper and stronger which will give a ball a velocity of 200 feet per second more than the existing model and will be equipped with a rod bayonet.

General Buffington tells at length of the experiments that have been made by his department during the past year to find a high explosive and a proper fuse for it and says that the long, conscientious and laborious work under discouraging conditions has resulted in obtaining two high explosives for field and siege guns and two for seacoast defense. The latter and the fuse are superior to any known to the department.

QUIET IN CUBA.

Little Pre-election Excitement—Annexation Scheme Fails.

HAVANA, Oct. 29.—As yet there is not much interest displayed in the coming elections. Only a few politicians are active. The arrival in Havana of General Bartolome Maso is not considered to have political significance.

The movement in favor of annexation seems to have fallen to the ground, and a demonstration which had been widely advertised has been indefinitely postponed.

The Havana municipal council, which has under consideration the bids for the Havana sewering and paving contract that were opened last week, has received a letter from the city engineer, Mr. Barden, recommending the acceptance of the bid of S. P. McGivney & R. T. Rockeby of Jersey City, which is $10,393,915.99.

Mr. Barden says the average of the bids is within 6 per cent of the estimate of the engineering department, while the bid which he has recommended for acceptance is within 1 per cent of the estimate.

Charges of Bribery.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 29.—Fifteen affidavits were filed in the superior court here to substantiate the charges of attempted bribery of one of the people's witnesses in the trial of City Attorney Lant K. Salisbury on the charge of accepting a bribe in connection with the attempted waterworks deal here a year ago. The principal affidavit filed by the prosecution was made by Frederick H. Garman of New York, the most important witness for the people. He charges that he was approached in New York city some months ago by State Senator George E. Nichols of Ionia, Mich., one of the attorneys for Salisbury, and Thomas F. McGarry, a lawyer of this city, also indicted by the grand jury for connection with the water scandal, and one Richter, who offered him $6,500 not to come to Grand Rapids to give his testimony at that time.

A Plea For the Negro.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The Daily Chronicle prints a long article by Professor W. S. Scarborough appealing for equality in the eyes of the law and a fair field in education and the ways of livelihood for the negro. In the course of a sympathetic editorial The Daily Chronicle remarks that Great Britain, if she had a similar negro population, would probably act toward it much as the Americans do. The paper praises President Roosevelt's action regarding Booker T. Washington, however, as intended to check the tendency to look upon the negro as below the level of citizenship and public rights.

Guns Sent to Honolulu.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—General Chaffee has notified the war department that in accordance with instructions he has forwarded thirty-six field guns to Honolulu on the transport McClellan, which left Manila on the 18th inst. These guns are intended for the artillery troops at Honolulu, who are now without guns and therefore have had to be drilled as infantry and to forego artillery practice.

A DEADLY RACE RIOT

Thirty Killed on Louisiana and Mississippi Border.

THE SHERIFF ASKS FOR TROOPS.

The Greatest Excitement Prevails, and Farmers Are Rushing to the Scene Armed With Winchesters and Shotguns.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29.—A special to The Picayune from Columbia, Miss., says the sheriff of Marion county has telegraphed Governor Longino for troops to suppress a race riot on the Louisiana and Mississippi border. A number have been killed at Balltown, La. The greatest excitement prevails, and Washington parish and Marion county farmers are rushing to the scene with shotguns and Winchester rifles to join in the conflict. The death list is now estimated at thirty.

A special from Jackson, Miss., says that Governor Heard of Louisiana has telegraphed Governor Longino of Mississippi that there is a race riot at Balltown, Washington parish, La., and that thirty are reported killed. Washington parish adjoins Marion county, and Governor Heard asks for permission for Louisiana troops to pass through Mississippi. Governor Longino promptly granted the request.

THE NEWS CONFIRMED.

Five Hundred Men Under Arms In Washington Parish.

AMITE CITY, La., Oct. 29.—Three white men and eleven negroes killed is the startling and terrible news from Washington parish.

A man just arrived from Franklinton confirms the above information, but he knew nothing of what has happened during the past twenty-four hours. The first news of the race riot was brought here by Cornelius Mixon, who, with his mother, left from near Franklinton. He stated that white men rode into Franklinton at 2 o'clock yesterday morning asking for help, saying that the negroes were up in arms and threatened to exterminate the whites. The scene of the trouble is at or near Balltown, where a negro was burned last week for criminally assaulting a white woman. This was not the cause, however, of the murders in which three white men and eleven negroes were killed and several wounded. Mr. Mixon saw and talked with many men from the scene, and they said that much worse trouble was expected, as armed men were flocking to the scene, and it was reported the blacks were equally active in preparing for a battle.

P. B. Carter arrived from Franklinton a few hours later and stated that the situation was terrible and that trouble is feared. He said Joe Seals and Charles Elliott and another white man whose name he did not know were dead and E. H. Thompson, a white man, wounded and eleven negroes were dead. His information was only up to Sunday night and was obtained from people who went to Franklinton for help. At 3 o'clock yesterday morning a posse left Franklinton for the scene in charge of Sheriff Simmons, and from all over the country armed men were hurrying to the same place. Mr. Carter said 500 men probably were under arms in Washington parish.

No Authority to Send Troops.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 29.—Governor Longino has no authority to order troops to Balltown, La. He has, however, granted the request of the sheriff of Marion county asking that troops be sent to the state line near the scene for the protection of Mississippi people and for the suppression of the rioters should the Mississippi line be crossed.

New Title For Dr. Conaty.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Right Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, D. D., rector of the Catholic university, has received the brief from Rome conferring upon him the honorary appointment of titular bishop of Samos, a famous port in the Ionian archipelago in the Grecian sea and under the jurisdiction of the archbishop of Rhodes. The consecration will take place at the Catholic university here Sunday, Nov. 24. The ceremony, occurring so soon after the meetings of the university trustees and of the archbishops of the country, will be a notable event. Bishop Elect Conaty will continue as rector of the university.

General Brooke Plans a House.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Major General John R. Brooke, who is now stationed at Governor's Island, New York, in command of the department of the east, has purchased a building site of one and a quarter acres at Rosemont, a fashionable suburb eleven miles from this city, and plans are already under way for a residence. As he is to be retired in July of next year General Brooke is desirous of making a home for himself in the county in which he was born. The site he has selected is in Montgomery county.

Chile and Argentina at Peace.

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Oct. 29.—It is officially asserted here, in view of the warlike rumors published in the British newspapers, that the relations between Chile and Argentina are perfectly tranquil and that there is not the slightest cause for alarm. The existing difficulties will be settled amicably between the two governments. The only disquieting features are the utterances of the newspapers of Buenos Ayres. Nobody here contemplates war between Chile and Argentina.

Copper Mines Reopened.

BUTTE, Mon., Oct. 29.—All the mines of the Amalgamated Copper company, which were closed temporarily on account of a break in one of the concentrators, have been opened. One thousand men went back to work.

Register Tonight.

It is now just a week from Election day. Whom are you going to vote for? Above will be seen the list of candidates of the two leading parties. Then there are the Prohibition and Socialist-Labor tickets. They have candidates for governor and three assemblymen but have, so far, made no attempt to nominate candidates for the municipal offices. While the two last named parties will have their supporters, there is not the ghost of chance that they will elect any of their candidates. The winning candidates are in the list above, either one side or the other.

Now if you intend to vote next Tuesday, it would be very well if you found out whether or not you are registered. If you are not, you must see that your name is placed on the list before 9 o'clock tonight as that will be the last opportunity you will have before election to be registered.

What Rev. W. T. Griffin said in his sermon at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday evening, concerning many voters was only too true. There are many, right in this city as well, who neglect their opportunity to cast a ballot. Some fail to register. Others will not visit the polls and cast their vote. And yet it is these same people who are always finding fault with the existing conditions.

When the national election comes round every four years, the total registration in this city is considerably increased. The vote polled on that occasion is always larger. Such people, who can only be persuaded to exercise their right of suffrage when some national question is at issue, are nearly as bad as the others. They should be brought to a realizing sense of the duty of every good American to cast his ballot on Election day and not allow any circumstance prevent him from enjoying that same right.

The Republicans have finally selected a place for their mass meeting Thursday. It will held in Reform Hall. There are at least several thousand people in both city and borough who want to see and hear Franklin Murphy and the other speakers, so somebody is going to get left. The Republican leaders are mourning the day that the doors of Music Hall were closed to the public.

It is generally considered that the office of city judge is the hardest of any municipal position to fill and retain personal popularity. The present incumbent, William N. Runyon, has accomplished the desired end and will, unless the very unexpected happens, be returned to the office for three years more.

Alfred the Great was a good and wise ruler and the people of America have much to thank him for. It was very proper that the public schools of both city and borough should honor his memory with special exercises.

The end of the local golf season is not far distant. Considering all things, this season has been the most successful known in the history of the royal and ancient game in Plainfield.

If you want to vote at next Tuesday's election, today offers the last opportunity to place your name on the registry of your ward. If you are not registered, you cannot vote.

Why isn't it just as fair to sell water by the meter as gas? Just put that question to the officials of the Plainfield Water Supply Company and tell them you want a meter.

The vicinity of Grant avenue and South Second street manages to figure quite frequently in cases at the city court. Wonder why it is.

The fence at the North Avenue station is very difficult to see at night. It should be painted white.

The Mistake of the Polar Bear.

Nordenskiold found that the white bears generally went through a long performance of stalking his sailors, clearly on the mistaken conclusion that they were seals. As the men were clothed partly in sealskin, it was a very natural mistake. But the interest of the story lies in the generalization made by the bear. The bear said: "There are two or three seals, one standing up on its flippers in a very unusual way. I will therefore stalk them unseen as long as I can, and when they see me, pretend to be doing something else." So the men, with their guns and lances, who wanted to shoot the bear, had the pleasure of seeing him carefully crawling behind rocks and ice hummocks, making long detours this way and that, and every now and then clambering up a rock and peeping cautiously over to see if the seals had gone. On the open snow the bear would saunter off in another direction, and then, falling flat, push himself along on his belly, with his great front paws covering his black muzzle, the only thing not matching the snow about him. Just as the bear thought he had got his "seal" the latter fired and shot him, a victim of false analogy.—London Spectator.

Tell Stories for Pay.

Stories to the normal child are as necessary as the air it breathes, but the true and inspired story teller is rare. That a number of young women gifted in this particular should turn their talent to financial account is quite a natural sequence. One young woman has adopted this work as a distinct profession, not only going from house to house telling stories to children to relieve tired mothers and distracted fathers, but applying her gift as well in a general way in the conduct of children's parties, where stories, monologues, games and songs furnish entertainment for the young company. It has been found that mentally deficient children can often be reached by means of a story, and this work is included usually in that part of the professional story teller.—Motherhood.

And He Went to the Chowder.

He occupies a very unimportant position in one of the city departments, but he was expected to work on Labor day. That is how it happened that as early as August 24 he wrote to the head of the department asking to be excused from work on that day, "to attend a funeral."

The private secretary happened to glance over the note before it reached the commissioner. Then he thought a moment, compared dates and returned the note to the sender, indorsing it as follows:

"We don't keep bodies unburied for eight days at this season. Try again. Why not tell the truth?"

Soon the application came back, and this time it read: "To attend Councilman Foley's chowder."

And the request was granted.—N. Y. Times.

Four Captain Lawtons.

It's an odd fact that there are now four Capt. Lawtons in the United States regular army—all young men, not one of whom is related to the late Gen. Henry W. Lawton, who made the name illustrious in Cuba and the Philippines. One of these, Capt. Louis B. Lawton, is to be retired for desperate wounds received in battle in China, where he distinguished himself not only for extraordinary heroism, but for sagacious action in a dangerous situation. After an exceptionally brilliant service he must now give up his chosen career, because of these honorable wounds. In any other country extraordinary honors would await such a man.—N. Y. Sun.

Handshaking a National Custom.

The Swedish people are always shaking hands with each other. At breakfast or dinner the children or the guests of a household shake hands with the mother or the hostess when they enter the room, wishing her good morning, and also before they leave it, thanking her for the food they have eaten. At formal dinner parties the same ceremony takes place. The guests shake hands with the host and hostess when they enter and again before they leave the dining-room, and of course the ceremony is repeated when they say good night before leaving the house.—W. E. Curtis, in Chicago Record-Herald.

MONGOOSE AND SNAKEBITE.

Blood of the Animal Contains an Antitoxin Which Is Destructive to the Poison.

There is probably no casualty more appalling than snakebite, by reason of the usually fatal result which follows the injury when the snake is of a highly venomous species, says the Lonron Chronicle. Even a minute quantity of the virus injected into the blood will prove death dealing within a very short period of time. Remedies for snakebite have hitherto been limited to attempts made to prevent the spread of the poison through the system and to the fortifying of the patient against collapse. But till within very recent times nothing in the way of antidote or specific cure for snakebite was known. True, there have been "snake stones"—still used in the east—which have been vaunted as specifics, but from an examination of specimens one finds them to be either pieces of ordinary mineral or bits of bone or pieces of plant roots. It is fairly safe to say that if any case of snakebite is said to be cured by the application of a "snake stone" the bite was not that of a poisonous species. Also it has been said that the immunity of the mongoose, the renowned snake killer, was due to the animal eating some herb or other which counterbalanced the effect of the bite. Nobody, however, has ever been able to discover this herb, and it happens that a much more scientific explanation of the power of the mongoose to resist the virus of the serpent is forthcoming. That explanation rests on the fact that the blood of the animal contains a principle (or "antitoxin," as it may be named) which is destructive to the poison of the snake, or which, at any rate, renders the body of the mongoose resistant to the action of the venom.

REFRIGERATING EGGS.

One of the Oddest of Recent Inventions for Cooling Various Beverages.

One of the oddest of recent inventions is a refrigerating egg, as it might be called. It is an ovoid capsule of nickel-plated copper, about the size and shape of a hen's egg, hollow and nearly filled with water. For use, it is frozen, so that its contents become ice.

If you have a glass of milk that is not cold enough, you do not like to put ice into it, because dilution with water spoils the beverage. But, if you have one of these eggs handy, you may drop it into the glass, and in a few moments the liquid is reduced to the desired temperature. In the same way you may cool your cup of coffee, if it is too hot, and the idea is equally applicable to any other drink.

Many people nowadays are disinclined to use ice in their drinking water, because it may contain germs. All danger is avoided by dropping one of these metal eggs into one's tumbler.

The refrigerating egg, according to the Saturday Evening Post, is a little less than full of water, so as to allow for the slight expansion of the liquid in freezing; otherwise, of course, the capsule would burst. After being filled, the capsule is sealed so perfectly that no one can tell where the opening was, and thus it is absolutely water tight.

Such an egg, of metal, it is said, can hardly be broken, and ought to last forever.

WASN'T THE REAL THING.

So the Telephone Girl Did Not Return Her Admirer's Kiss Over the Wire.

With a blush the young girl at the telephone branch took the round black clasps of rubber from her ears, says the Chicago Daily News, and, turning on the girl beside her amused, shocked eyes, she said:

"Maggie, he did it again!"

"The rascal!" said Maggie.

"And, Maggie, do you know what? He's told some of his friends about it, and now, in calling him up, they do it, too, if I happen to make the connection."

"Gee!" said Maggie.

"Now, Maggie, I won't stand for it much longer. I'll give him a call. It's so silly—I don't see what fun he gets out of it. He does it every morning. 'Good morning, Miss Blanche,' he says, laughing a little, as soon as I answer his ring, and then he makes that sound like a kiss, and laughs and waits. It's a kiss; it's a kiss all right; a kiss sounds very plain and real over the wire, and I suppose he expects me to kiss him back. I don't, though. I'm not so foolish. If it was the real thing, now, why, then—"

"That's what," said Maggie.

Women and Farm Work.

It is said that fully 500,000 women are employed in the western states as harvest laborers and general farm hands. This is accounted for by the numerous improvements in agricultural machinery, which enable a woman to do the work as easily as a man, and also by the large number of women who own farms and manage them themselves. This is especially true in Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska and Minnesota, where there are farms of 1,000 acres belonging to women. Persons who are acquainted with life in these states assert that in many cases the women make more money out of the farms than did the husbands or fathers from whom they inherited them.

Headache is merely a symptom. It is simply reflected irritation from one organ on another. The cause is deep down. The head is sick, but it is the stomach that is to blame: It is there the trouble lies.

Pain in the brain is the signal of a distressed stomach. That is all. When the distress ceases below, the signal pain is withdrawn from the brain at once; but you can't cure sick headache without removing the cause. You may deaden the pain for a time with opiates or bromides, but the after effects are worse—ten times worse—than the original headache.

The safest, surest and best way is to remove the cause, and to do this there is but one way. Take something that will help the stomach and bowels to perfectly and promptly perform their work. Take Ripans Tabules. They will remove the cause. Sick headache can't stay with you five minutes after your stomach and digestive organs are set to rights.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense remedy for sick headache, because their action is based on the laws of cause and effect. They do not merely aim at the symptom, but they strike at and hit the cause and remove it; they soothe an irritable stomach; they rid the stomach of offending matter, whether food or bile; they strengthen and revive the overworked digestive organs. Then again Ripans Tabules do their work in such a gentle, coaxing way that the unpleasant results of common remedies are avoided.

WANTED—A case of bad health that R-I-P-A-N-S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. Observe the word R-I-P-A-N-S on the package and accept no substitute. R-I-P-A-N-S, [illegible] at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for five cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

EVENING MATERIALS.

They Are of Delicate Colorings and Very Soft and Clinging.

The evening materials are particularly beautiful this season. They are all of sheer and artistic textures, such as will adapt themselves to the soft clinging effects as well as to the many tucks and embroideries which fashion now demands. Scarfs of mousseline hand painted are used in every conceivable way on young girl's frocks. All black gowns of point d'esprit are relieved with clusters of hand painted velvet flowers appliqued to the gown.

Soft Persian panne in delicate pink, green or yellow makes a beautiful princess gown. All lace dresses are made over delicate slips of colored chiffon. A gown of cream chiffon embroidered with gold thread tucked closely was recently made for a well known society leader. All the soft shimmering silks and brocades are fashionable. Only stiff materials are debarred.

A most elaborate reception gown is the subject of today's picture. It is made of Persian flowered silk trimmed with black chantilly applications and wavy bands of white mousseline de soie trimmed with the narrowest bands of black velvet. The skirt is made with a shirred yoke, and it is trimmed five inches above the knees by a band of the wavy white mousseline. From this point the skirt is divided into narrow panels by means of black chantilly insertions. The necessary fullness is given by a wide flounce of the white mousseline banded with the narrow black velvet ribbons. This flounce is headed by a very rich medallion applique of black chantilly. The blouse is trimmed after a fashion to correspond, and it opens over a full vest of white mousseline and lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

INEXPENSIVE FURS.

Hints For the Woman With a Small Income.

For those who are not inclined to invest in expensive sables there are a variety of less costly furs which are in equally as good taste. Bear muffs and boas, which are very stylish and warm, may be purchased from $35 up, and scarfs of lynx, a very becoming fur to brunettes by the way, can be had for very much less. A very elegant fur, and one which makes a brave showing, is sable fox. This is merely a common fox dyed sable color. It wears well and comes in all the sable styles. Boas can be had for about $50 and muffs for $25.

An economical practice is to make one's muff of some bit of pretty velvet, matching the fur and to trim it with a bit of lace and a couple of fur tails. Muffs of this description may be made very handsome and they are really more dressy than the plain fur ones.

BROADTAIL AND CRIMSON PANNE.

If a hat is added, made also of the same fur and velvet, the effect is excessively rich and becoming.

Today's cut shows a very stylish hat, coat and muff. Following the latest dictates of fashion these articles are made to match. First, the little coat is of broadtail trimmed with bands of white broadcloth, with black velvet cordings and a deep insetting of red panne, embroidered in white. The hat is of shirred deep red panne with straps of the white cloth edged with the narrow black velvet. It is also trimmed with a long cream white feather. The muff is of the same dark red panne with a wide band of the broadtail and a lining of cream chiffon tucked.

CHAPTER IV.

Nearly a year later, in the month of October, 18—, London was startled by a crime of singular ferocity, and rendered all the more notable by the high position of the victim. The details were few and startling. A maid-servant, living alone in a house not far from the river, had gone up-stairs to bed about eleven. Although a fog rolled over the city in the small hours, the early part of the night was cloudless, and the lane, which the maid's window overlooked, was brilliantly lit by the full moon. It seems she was romantically given, for she sat down upon her box, which stood immediately under the window, and fell into a dream of musing. Never (she used to say, with streaming tears, when she narrated that experience), never had she felt more at peace with all men or thought more kindly of the world. And as she so sat she became aware of an aged and beautiful gentleman with white hair, drawing near along the lane; and advancing to meet him, another and very small gentleman, to whom at first she paid less attention.

When they had come within speech (which was just under the maid's eyes) the older man bowed and accosted the other with a very pretty manner of politeness. It did not seem as if the subject of his address were of great importance. Indeed, from his pointing, it sometimes appeared as if he were only inquiring his way; but the moon shone on his face as he spoke, and the girl was pleased to watch it, it seemed to breathe such an innocent and old-world kindness of disposition, yet with something high, too, as of a well-founded self-content. Presently her eye wandered to the other, and she was surprised to recognize in him a certain Mr. Hyde, who had once visited her master, and for whom she had conceived a dislike. He had in his hand a heavy cane, with which he was trifling; but he answered never a word, and seemed to listen with an illcontained impatience. And then all of a sudden he broke out in a great flame of anger, stamping with his foot, brandishing the cane, and carrying on—as the maid described it—like a madman. The old gentleman took a step back, with the air of one very much surprised and a trifle hurt, and at that Mr. Hyde broke out of all bounds and clubbed him to the earth. And next moment, with ape-like fury, he was trampling his victim under foot and hailing down a storm of blows, under which the bones were audibly shattered and the body jumped upon in the roadway. At the horror of these sights and sounds the maid fainted.

It was 2 o'clock when she came to herself and called for the police. The murderer was gone long ago; but there lay his victim in the middle of the lane, incredibly mangled. The stick with which the deed had been done, although it was of some rare and very tough and heavy wood, had broken in the middle under the stress of this insensate cruelty; and one splintered half had rolled in the neighboring gutter—the other, without doubt, had been carried away by the murderer. A purse and a gold watch were found upon the victim; but no cards or papers, except a sealed and stamped envelope, which he had been probably carrying to the post, and which bore the name and address of Mr. Utterson.

This was brought to the lawyer the next morning before he was out of bed; and he had no sooner seen it, and been told the circumstances, than he shot out a solemn lip. "I shall say nothing until I have seen the body," said he. "This may be very serious. Have the kindness to wait while I dress." And with the same grave countenance he hurried to the police station, whither the body had been carried. As soon as he came into the cell, he nodded.

"Yes," said he, "I recognize him. I am sorry to say that this is Sir Danvers Carew."

"Good God, sir," exclaimed the officer, "is it possible?" and the next moment his eye lighted up with professional ambition. "This will make a deal of noise," he said. "And perhaps you can help us to the man." And he briefly narrated what the maid had seen, and showed the broken stick.

Mr. Utterson had already qualied at the name of Hyde, but when the stick was laid before him, he could doubt no longer; broken and battered as it was, he recognized it for one that he had himself presented many years before to Henry Jekyll.

"Is this Mr. Hyde a person of small stature?" he inquired.

"Particularly small and particularly wicked-looking, is what the maid calls him," said the officer.

Mr. Utterson reflected; and then, raising his head, "If you will come with me in my cab," he said, "I think I can take you to his house."

It was by this time about 9 in the morning, and the first fog of the season. A great chocolate colored pall lowered over heaven, but the wind was continually charging and routing these embattled vapors; so that as the cab crawled from street to street, Mr. Utterson beheld a marvelous number of degrees and hues of twilight; for here it would be dark like the black end of the evening; and there would be a glow of a rich, lurid brown, like the light of some strange conflagration; and here, for a moment, the fog would be quite broken up, and a haggard shaft of daylight would glance in between the swirling wreaths. The dismal quarter of Soho seen under these changing glimpses, with its muddy ways and slatternly passengers, and its lamps, which had never been extinguished or had been kindled afresh to combat this mournful reinvasion of darkness, seemed, in the lawyer's eyes, like a district of some city in a nightmare. The thoughts of his mind, besides, were of the gloomiest dye; and when he glanced at the companion of his drive, he was conscious of some touch of that terror of the law and the law's officers which may at times assail the most honest.

As the cab drew up before the address indicated, the fog lifted a little and showed him a dingy street, a gin-palace, a low French eating-house, a shop for the retail of penny numbers and two-penny salads, many ragged children huddled in the door-ways, and many women of many different nationalities passing out, key in hand, to have a morning glass; and the next moment the fog settled down again upon that part, as brown as umber, and cut him off from his blackguardy surrounding. This was the home of Henry Jekyll's favorite; of a man who was heir to a quarter of a million sterling.

An ivory-faced and silvery-haired old woman opened the door. She had an evil face, smoothed by hypocrisy, but her manners were excellent. Yes, she said, this was Mr. Hyde's, but he was not at home; he had been in that night very late, but he had gone away again in less than an hour. There was nothing strange in that; his habits were very irregular, and he was often absent; for instance, it was nearly two months since she had seen him till yesterday.

"Very well, then, we wish to see his rooms," said the lawyer; and when the woman began to declare it was impossible, "I had better tell you who this person is," he added. "This is Inspector Newcomen, of Scotland Yard."

A flash of odious joy appeared upon the woman's face. "Ah!" said she, "he is in trouble! What has he done?"

Mr. Utterson and the inspector exchanged glances. "He doesn't seem a very popular character," observed the latter. "And, now, my good woman, just let me and this gentleman have a look about us."

In the whole extent of the house, which but for the old woman remained otherwise empty, Mr. Hyde had only used a couple of rooms; but these were furnished with luxury and good taste. A closet was filled with wine; the plate was of silver, the napery elegant; a good picture hung upon the walls—a gift, as Utterson supposed, from Henry Jekyll, who was much of a connoisseur; and the carpets were of many plies, and agreeable in color. At this moment, however, the rooms bore every mark of having been recently and hurriedly ransacked; clothes lay about the floor, with their pockets inside out; lock-fast drawers stood open; and on the hearth there lay a pile of gray ashes, as though many papers had been burned. From these embers the inspector disinterred the butt-end of a green check-book, which had resisted the action of the fire; the other half of the stick was found behind the door; and as this clinched his suspicions, the officer declared himself delighted. A visit to the bank, where several thousand pounds were found to be lying to the murderer's credit, completed his gratification.

"You may depend upon it, sir," he told Mr. Utterson, "I have him in my hand. He must have lost his head, or he never would have left the stick, or, above all, burned the check-book. Why, money's life to the man. We have nothing to do but wait for him at the bank, and get out the handbills."

This last, however, was not so easy of accomplishment; for Mr. Hyde had aumbered few familiars—even the master of the servant-mail had only seen him twice; his family could nowhere be traced; he had never been photographed; and the few who could describe him differed widely, as common observers will. Only on one point were they agreed; and that was the haunting sense of unexpressed deformity with which the fugitive impressed his beholders.

Money Sent to General Burgoyne in 1777 Is Recovered from Lake Champlain.

Ten thousand English sovereigns, after lying for nearly a century and a quarter in an old hulk at the bottom of East bay, Lake Champlain, have been recovered and are now deposited in the Allen national bank in Fairhaven, says a dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean. For many years there had been a tradition in this part of the state that at the bottom of East bay, near Carver's falls, was a sunken boat containing a large amount of English gold, with which it was intended to pay off the troops of Gen. Burgoyne in 1777.

The gold was shipped from Quebec in a small sloop, with crew and guard of ten men, the expedition being under the command of one Capt. Johnson. It was intended to deliver the money to Burgoyne, as his men were almost in a state of mutiny because they had not been paid. The vessel was attacked by Americans, scuttled, and the crew killed.

A civil engineer, who drew the plans and superintended the construction of the big dam at Carver's falls for an electric power station, concluded that he would investigate. Taking with him about 30 men, he changed the course of the stream, and then with pick and shovel soon had one side of the sloop free. A charge of dynamite broke up the hull. The timbers were found in good condition.

In the cabin was found considerable glass and other ware, 15 muskets, much the worse for their long immersion, and other minor articles. An old iron chest was found in the captain's room. When opened it was found to contain 10,000 sovereigns.

Story of Prince Edward.

Prince Edward, the grandson of Great Britain's king, although only seven years old, has already displayed such a liking for the sea that it has been decided to make a sailor of him, and he will go on a training ship in a few years. His present education consists of a few short daily lessons, for the king is strongly opposed to overburdening the youthful intellect. His recollection is keen of how unpleasant it was to be a "walking dictionary" at 20. Prince Edward is a precocious youngster. At a juvenile party, in the presence of the duke of Cornwall, he was given toys of wood, for which he solemnly thanked his playmates. So seriously old-fashioned was his expression, that his father exclaimed: "The little wretch! he speaks better than I do" —which was not far wrong, for the duke of Cornwall is notoriously nervous and unfitted for public speaking. —N. WHERE THE COIN WAS MADE.

Location of the Mint Manufacturing It Can Be Determined by Certain Marks.

Coins and "coons" look alike to most men, but it is easy to tell where any coin of 25 cents or over was made. There are four places of coinage in the country—Philadelphia, San Francisco, New Orleans and Carson City. The first mint was established at Philadelphia, and as the founding of other places of coinage was then unforeseen there was no necessity for putting a mark on coins which came from that city. But as the country grew in territory, population and wealth, and the mines in the west were developed more and more each year, it became necessary to establish other mints whereby the government could keep track of the output from each place, and, if an error should occur in the coinage, could at once locate the mint from which the defective coin had come. All coins are supposed to weigh exactly the same as others of the same denomination. Silver coinage may be pretty well worn before it is liable to rejection, but that is not the case with gold pieces, and a slight decrease in weight necessitates recoinage. It was for these reasons that marks are put on coins made elsewhere than in the Quaker City.

These marks are placed below the eagle or the bunch of arrows. If there be a letter in the place designated it will be either a small s, o, or the double letters cc. Those bearing the letter s are from the mint at San Francisco. Others having the letter o are from New Orleans, while those bearing the letters cc are from Carson City. If you do not find any letter on the coin at all it is an indication that the coin came from Philadelphia.

POLAR BEARS AS PETS.

Well-Known Animal-Tamer Who Has Succeeded in Taming Two of the Beasts.

Hitherto it has been supposed that polar bears could neither be trained nor rendered docile, but now Mr. Richard Sawade, a well-known European tamer of animals and a notable authority on bears in particular, shows clearly that such a supposition is entirely erroneous, says the St. Louis Republic.

He secured two polar bears some time ago and at once determined to train them. In this he succeeded beyond his expectation—so well indeed that these monstrous animals now follow him as obediently as dogs, ready at his slightest nod to perform any of the little tricks which they have learned from him. Their education in this respect is not yet complete, but that they have learned more than any of their ancestors is evident from the fact that at a word from their master they get up on their hind legs and in this manner follow him at a respectful distance like lackeys as he walks around the room.

Mr. Sawade claims that polar bears are endowed with more intelligence than is generally imagined and that, if properly handled, they will in time become quite as docile as other animals.

IBSEN'S WHISKERS.

An American Gentleman's Experience in Entertaining the Well-Known "Master."

One enthusiastic Ibsenite, while still rabid, will content himself in future with admiring the "master" through his works, writes Henry Dick, in New Lippincott. Officially called upon to reside in Norway for a season, he, after meeting the playwright on several occasions, invited him to pay him a visit. He found Ibsen a most difficult guest. He was extremely sensitive and sentimental and his feelings were constantly being hurt. The morning after his arrival the guest did not appear at breakfast. Instead a message arrived that he wished to see the eldest son of the house. As the eldest son was not present, the puzzled host went to see what the difficulty might be. It seemed that Ibsen desired the eldest son to act as a barber, that being the custom of the country. His host explained that, in the first place, the eldest son was absent, and, in the second, that had he been present the operation would have been fraught with peril, for the eldest son was conspicuously unskilled. Ibsen was advised, therefore, to seek professional assistance. As there was nothing else to do, Ibsen, weeping, departed and had his upper lip attended to professionally.

Making Water Build Dams.

Many readers who do not follow the literature of engineering will be interested in the statement that one of the methods employed by American engineers in forming reservoir dams is to call in the services of a powerful jet of water, as in hydraulic mining. By directing such a jet against the upper slopes of a valley, the sand, soil and gravel scoured from the hillsides can be carried by the force of the stream to the site of the dam in the lower part of the valley. By suitable management, the water not only conveys the materials, but consolidates them in position, dropping the larger stones at the s

A Novelty in Carpet Cleaning.

The American ambassador remarked at a banquet the other night that many good ideas which had benefited mankind had their origin on the other side of the water, and if cleaning carpets without either taking them up or filling the surrounding atmosphere with dust comes under the same category, our American cousins have benefited the human race once more. A machine which deals with carpets in this manner was used at the Empire theater of varieties the other day. Compressed air is used to blow the dust out of the carpet, and the machine is so contrived as to imprison all the dust in a bag. When the carpets are thoroughly cleaned the compressed air current was charged with disinfectants, which thoroughly impregnated the whole floor. The machine was afterward used for the purpose of cleaning the chairs and lounges of the theater.—London Chronicle.

Curious Facts About Sound.

During the firing of minute-guns by the English fleet at Spithead, on the occasion of Queen Victoria's funeral, the sounds were heard at surprising distances inland, and the English scientific journals have since published many interesting facts about these phenomena. It seems to be established that not only the direction of the wind, but its relative velocity at different elevations from the ground, affected the direction of the sound-waves. In some cases, contrary winds refracted the sound over the heads of observers between 10 and 45 miles from the ships, so that they did not hear the guns, but the same waves were afterward brought to the ground by favorable upper currents, rendering the sounds audible at 50 miles, and even as far as 140 miles, while at 84 miles they were so loud that laborers in the fields put down their spades and listened to them.—Youth's Companion.

Tolstoi on Modern Americans.

"But the American army is much larger than it was. It seems to me it grew very quickly. Only a short time ago I read it was less than 50,000, now it is 100,000 or more." I told him 100,000 was the maximum; that the minimum was much less. "But you build great battleships—the best in any nation." I agreed to this. "It is a pity to think you need any battleships. After the Pleiad of writers America produced in the civil war you can now only show as your most brilliant brain, Carnegie, the millionaire. (He pronounced the word Carneji.) You had Thoreau, Ballou, Emerson, Longfellow, Whittier and Walt Whitman. It was your Homeric age. Then rose the Achilles among statesmen, Abraham Lincoln. All these were a giant constellation. Your war fever is over, but gold has you now. Your great men are your millionaires."—Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Origin of Our Secret Service.

The United States secret service had its origin in the early 60's, under the auspices of the war department. It actually grew out of the fact of Capt. Lafayette F. Baker, of the union army, offering his services to Secretary Seward as a police scout to gather information concerning the confederate army. During the war the United States began the issuance of greenbacks. Then came the first appearance of "greengoods" men. By an act of congress, in 1861 or 1862, $10,000 was appropriated for the maintenance of Baker's service to suppress counterfeiting. The supervision of the service was then under the solicitor of the treasury.—N. Y. Tribune.

The End of Her Dream.

"Algie," she said, putting her arms around his neck and looking confidingly into his honest, manly face, "if I were to be kidnaped how much ransom would you be willing to pay?"

"My dear," he answered, "I would be willing to pay a million dollars ransom for you."

A sickly pallor overspread her face and she drew away from him as if he had been something evil. When she could speak, at last, she cried:

"I heard you say yesterday that you had at least $1,100,000. And we have been married only two months!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

WILL BE THE NEXT CITY JUDGE OF PLAINFIELD.

Sketch Of The Young Man Who Will Be Re-elected Without Opposition.

Of all the candidates who will come up before the voters of Plainfield next Tuesday there is none who is more generally known or is better liked than William Nelson Runyon, the Republican candidate for re-election to the office of city judge. As the Democrats have not nominated any one to run against him Judge Runyon's election is now already assured. Although Mr. Runyon is so well known throughout the city, a sketch of his career would not be out of place at this time.

WILLIAM N. RUNYON.

City Judge Runyon was born in the Fourth ward of this city March 5, 1871. As a lad he attended the public schools, entering the city High School and graduating from there in 1888. He entered Yale University the fall of the same year, graduating as a member of the class of 1892. While in Yale he was a member of the D. K. E. and Scroll and Keys societies and bass soloist of the college glee club.

He selected a legal career, taking a two years' course at the New York Law School, graduating from there in 1894. He was admitted to the New York Bar during November of that year. He entered the law offices of Wilson & Wallis, of New York, as managing clerk at that time and remained with that firm until August 1, 1898, when he formed a partnership with his father, Nelson Runyon, in this city. He was admitted to the New Jersey Bar in June, 1898. This year he successfully passed his examinations as a counsellor.

Although he has always been a Republican, Judge Runyon did not take an active participation in politics until the fall of 1896. He entered into the national campaign with vigor and became the leading figure of the Young Men's Republican Club, of which he was president. He was also instrumental in organizing a campaign glee club.

After the national campaign was over and the municipal election drew nigh, he was nominated for councilman by the Republicans of the Second ward. He was elected and served for two years. During the first year, he was chairman of the laws and ordinances committee and a member of the police and fire committees. The second year, he was made chairman of the fire committee and a member of the laws and ordinances and auditing committees.

At the expiration of his term, he was elected city judge, defeating Winfield S. Angleman, a Citizens' candidate, by 500 majority. The term of three years expires this year.

In 1898, he was chosen a member of the Republican county committee from the Second ward and has remained a member ever since. For the last two years, he has been vice-chairman of the committee. He also served as a member of the Republican city executive committee for one year and was on the city campaign committee during the last presidential campaign. He is chairman of the Second Ward Republican Association.

Judge Runyon is a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, and the Yale Club, all of this city. Although a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church, he is an active worker at Hope chapel, teaching a class in the Sunday-school there and being president of the Young Men's Association connected with the chapel.

MUST HURRY.

Corporation Counsel Notifies Contractors That Work on Sewer Beds Must Be Pushed.

The desultory manner in which the Gleason-Kiely Company has been conducting the alterations at the city disposal beds has at last resulted in the matter being taken in hand by the proper officials.

Repeated warnings from Street Commissioner Gavett to the effect that the work should be hurried met with no apparent response and the improvements continued to drag along. Yesterday the contractors were informed through Corporation Counsel Marsh that they were to be placed on probation and if prompt measures were not taken to complete the work at once, the matter would be taken in hand and finished by the city.

The beds were to be in active operation by the time cold weather set in but from present prospects they will not be ready for months. It is thought Gleason & Kiely will increase the working force and make an effort to hurry the work.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Jennie Quick, of East Fifth street, to Archibald H. Derby, of 1304 West Front street.

FIRE LADDIES DINED.

Borough Firemen Guests of Honor at Banquet Held Last Evening—Speeches and Music.

A banquet tendered to the West End Hose Company and the West End Juniors was held in the Manhattan Hotel on Somerset street, last evening, Henry Graceley, the proprietor, being the host. In all there were fifty men present and a good time was enjoyed until the early hours of this morning. The banquet hall was well decorated with bunting and flags. After the fire laddies had feasted, impromptu speeches were in order. Assistant Chief of the department Chas. Keller set the ball rolling and from then on short talks were given by the members of the two companies and their guests. Foreman Lawrence Peterson spoke for the West End Company and Second Assistant Foreman Parson made a speech for the Juniors. A drum corps furnished the music.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS HOLD A MASS-MEETING

Opening of Campaign Headquarters Occasion for Gathering of Active Party Men.

ROUSING SPEECHES MADE.

SENATOR REED PREDICTS SWEEP OF SOMERSET COUNTY BY G. O. P.

Mayor Smalley and Former Mayor Hegeman Hit at Assessor French — Music Furnished by U. S. Grant Glee Club.

The U. S. Grant Republican Club, of North Plainfield, opened its campaign last evening with a large and enthusiastic meeting in Spencer's Hall on Somerset street.

Previous to the calling of the meeting by Mayor Newton B. Smalley, as president of the club, there was handshaking and a discussion of the prospects for the success of the ticket Tuesday. There were also several selections by members of the Glee Club.

In calling the meeting to order Mayor Smalley made a few remarks, in which he assured all that there is no doubt but that the Republican ticket will be successful Tuesday. He spoke of the good work being done, especially throughout Somerset county, and he urged every one to vote the straight ticket. He took occasion to remark that the people of the borough made a big mistake in electing a Democratic assessor, who is now using his office to win Republican votes for his side. He denied that there was ever a scheme on the part of the Republicans to help elect a Democratic assessor. The Mayor then introduced former Mayor Charles Place.

Mr. Place gave an enthusiastic talk. He said that he had been a voter in the county thirty years and always seen his party stand by the ticket. He believed it would do so this fall. He heartily commended all the candidates to the voters and urged a solid vote for them. He thought there was no doubt but that the entire Republican ticket would be elected.

Mr. Place was followed by Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., who showed that he had not forgotten how to talk politics. He thought the prospects for a sweeping victory were excellent, but it meant hard work and he felt sure the U. S. Grant Club would do its share Tuesday. He confirmed what the Mayor had said that the people had made a big mistake in electing a Democratic assessor. He recently understood that Mr. French had said that he would give Mr. McMurtry for sheriff sixty Republican votes from North Plainfield, but Mr. Hegeman said that he did not believe that Mr. French could deliver the goods. He referred to the Republican candidates, especially Thomas Douglass for sheriff, and H. W. Hoagland for Assembly, as being persons worthy of the entire support of all voters.

The last speaker was Senator Charles A. Reed. He reviewed at some length the history of the two parties, pointing out how inconsistent the Democratic party is to claim that the present prosperity of the State is due to laws enacted by its members, when as a matter of fact only a short time ago, their leader, Mr. Bryan, intimated that if the present conditions did not cease to exist the State would be known as a "robbers" nest. Mr. Reed declared that the Republicans had enacted laws that had brought prosperity to the State.

Mr. Reed said that he attended a meeting of the State Republican committee at Newark yesterday and a conservative estimate of the majority the Republican ticket would receive in the State was placed at 10,000. Somerset county was placed in the column of counties that would give a majority of 500. Mr Reed then reviewed the candidates, particularly the local ones. He urged the hearty support of all for the ticket and showed how the old-time factional fight would be a thing of the past if the Republicans would stand united and elect their candidates. He showed the importance of electing a Republican sheriff and Assemblyman, and spoke of the many excellent qualities possessed by both candidates. He also dwelt on the fact that many had signified a desire to get even with him by voting against the Republican candidates. This practice Senator Reed pronounced to be folly, for he announced that he never expected to run for office again and such action would not injure him, but the success of the Republican ticket.

In conclusion, Mr. Reed had something to say about the number of delegates each district is entitled to and spoke of an effort to be made to change the basis of representation. He then thanked all for the hearty support given him in North Plainfield. He aroused much enthusiasm by stating that North Plainfield was not only the banner municipality in the county, but the banner Republican town, and concluded by asking the voters to give the entire ticket one of the old-time Republican majorities.

After Mayor Smalley announced that the hall would be open from now on until after election, the meeting adjourned and all gave the candidate for sheriff and assemblyman a cordial reception.

The season's play for the Hooley cup at the Park Golf Club is over and that trophy passes into the possession of Miss May Shreve to be kept until next year. The concluding competition was held yesterday afternoon. This afternoon the young women who have taken part in the play for the trophy give a tea, marking the closing of the active golf season for them.

The Hooley cup was offered last spring by E. S. Hooley for a women's handicap, nine holes, medal play, the lowest net scores to count three, two and one point toward the trophy. The weekly competitions for this trophy have been held Tuesday afternoons. Much interest has been evidenced in the contest and fair fields have turned out each week in the play for the trophy.

At the start Miss Daisy Elsberg and Miss Saidee Mae Howell assumed the positions of prominence in the contest. Miss Harriet Shreve and Miss May Shreve have played regularly during the summer, however, and now carry off two of the three leading places. Miss Elsberg finishes second while Miss Howell is tied with Miss Mary Wells for fifth place. As far as the actual scores are concerned, Miss Elsberg and Miss Howell have made the best.

The standing for the trophy is now as follows:

Miss Harriet Shreve	14½
Miss Laura Long	13
Miss Mary Wells	11

ALL REJOICED OVER DEPARTURE OF DEFICIT

Happy Gathering of Consistory And Congregation at Trinity Reformed Church.

IN NATURE OF RECEPTION.

SOME CLEVER THINGS WERE SAID BY ROBERT CLARK, JR.

He Acted as Master of Ceremonies And Introduced Consistory to Congregation—Told of Change in Financial Condition This Year.

The congregation of Trinity Reformed church assembled at a reception given by the consistory of the church in the lecture room, last evening, and from every appearance it seemed as if the members of a large family had gathered for a joyous reunion. In fact, the affair did partake of the nature of a happy reunion, for the congregation at present is jubilant over the financial condition of the church. A deficit had been wiped out and a surplus now stands as a monument of the loyal work of the consistory and the hearty co-operation of the members of the church.

The lecture room was crowded when Robert Clark, Jr., as master of ceremonies, mounted the platform to announce that an informal programme would be rendered. Horace J. Martin and Joseph E. Martin sang a pleasing duet and then Mr. Clark made a neat speech.

In the course of his remarks, he stated that the primary object of the meeting together of the consistory and the members of the church was to tighten the bond between them and because it had been felt that the consistory should greet those whose co-operation had so strengthened their work. The supreme idea, however, was that they might give thanks for the fortunate financial condition of the church. In October, a year ago, there was deficit of $633 and now there is a surplus of $232. At this juncture the assemblage sang the doxology in thanksgiving.

Taking up the thread of his discourse again, Mr. Clark remarked that it might be well for the congregation to see the members of the consistory, or in other words the "church cabinet." One they have "whose spirituality makes him an able president." "The Bishop" Elder G. L. VanEmburgh was introduced. "The man who believes the Press is mightier than the sword" proved to be Elder A. L. Force. Elder Fred Smith was named as "the tall cedar of Lebanon, whose faith is deeply embedded." Elder Horace J. Martin was suggested as "the man whose heart and voice is every ready to sing the praises of Trinity," and the one who "is ever training the gospel ship to suit the requirements" was Elder H. E. Gale.

Taking up the list of deacons he said that "the strong old Roman, who stands like Marc Antony as a defender," is Edward E. Anthony; "the Chancellor of the Exchequer" is Curtis Thorpe; the man "who believes that a good pattern is worthy of imitation" is W. F. Oliver; he who has "faith in the milk of the Word" is T. R. Van Zant, and he who advocates proper shodding is Fred Willett. Edward Shephard was mentioned as a type of the schoolmaster in the "Deserted Village," and one who believes "that to properly shepherd the lambs he should suffer them to come unto him."

While the consistory faced the congregation, Mr. Clark closed with a tribute to the members of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, whose zeal had helped the church over many a barrier. The church quartette sang "The Lord is my Shepherd."

Rev. Dr. Schenck made a witty address. He declared that the congregation had never appreciated the consistory until that remarkable body of men had stood before them and heard their own praises sung. He introduced as "the Chauncey Depew, the Russel Sage and the Artemus Ward that modest man, Robert Clark, Jr.," whose fertile brain and willing spirit has been of great value.

Rev. W. T. Griffin, consul to Limoges, France, was introduced by the pastor as the "Little Frenchman," and the latter proceeded to talk French, but soon branched off on a discourse on matters observed from the pew.

Wm. Tallamy sang a solo, accompanied by Miss Nellie Tallamy, and Miss Edith Derby also rendered a solo. She was accompanied by A. L. Titsworth. After some dainty refreshments were served Miss Bessie Martin favored the audience with a recitation and Miss Minnie Williams sang a solo, accompanied by A. L. Titsworth.

The decorations were arranged in exceeding good taste. Autumn flowers, leaves and vines were massed in the centre of the platform and lent an attractive appearance to the surroundings. About the ceiling hung strands of green and pink bunting which showed off effectively.

FRATERNAL ORDER ENTERTAINS FRIENDS.

Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, Hold a Pleasant Affair.

FIRST ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN BY THE NEW CASTLE.

Addresses Made by Prominent Guests—Minstrel Show Another Feature—Sterioptican Pictures Shown—Who Took Part.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, entertained 200 of its friends last evening, with a first-class minstrel show and olio, combined with a smoker. It was the first public affair of this kind which the organization has given since its institution last February and the effort was crowned with success. There were so many excellent features on the lengthy programme that it was nearly midnight before all were given.

The entertainment was opened with the impressive ceremony practiced by the organization in beginning its meetings. It was followed by a half hour of speech-making in which addresses were made by Grand Chief John C. Risley, of Atlantic City; Past Grand Chief Arthur H. Hope, of Asbury Park, and Grand Master of Records A. L. Clark, of Trenton.

Mr. Hope was the organizer of the castle and he complimented the officers and members upon its rapid growth and influence, as evidenced by the throng present. He predicted for it a most successful future.

Mr. Clark devoted considerable time to reviewing the history of the organization and explaining it objects. He compared it with other fraternal orders and referred to the high moral standard which has been responsible for its phenomenal growth. In conclusion he made a strong plea for continued activity among the members of the local castle to bring the order before the people with a view to swelling the membership list.

The black face part of the programme was furnished by the Freedom Minstrel Company and was composed of the following members: Interlocutor, Dr. C. E. Hepburn; end men, William Hepburn and Kenneth Anderson; chorus, Joseph Martin, Horace J. Martin, Sr., Horace J. Martin, Jr., Charles Hummer, William Phillips, Dr. J. H. Buchanan and Paul Whitall; accompanist, Lewis M. Hummer.

In addition to the comicalities of the end men the programme in detail was as follows: Overture, "Minstrel's Delight," company; duet and chorus, "Ma Oalliest One," Kenneth Anderson and William Hepburn; bass solo, "Asleep in the Deep," Joseph Martin; duet, "Larboard Watch," Horace Martin, Sr., and Joseph Martin; quartette, "Kentucky Babe," Messrs. Martin and Hummer; duet and chorus, "Kiss Me, Honey, Do," Messrs. Anderson and Hepburn; "Throw Him Down McKluskey," E. E. Hepburn; selection, "Nigger, Nigger, Never Die," Robert M. Clark; vocal selection, "The Famous Fire Song," Grand Master Clark; parody on "Home, Sweet Home," P. S. Arnold.

Sterioptican pictures were also given under the direction of C. E. Hepburn, and the entertainment concluded with a laughable sketch entitled, "Fun in the Doctor's Office," in which the characters were taken by C. E. Hepburn, William Hepburn and Kenneth Anderson.

The entire affair was in charge of A. C. Hoagland, who acted as master of ceremonies, while the programme was arranged by the entertainment committee consisting of C. E. Hepburn, chairman; P. S. Arnold and Kenneth Anderson.

HOW IT WILL GO.

Republican Politician Explains His View of the Local Situation in Tuesday's Election.

A well-informed politician in the Republican fold has made a prediction of the coming election. He says that Gloak and Hetfield will run very close together in the First ward, and that Timpson will get a good vote in the Second ward, but will be defeated. In the Fourth ward he declares that Lee will defeat Casey by a large majority. Buckle for Councilman-at-large, according to this prophet, will receive a considerable cut. He is not sure that Newcorn will get a good sized party vote in this city, but relies on Democratic friends to make up the deficiency largely.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Astamalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.
Yours respectfully, O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you see fit. Home address, 205 Rivington street.

IS MISS STONE DEAD?

Such an Impression Prevails at Sofia—Search Continued.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 30.—The Russian foreign office is still co-operating heartily with the United States officials in the efforts to obtain the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, and her companion, Mme. K. S. Tsilka, who were captured by brigands Sept. 3.

M. Bakhmetieff, the Russian representative at Sofia, who is married to an American, is displaying much energy in co-operating with United States Consul General Dickinson of Constantinople.

In government circles at Sofia the impression appears to be that Miss Stone is dead. Measures are being taken by Mr. Dickinson and M. Bakhmetieff to learn definitely whether she is alive or not.

Negotiations Opened.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—"It is officially stated that the United States legation in Constantinople has opened direct negotiations with Miss Stone's captors," says a dispatch from Sofia to The Daily Telegraph. "The Bulgarian government has allowed the celebrated Rilo Kloster (southwest of Samakov) to be searched and two suspected monks to be arrested."

Information Is Unsatisfactory.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 30.—Spencer Eddy, secretary of the United States legation here, and W. W. Peet, treasurer of the American mission at Constantinople, had a long conference on the subject of Miss Stone yesterday. The information from the missionaries who are near the brigands' retreat is far from satisfactory.

Our Consul Leaves Sofia.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 30.—United States Consul General Dickinson has left here for Samakov in order to be able to more closely superintend the measures being taken for the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone and her companion, Mme. Tsilka.

BOTHA'S CLOSE CALL.

Boer Commander's Hat and Pistol In British Hands.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A dispatch from Pretoria says that Remington's column has surprised the laager of General Botha, the Boer commander in chief. General Botha succeeded in making his escape a few hundred yards in advance of Remington's men, leaving his hat and revolver behind. General Botha's papers were secured.

The war office has received a dispatch from Lord Kitchener saying that General Methuen reports the Boer commandants Delarey and Kemp attacked Vandonop's column on Oct. 24 near the Great Marico river. The attack, which was made with great determination, was repulsed after severe fighting. The Boers left forty dead on the field, including Commandant Oosterhuysen. Two British officers and twenty-six men were killed and five officers and fifty men wounded. The Boers captured eight wagons.

General French reports that the Boers in the eastern part of Cape Colony continue to avoid his columns.

Lord Kitchener states that since his last weekly report on Oct. 21 74 Boers have been killed, 16 wounded, 352 captured, and there have been 45 surrenders. Lord Kitchener also confirms the previous report of General Botha's narrow escape from being captured.

Aged Diplomat Dead.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 30.—Hon. Henry Clay Hall, for thirty consecutive years consul to Cuba and minister to Central America, is dead at his home in Millbury, aged eighty-one years. He retired from the government service in 1892 on account of his health. He was long known as dean of the government diplomatic corps on account of his long service. He served under eight presidents, from Buchanan to Cleveland, a record believed to be unparalleled. He was known as the father of the Nicaragua canal and drafted the first treaty for the building of it. He clung to his post as consul to Havana during the civil war at risk of personal violence. He was so young when he left this country and was in the service so long that the first time he ever had a chance to exercise the right of franchise was when he cast his vote for William McKinley for president. He was born in Northford, Conn. His wife survives him.

Governor Aycock to Negroes.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 30.—Governor Aycock opened the negro state fair in an address in which he urged the negroes to build up society among themselves founded on culture, intelligence and virtue. In the course of the address he referred to President Roosevelt dining Booker T. Washington and said to the negroes that their best friends lived in the south. He told them they did not need recognition by the president, as it would avail nothing in the south. He said, "The law which separates you from the white people in the state socially has been and always will be inexorable, and it need not concern you nor me whether the law is violated."

Tree Planting Custom Observed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—In accordance with an old custom among officials of the government Secretary Hay went out on the plaza south of the state, war and navy department building yesterday and planted a tree. Assistant Secretary Adee also performed a like ceremony.

Odell Preparing Message.

ALBANY, Oct. 30.—Governor Odell spent several hours yesterday in writing portions of his annual message, which will be transmitted to the legislature when it meets in January. It is understood that he is completing such portions as can be disposed of without delay.

SCHLEY UNDER FIRE

PROGRESS OF THE COURT IS SLOW.

So Much Ground Remains to Be Gone Over That the End of the Trial Is Not In Sight.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The cross examination of Admiral Schley was continued throughout the session of the court of inquiry yesterday. The progress made was exceedingly slow. Practically the whole day was consumed in questioning the admiral about the cruise from Cienfuegos to Santiago and the motives and influences that governed him in turning back after his squadron had arrived in the vicinity of the latter port. This latter branch of the cross examination had not been concluded when the court adjourned.

The blockade at Santiago, the reconnoissance on May 31 and the battle of July 3 still remain to be covered. It is hardly probable that the judge advocate can conclude before adjournment today. After he finishes quite a number of questions prepared by the members of the court will be submitted. The judge advocate in conducting the cross examination used a carefully prepared typewritten list of questions. They called for comparison of statements Admiral Schley had made either in his direct testimony, in his communication to the senate or in his dispatches to Admiral Sampson or the navy department, with the testimony of witnesses who have preceded him and the logs and signal books of the other vessels of the fleet.

The questions were asked in chronological order, but jumped from one subject to another and from one stage of the campaign to another. Throughout the strain to which the witness naturally was subjected while under examination the admiral retained his customary composure. Only once or twice did he display impatience or weariness. At one point when asked a question he replied that he had been asked the same question Monday, at the same time telling what his reply had been then. On another occasion, when he was being searchingly interrogated as to his distances from shore at Cienfuegos and as to whether the distances were a matter of record, he responded rather tartly: "Oh, no. I did not know they would ever become a matter of such great importance or I should have plotted them and made a memorandum, as I should of many other things."

The main points to which the cross examination was directed were the ability of the ships to coal off Cienfuegos and the reasons for what is known as the "retrograde movement."

The latter point was dwelt upon with much emphasis and detail and had not been disposed of fully when the court adjourned. The admiral gave three reasons for turning back—first, the statement of Captain Sigsbee, who commanded the scoutship St. Paul, that the enemy was not in Santiago; second, the opinion of Nunez, the pilot, that the entrance was too narrow and shallow for the Spanish ships to enter, and, third, the ambiguity of the department's telegram. In the course of the cross examination the admiral said he regarded the department's dispatch rather as a suggestion than as an explicit order, a suggestion which he carried out after the sea had abated and the coal supply of the ships had been replenished.

The Pay of the Army.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Paymaster General Bates in his annual report says that the pay of the army for the year was $53,215,345, an increase over last year of $1,301,364. He makes several recommendations relative to pay accounts in the army, the most important being that officers of the pay corps no longer be compelled to furnish bonds. He says that this should apply especially to officers detailed for service under the new law, as they get no increased rank and are compelled to pay from $90 to $180 when so detailed. Most of the officers prefer commands in the line to such work.

To Boycott British Ships.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—The delegation of Dutch longshoremen which is visiting Hamburg for the purpose of getting the co-operation of the German longshoremen in boycotting English ships as a protest against the Boer war has met with the warmest reception there. The longshoremen of Hamburg have decided to co-operate to a man in the movement. The newspapers here, however, believe that the plan is impracticable and warn the longshoremen against it as being calculated to damage German trade more than it would injure British trade.

Penn Anniversary Celebrated.

CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 30.—The Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames of America yesterday commemorated the two hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the landing of William Penn at Chester. Two hundred and fifty members of the society, with their friends, participated in the exercises in Liberty hall. Mrs. A. J. Cassatt, president of the society, occupied the chair.

Gift to a Kansas College.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 30.—Washburn college has received a gift of $50,000 from a Boston man, who gave the money on condition that his name be absolutely withheld. He specifies that the money shall be used for building an astronomical observatory. The trustees of the college have accepted the gift and its condition.

DIAZ GIVES A DINNER

An Elaborate Function For Pan-American Delegates.

THE REPUBLIC'S WARM GREETING.

The President Expresses the Wish That the American Republics May Be Guided by the Example of Washington and Bolivar.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 30.—The dinner given by President Diaz in honor of the visiting delegates to the pan-American congress was one of the most perfectly appointed entertainments ever given in this city. General Diaz made the following speech at the banquet:

"Messrs. Delegates—Interpreting the sentiments of the people and government of this republic, which has distinguished me with the office of its president, I have the honor, in its name, of offering to you this banquet as one of the demonstrations whereby it desires to signify to its sister republics, which you so worthily represent at the international American conference, its deep gratitude for the good will with which all accepted its invitation, as well as the friendliness, respect and merited esteem with which it has received their delegates.

"In the same capacity I express the hope that the conclusion of our high deliberations may be to such a degree fruitful in benefits for the peoples of this continent that their future relations may ever be governed by the upright spirit which animated Washington, Hidalgo, Bolivar and San Martin in the most momentous and characteristic episodes of their heroic public careers.

"Gentlemen, in concluding I beg to invite you to drink with me that the hopes which I have just expressed in the name of my compatriots and which are the same as those that you harbor in your generous souls, but which hitherto have not passed beyond good desire, may become realities, binding together in intimate union the young nations which have sent you hither and which expect and have a right to expect much from your wisdom and discreet patriotism. I hope, too, that nothing may interrupt the increasing prosperity of your nations and the just reward of their manly and intelligent efforts. And finally I drink for the perpetual felicity of your worthy presidents and express my desire that your stay in Mexico may be as agreeable to you as it will be to me."

Response was made by Gonaro Raigosa, provisional president of the congress, who said in part:

"You are right, Mr. President, in confidently hoping that the results of the deliberations of this great continental assembly will be fruitful in benefits to the nations which unanimously accepted your invitation, for, on the one hand, the wisdom, enlightenment and patriotism of their delegates warrant such an expectation, and, on the other, the medium in which those deliberations are being held is as propitious as could be desired in order, while encouraging perfect tranquility of mind, to enforce the conviction that the people and government of Mexico, being at peace with all the nations of the new and old world, have no other aim than to contribute to the consolidation of sovereignty of each one within its territorial limits and to promote the free and progressive development of democratic institutions in America on the footing of most ample recognition of one another's rights."

Bourke Cockran Injured.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Bourke Cockran was severely injured by being thrown from his horse while riding about his place at Sands Point, N. Y. It is not exactly known what occurred, as there does not appear to have been an eyewitness to the accident, and Mr. Cockran is not allowed to talk. He was out riding a spirited horse, and he was either thrown or the horse stumbled. When Mr. Cockran was found, he was unconscious on the ground. He was suffering from bruises and a cut on the head, from which there was a considerable flow of blood. He was placed in a wagon and taken to his house and a doctor summoned. He was revived later, but pending further improvement is being kept exceedingly quiet.

A Move to Free Molineux.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Ex-Governor Black will appear before Judge McMahon in general session today and ask that the indictment against Roland B. Molineux charging him with murder be dismissed. District Attorney Philbin will oppose the motion. He will ask for a postponement of the hearing. In case Judge McMahon should decline to dismiss the indictment then former Governor Black will ask that he be given permission to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which indicted Molineux.

A Crazed Man's Terrible Crime.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—Henry Schroeder, an employee of a local stove company, shot and killed his stepdaughter, Katie Kirst, aged seven, made an unsuccessful attempt to shoot her brother, aged eleven, and then killed himself with his pistol after swallowing a dose of carbolic acid. It is supposed that a sudden attack of insanity caused Schroeder to commit the crime.

Steel Plant Sold.

AKRON, O., Oct. 30.—The Hartman Steel company of Newcastle, Pa., has closed negotiations for the purchase of the plant of the Cuyahoga Steel and Wire company at Cuyahoga Falls. The price was $500,000, the par value of the company's capital stock. The plant, which now employs 250 men, is to be enlarged at once.

LOUISIANA'S RACE WAR.

The Situation More Quiet—Order For Troops Revoked.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—It is believed that the assistance of the militia will not be needed in restoring order out of the race war at Live Oak Church, near Baltown, La. The latest advices are such that Governor Heard has revoked the orders to the squad of fifty of the state cavalry which had been ordered to the scene and directed simply that the men hold themselves in readiness.

The very enormity of the crimes against life they have committed seems to have appalled the citizens of the hamlet at Live Oak Church and brought matters to a standstill. Estimates of the loss of life still vary greatly. It is known that nine negroes and two white men have been killed, and some insist that the total number of dead, including those who have died from wounds since the conflict, is much nearer thirty than a dozen. Among those who place the number of dead at thirty is Sheriff Simmons.

A special from Baltown, La., says that the race war between the blacks and whites which started at a negro camp meeting at Duncan's chapel Sunday forms a story of blood unequaled in the history of the Pearl river valley.

No one is able to estimate the number of wounded negroes who escaped the carnage behind the church. They scattered in all directions. Some are known to have been shot, but they have not been found.

The conflict raged for half an hour. Those at a distance say the firing sounded like a battle between troops.

To the camp meeting negroes had come from 200 miles all up and down the valley. Elder Stephen Duncan of New Orleans, for whom the chapel was named, was present.

Arrested In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Chauncey W. Walker, formerly traveling auditor of the Policy Holders' National union and now president of the Insurance Commercial Agency of America, was arrested in the offices of the latter company, charged with being a fugitive from justice in the state of New York. A large suit of offices had been rented in the Woman's temple by the Commercial Agency of America, and all preparations had been made for the transaction of a large business when Superintendent W. B. Soule of a detective agency and City Detectives O'Keefe and Fitzgerald appeared and placed the president under arrest. Chauncey W. Walker, say the detectives, was arrested in New York city on Sept. 11 on a charge of grand larceny. The trial was fixed for Sept. 20, but before the time fixed, the detectives say, he forfeited his bond.

Killed the Superintendent.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 30.—Because he had been discharged for drunkenness John McArdelle, a workman on the new Frick building, shot and killed Charles E. Youngberg, superintendent of electrical construction for the George A. Fuller company, by whom he had been employed. Two bullets entered the body of the victim, the fatal one entering just above the heart. The murder occurred on the second floor of the building just about the time the day workmen were leaving, and for a time the murderer was in danger of having summary justice dealt out to him. A crowd of 500 workmen and others gave the police all they could do to protect McArdelle, who was cringing behind a temporary barricade. When McArdelle was finally convinced that he was safe, he said: "I've done it. I'm sorry now. I did it for one day's pay."

Fishing Season Closed.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 30.—The fishing season of 1900-1901 is now practically over, and the tribute in loss of life and property which the ocean yearly demands of this fishing port can be approximately made. Sixty-two men killed or drowned and nine vessels lost comprise the casualties. The year's losses are heavier than last year, which was the smallest in twenty-three years. The sixty-two men left seventeen widows and thirty-five children. This makes the average loss for the past twenty-four years of ninety-five men each year. The nine vessels lost had a registered tonnage of 617 tons, valued at $67,000, and on which there was an insurance of $52,843.

Woman's Suffrage Convention.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The thirty-third annual convention of the State Woman's Suffrage association opened yesterday. There was a public reception of the delegates last night. The business sessions began today and will continue until Friday. Susan B. Anthony, the Rev. Anna Shaw, Julia R. Jenney and other leaders are present.

RETURNING TO SPAIN.

Remains of Admiral Villamil to Be Taken Home.

HAVANA, Oct. 29.—The remains of the Spanish vice admiral Villamil, commander of the Spanish torpedo flotilla, who was killed at the battle of Santiago, have been transferred to the steamer Montserrat to be taken to Spain. The ceremony of transfer was in charge of Captain of the Port Young, representing the United States navy. A salute of nine guns was fired at Morro castle.

Vice Admiral Villamil was wounded on board the destroyer Pluton and was taken ashore by Spanish sailors, dying shortly after. His body was left in a sitting position in a chair in a cave about four miles west of the entrance to Santiago harbor, and it remained there about eight months before it was discovered, when it was transferred to the Santiago arsenal.

From an international standpoint the United States navy was still in charge of it, and the Spanish consul requested a formal transfer. The ceremony was attended by the Spanish colony and representatives of the military government.

The body was shipped to Havana from Santiago Oct. 24 on one of the Herrera line steamers under orders from Governor General Wood. There was no demonstration in Santiago on its departure, except by the Spaniards, who draped the casket with Spanish flags.

THE SIEGE OF TUMACO.

Colombian Government Thinks Insurgents Cannot Long Hold Out.

COLON, Colombia, Oct. 30.—The Colombian government is confident that the insurgents will not be able to maintain the blockade at Tumaco. The insurgents secured their position there during the temporary absence of the Colombian gunboat Boyaca, and the government is hopeful of being able to raise the siege very soon.

The gunboat General Pinzon sailed for Bocas del Toro last week. Having found everything quiet there, she returned to Colon Sunday, towing a large steam launch which is destined for Panama. The General Pinzon anchors nightly at the mouth of the canal, which is the best vantage point for observing possible movements of the insurgents at this end.

There is no change in the situation on the isthmus. The foreign warships maintain a strict watch and study the course of events.

WILD WEST WRECKED

One Hundred and Ten of "Buffalo Bill's" Horses Killed.

A COLLISION IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Out of Two Carloads of Horses Only Two Animals Escaped—Final Engagement of the Season Canceled.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 30.—One hundred and ten of the ring horses of "Buffalo Bill's" Wild West show were crushed to death in a railroad wreck near Lexington. Among the horses killed was Old Pap, Colonel Cody's favorite saddle horse. Old Eagle, the star ring horse, was killed, and his mangled body fell on top of one of the wrecked engines. The mules that drew the Deadwood coach were also killed. Colonel Cody spent the day at the scene of the wreck and is heartbroken over the slaughter. He says his loss is $60,000.

The accident was the result of a head end collision between a fast southbound freight train and the second section of the show train and was due to a misunderstanding of orders. Several train hands were injured, but no one was killed.

Twelve thousand people greeted the Wild West show in Charlotte, and it left at midnight for Danville, Va., where it was to have made its last stand of the season. At Danville the show was to have disbanded and the animals sent to Bridgeport, Conn., to go into winter quarters.

The show left here in three sections. Near Lexington, as the second section was going twenty miles an hour, a fast southbound freight train crashed into it. Both engines were wrecked. Next to the engine of the show train were two large stock cars, containing the horses, and this is where the slaughter occurred.

The cars were smashed into a huge, distorted heap of debris, and only two horses escaped alive. The scene was sickening. From the mass of wreckage blood poured in a small rivulet. Colonel Cody's engagement at Danville was canceled in consequence of the disaster, which marked the close of a very successful tour.

Fort Washington Anniversary.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the battle of Fort Washington will be celebrated Nov. 16. The Empire State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, with the co-operation of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation society, will dedicate a memorial marking the site of the old Revolutionary fort. This memorial is the gift of James Gordon Bennett. The site is on Fort Washington avenue, in the line of One Hundred and Thirty-third street, where the avenue cuts through the native rock, leaving a vertical face about ten feet high, and the memorial consists of a wayside seat and step about eight feet wide, flanked by two pilasters rising to the top of the rock, supporting an entablature and embracing a tablet. This tablet is suitably inscribed.

Good Roads For the South.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The special good roads train carrying road experts, a competent crew and the paraphernalia for giving practical illustrations in roadmaking left Alexandria, Va., last night for its tour of the south over the Southern railway. The trip is under the auspices of the Southern railway and the National Good Roads association, and aboard are officers of that organization and also the director and assistant of the office of public road inquiry of the agricultural department. The itinerary takes in many places in the south. Some weeks will be spent on the trip. The object is to give a practical illustration of roadmaking.

Numerous new schools, built with insular funds, have been opened, including a normal and an agricultural school. Heretofore there were no school buildings on the island.

Reduced Rates.

Whenever the Board of Trade makes any attempt to secure reduced rates between Plainfield and New York, it has the cordial endorsement of the people of Plainfield in its effort. While the commutation tickets furnish a very reasonable rate to those who commute to and from the metropolis daily, the rest of the travelling public is not so well served.

The fifty-trip tickets have been designed to furnish the occasional patron with a fairly reduced rate but the fact that they required such an outlay of cash at first put them beyond the reach of many. Then they were rented out at a slight increase in price and the local dealers reaped the benefit. A recent order issued by the railroad company has forbidden the use of these tickets in that manner although the dealers still continue to rent them as usual.

When the committee from the Board of Trade waited on C. M. Burt, general passenger agent of the New Jersey Central, it was with the request that the railroad company, if it intended to prevent the rental of the fifty-trip tickets, should provide some substitute which would enable the poorer element of its patrons to travel at a cost not greater than heretofore. A ten-trip ticket, to be sold for $4, was suggested. Mr. Burt explained that the company officials already had it under consideration.

It is certainly to be hoped that the officials of the New Jersey Central Railroad will see their way clear to give the people of Plainfield the benefit of reduced rates. It is the poorer class on whom the change would fall the hardest. Their patronage would undoubtedly be largely influenced by any arrangement which would increase the present rate of a round trip for eighty cents.

The New High School.

The recent dedication of a hundred thousand-dollar High School in Atlantic City calls to mind the fact that on the very night that Atlantic City voted the expenditure of $100,000 for a High School, the Plainfield City Council voted the same sum for a High School building in Plainfield, but the Plainfield building is not yet ready for dedication.

This is not the fault of the Board of Education, however, but has been caused by legal technicalities that have prevented the board's going on with the matter.

The Council or the board ought to find some way to untie the knot and put up the building before the schools get so crowded that stores or dwellings will have to be hired for school rooms. The High School is using hallways and cloak rooms for recitations now. If the board will take the public into its confidence and proceed along economical lines there is not the slightest doubt but that the people of Plainfield would approve of the act.

It is with regret that those interested in the welfare and progress or Plainfield learn that there is no hope of securing the factory of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company for this city. There seems no doubt now but that the drill company will remain in Easton and extend its plant across the Lehigh river with the aid of the two bridges which the people of Easton have agreed to build. There is one consolation in the fact that it was not an outside city which managed to get ahead of Plainfield in the contest for that valuable prize.

Westfield is now all excitment over a little trouble which recently took place between the driver of the hook and ladder truck and one of the township committeemen. The point at issue seems to be as to whether or not, the committeeman was told to get off the truck before the driver plied the whip.

Every year the Y. M. C. A. Star Course of entertainments have proved very satisfactory. This year the course promises to be unusually popular. The entertainers are well chosen and give the people of Plainfield a chance to hear some of the best talent obtainable.

The annual "harvest home" at Muhlenberg Hospital has proved to be a very successful affair in past years. It gives the people of Plainfield a chance to see the young women in charge at that institution and learn something of their needs.

The State truant law is to be enforced in the borough as well as in the city. Hereafter the small boys are not to be allowed to run at will during school hours. It is the parents this time, who will hear from the representative of the law.

The success of the cadet battalion at the City High School has been so well demonstrated that it is now planned to extend the system to the Whittier public school which is located in close proximity to the High School building.

Tomorrow will be hallowe'en and the youthful part of the population will rejoice accordingly All over the city preparations are being made to hold various festivities on that oft-honored day.

The meter is the only fair and equitable way to measure the use of water and regulate the price Let the officials of the Plainfield Water Company realize how you feel on the subject.

Somebody is going to be sadly disappointed when the returns come in Tuesday night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, October 30—The Oak Tree postoffice was subjected to its periodical robbery Monday night. The thieves, who had evidently previously made themselves familiar with the premises, chose the front door through which to enter, contrary to their usual custom when burglarizing this place. A dog was tied inside and near the rear door. A United States mail pouch key, a few postal cards, a half-box of cigars and several letters were taken. All the remaining letters were torn open and nearly destroyed. The Washington authorities have been notified of the loss of the key and will trace it from the number stamped upon it. No clue was left by the perpetrators.

McGee; assistant editors, F. Roland Horne, Frank P. Simons, Dudley H. Barrows, W. M. E. Perkins, Gordon W. Abbott and Effingham A. Pinto; business manager, E Clinton Hall, assistant business manager, F. Roland Horne.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH.

LOUISE DANTZ, OF WATCHUNG AVENUE ENVELOPED IN FLAMES.

Charles Hewitt Rescues Child Who is Badly Burned—Victim Will Recover.

Through the prompt action of Charles Hewitt, of Warren street, Louise Dantz the four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Danz, of Watchung avenue, was saved this morning from meeting death by fire. As it was the little girl had her clothing almost entirely consumed while she received severe and painful burns about the head and shoulders.

While the mother was busily engaged with household duties shortly before 7 o'clock, the child began playing with papers about the stove. In some manner her dress became ignited and turning about she ran screaming through the hallway to the street. The breeze fanned the flames and when she reached the sidewalk she was enveloped from head to foot.

Hewitt was passing at the time and seizing the terror stricken child, wrapped his coat about her while he tore off as much of the clothing as possible. Mrs. Danz assisted him and in doing so both were badly burned about the hands.

The flames were finally extinguished but not before her garments were either burned or torn from her. Dr. A. H. Dundon was summoned and dressed the injuries of all three. While those of the child were severe it is thought no serious results will follow.

ENJOYABLE POUND SOCIAL.

AFFAIR HELD UNDER AUSPICES OF FIRST BAPTIST ENDEAVORERS.

Contributions of Those Attending Auctioned Off by George F. Brown—Entertaining Programme.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church an old-fashioned pound social was held in the lecture room of the church edifice last evening and it was a delightful affair.

The room was tastefully decorated and the surroundings added to the pleasure of the social. There was a large representation of the congregation of the church present, each member bringing with him a pound of something or other, for it did not matter much what was brought. A programme had been arranged and it was carried out during the fore part of the evening.

Michael Korff favored the assemblage with some well rendered violin solos and George Smith sang one or two fine tenor solos. George Rogers and Kerro Knox read suitable selections, and they met with applause. A recitation was the part of the programme fulfilled by Miss Ella Serrell.

At the conclusion of the formal exercises George F. Brown mounted the platform and performed the duties of an auctioneer. Needless to say everything brought high market prices. The committee in charge of the arrangements included: Herbert DuBois, chairman; Miss May French, Miss Grace TenEyck, the Misses May and Ella Serrell, Mrs. Flanders and Kerro Knox.

AN ABLE RECITER.

Marshall Darrach's Rendition of "Julius Caesar" Last Evening Was Exceptionally Fine.

Before an audience composed largely of the smart set of this city, Marshall Darrach, the well-known Shakespearean scholar, recited "Julius Caesar," at the Casino, last evening. The hall was well filled and from first to last Mr. Darrach, as might be expected, held the close attention of those who had the good fortune to hear him.

His voice-coloring for the various characters was little less than marvelous. His gestures and his actions showed that he is a close student of Shakespeare's intent in the lines. Where one had a good opportunity to judge Mr. Darrach's ability as a reciter and actor was when he impersonated "Cassius" in the quarrel on the battle-field, again in the funeral scene, where his "Marc Antony" was truly effective. His dramatic rendition of the scene in which "Brutus" and his wife "Portia" figure was superb.

The feature of the performance was the reciter's graceful stage presence and the noble way he handled the characters in the cast.

Display of Chrysanthemums.

Roman Antiquity to Be Restored.

Anyone who has visited Rome cannot fail to remember the mysterious covered passage—about which so many possible and impossible stories are told—which connects the Apostolic palace and the castle of St. Angelo. For some time it has been entirely neglected, and after the taking of Rome it was cut through to destroy the connection between the vatican, which remained in the hands of the church, and the castle, which was used as a fortress by United Italy. Now, at last, restorations are about to be commenced, and it will then be one of the most interesting sights in Rome. Most of the work of this passage, which is roofed over and has small loopholes to give light, was done by the orders of Alexander VI., that he might have a safe means of escape in case of need to the castle.—London Telegraph.

Cost of Traction.

An Indiana engineer recently estimated that the cost to move one ton per mile by horse power over a dry, sandy road was 64 cents; over wet sand, 32 cents; over an earth road and ruts, 26 cents; over an earth road that is dry and hard, 18 cents; over a broken stone road in good condition, 8 cents; over a compact gravel road, 8.8 cents; over stone paving, 5.33 cents; over asphalt, 2.7 cents. If wagon transportation could be carried on at a cost of 5 cents per mile per ton the result would be a saving of many millions of tons of merchandise that cannot now be handled with profit.—American Asphalt Journal.

Fiction Inspires Science.

Positively Jules Verne, with his amusing and suggestive fictions, has more than once inspired science and industry. More than once has he engendered miracles by imagining them in advance. But that is not the greatest of the services which he has rendered. The immortal merit of his work consists in his having created a new state of mind by enlarging the horizon of a too much stay-at-home race, and impregnating vocations ignorant of their own capabilities with energies which, had it not been for him, would have remained latent or sterile.—Paris Figaro.

Giving Her Encouragement.

"Do you know," said the gushing maiden, "I should just love to write for the papers, and I believe I could do it, too."

"My dear young woman," replied the sympathetic editor, "there's no reason in the world why you shouldn't."

"Really!" she cried, delightedly.

"None at all," he asserted. "Anyone can write for the papers; it's no trick at all. Why, that waste basket is full of stuff that was writen for the papers."—Chicago Post.

The Japanese Peerage.

Japan will have to hold her hand soon in the matter of creating peers. No less than 275 have been added to the number since the system was inaugurated. In 1884, when peers were first created, patents were granted to 11 princes—excluding princes of the blood—24 marquises, 73 counts, 321 viscounts and 74 barons. Now the numbers stand: Eleven princes, 34 marquises, 89 counts, 363 viscounts and 281 barons. The total in 1884 was 503; to-day it is 778.—N. Y. Sun.

At a christening, while the minister was making out the certificate, he forgot the date, and happened to say:

ITO NOW IN AMERICA.

Former Premier of Japan, on Health Trip, Will Travel Through the United States.

Marquis Ito, former premier of Japan, is now in the United States. He is traveling for the benefit of his health, which had been failing for some months. He will travel through the country and will possibly visit London before his return, three or four months hence.

It is now rather more than four years since the marquis passed through America en route to the jubilee celebration in London.

In personal appearance he has changed but little since then. Though sailing he still possesses the alertness and spirit characteristic of his life. Accompanying him is a party of prominent Japanese, including Hon. K. Tsazuki, advisory minister of the department of education.

When asked what he thought of Russian aggression in the far east, the marquis stated that he did not consider any steps in the direction now being taken by the czar were hostile to Japan. His country was not opposed to any of the present movements of Russia; in fact, he stated that the relationship between the two countries was now of the friendliest nature.

Just before leaving Japan the marquis said in a speech:

"The affairs of the far east have become subjects of the closest attention on the part of European and American powers during the last few years, and there are indications that the far east will be brought into closer touch with foreign countries in future.

"For these reasons I deem it most necessary that Japanese should make exhaustive inquiries into the affairs of Europe and America by means of personal inspection. I hope that my trip abroad will help me in furthering the welfare of our country. Looking into the present state of Japan, political circles seem to be enjoying temporary tranquillity, as there is no important political question ahead requiring the immediate attention of the politicians. The policy of the government, it may be presumed, will not undergo any radical change to that pursued."

land. This church contains some fairly well preserved specimens of early British architecture, but its chief claim to distinction lies in the fact that it is probably the only church where a highwayman has been honored with a monument.

Lord John Chandos gained his barony and the grant of Sudley castle by his strenuous support of Queen Mary's claims to the throne. Afterwards, when that ill-advised queen was hailing her subjects to jail and to death as heretics, Lord Chandos, though opposed to the executions, had to act as the queen's instrument. His son, Henry Brydges, connived at the escape of a family marked for punishment, and, being recognized, he and his servants were forced to lead the life of outlaws.

At his death his admirers put up the monument to him in Avening church.

I work for the Dennison Mfg. Co., of Boston, and since early in the fall have been working evenings, consequently hurrying in eating my meals. This caused indigestion, which gave me much trouble, besides causing constipation. Having heard of Ripans Tabules I bought a few to try them. In a few days I noticed an improvement in the condition of my stomach. They have done me very much good, and I can work extra time without the bad feeling in my stomach that I had before taking the Tabules. I am twenty-six years of age, and have worked for the Dennison firm for about twelve years. Would prefer not to have my name used in a printed testimonial.

WANTED:—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. LONG GARMENTS.

Three-quarter Length Coats Are the Most Popular This Year.

Three-quarter length coats are even more popular than the full length models. The reason is doubtless because the latter are hard to manage with long trains. The only way to wear them consists in having a slit made in the back or side seam of the coat, where the hand may be passed through easily and the skirt of the gown underneath raised by this means. Coats of baby lamb lined with ermine or sable are of course the most dressy of all winter garments, but charming models are also being shown in cloth and silk. The black velvet coat is taking the place of the summery taffeta. These black velvet coats are made severely plain as well as most beautifully trimmed. On the whole, the plain velvet coat looks the richer. A light colored brocade, white preferred, should be used for lining it.

Fawn and pearl gray automobile coats are not so fashionable as they were last year. Black seems to have taken their place. The plain black broadcloth garments are softened by elaborate applications of velvet. The handsomest are cut on empire lines.

In the illustration we have a three-quarter coat of black broadtail. It is cut double breasted and fastened with silk frogs. The sleeves are cut bell shaped, with deep cuffs of sable. The high collars and revers are also of the sable. This is one of the latest models in coats. It is lined throughout with flowered satin in Persian colorings.

Black Cashmere Is Trimmed With Wide Chantilly Insertions.

Cashmere is to be one of the most popular dress materials this winter, and black cashmere, formerly relegated to old ladies, is shown made up in the most attractive and youthful models. These black cashmere dresses are banded with innumerable wide insertions of chantilly, the goods in many cases being cut out from under these insertions in order to show a colored or white taffeta lining. Poplin is another graceful fabric which lends itself well to the present styles. It is particularly effective in old rose shades. All the plain materials are very much tucked, and by this means even the most inexpensive materials may be made to look rich.

Ribbed velvet will be very much worn as soon as the weather is cold enough. These velvet gowns are very often made up in Louis XV. style and enriched by soft fronts of chiffon and lace.

Here is a street costume which follows the Louis Quinze style. It is of black velvet, cut double breasted in front and having long coattails ornamented with two jeweled buttons. The big wide collar and revers are of white cloth trimmed with strappings of black velvet, which are apparently fastened down by means of tiny gilt buttons. The wide cuffs on the sleeves are also treated after the fashion. The skirt is made over a slip of black satin. It is perfectly plain, with the exception of a gored flounce, which is headed by a strapped application.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

By Robert Louis Stevenson.

CHAPTER V.

It was late in the afternoon when Mr. Utterson found his way to Dr. Jekyll's door, where he was at once admitted by Poole, and carried down by the kitchen offices and across a yard which had once been a garden, the the building which was indifferently known as the laboratory or the dissecting rooms. The doctor had bought the house from the heirs of a celebrated surgeon; and his own tastes being rather chemical than anatomical, had changed the destination of the block at the bottom of the garden.

It was the first time that the lawyer had been received in that part of his friend's quarters; and he eyed the dingy, windowless structure with curiosity, and gazed round with a distasteful sense of strangeness as he crossed the theater, once crowded with eager students, and now lying quant and silent, the tables laden with chemical apparatus, the floor strewn with crates and littered with packing straw, and the light falling dimly through the foggy cupola. At the further end, a flight of stairs mounted to a door covered with red baize; and through this Mr. Utterson was at last received into the doctor's cabinet. It was a large room, fitted round with glass presses, furnished, among other things, with a cheval glass and business table, and looking out upon the court by three dusty windown barred with iron. The fire burned in the grate; a lamp was set lighted on the chimney shelf, for even in the houses the fog began to lie thickly; and there, close up to the warmth, sat Dr. Jakyll, looking deady sick. He did not rise to meet his visitor, but held out a cold hand and bade him welcome in a changed voice.

"And now," said Mr. Utterson, as soon as Poole had left them, "you have heard the news?"

The doctor shuddered. "They were crying it is the square," he said. "I heard them in my dining-room."

"One word," said the lawyer. "Carew was my client, but so are you, and I want to know what I am doing. You have not been mad enough to hide this fellow?"

"Utterson, I swear to God, cried the doctor, "I swear to God I will never set eyes on him again. I bind my honor to you that I am done with him in this world. It is all at an end. And indeed he does not want my help; you do not know him as I do; he is safe, he is quite safe; mark my words, he will never more be heard of."

The lawyer listened gloomily; he did not like his friend's feverish manner. "You seem pretty sure of him," said he; "and for your sake, I hope you may be right. If it came to a trial, your name might appear."

"I am quite sure of him," replied Jekyll; "I have grounds for certainty that I can not share with any one. But there is one thing on which you may advise me. I have—I have received a letter, and I am at a loss whether I should show it to the police. I should like to leave it in your hands, Utterson; you would judge wisely, I am sure; I have so great a trust in you."

"You fear, I suppose, that it might lead to his detection?" asked the lawyer.

"No," said the other. "I can not say that I care what becomes of Hyde; I am quite done with him. I was thinking of my own character, which this hateful business has rather exposed."

Utterson ruminated awhile; he was surprised at his friend's selfishness, and yet relieved by it. "Well," said he, at last, "let me see the letter."

The letter was written in an odd, upright hand, and signed "Edward Hyde;" and it signified, briefly enough, that the writer's benefactor, Dr. Jekyll, whom he had long so unworthily repaid for a thousand generosities, need labor under no alarm for his safety, as he had means of escape on which he placed a sure dependence. The lawyer liked this letter well enough; it put a better color on the intimacy than he had looked for, and he blamed himself for some of his past suspicions.

"Have you the envelope?" he asked.

"I burned it," replied Jekyll, "before I thought what I was about. But it bore no postmark. The note was handed in."

"Shall I keep this and sleep upon it?" asked Utterson.

"I wish you to judge for me entirely," was the reply. "I have lost confidence in myself."

"Well, I shall consider," returned the lawyer. "And now one word more; it was Hyde who dictated the terms in your will about that disappearnce?"

The doctor seemed seized with a qualm of faintness; he shut his month tight and nodded.

"I knew it," said Utterson. "He meant to murder you. You have had a fine escape."

"I have had what is far more to the purpose," returned the doctor, solemnly: "I have had a lesson—oh, God, Utterson, what a lesson I have had!" And he covered his face for a moment with his hands.

On his way out, the lawyer stopped and had a word or two with Pooie. "By the bye," said he, "there was a letter handed in to-day; what was the messenger like?" But Poole was positive nothing had come except by post; "and only circulars by that," he added.

This news sent off the visitor with his fears renewed. Plainly the letter had come by the laboratory door; possibly, indeed, it had been written in the cabinet; and if that were so, it must be differently judged, and handled with the more caution. The newsboys, as he went, were crying themselves hoarse along the foot-ways: "Special edition. Shocking murder of an M. P." And he could not help a certain apprehension lest the good name of another should be sucked down in the eddy of the scandal. It was, at least, a ticklish decision that he had to make; and self-reliant as he was by habit, he began to cherish a longing for advice. It was not to be had directly, but perhaps, he thought, it might be fished for.

Presently after, he sat on one side of his own hearth, with Mr. Guest, his head clerk, upon the other, and midway between, at a nicely calculated distance from the fire, a bottle of a particular old wine that had long dwelt unsunned in the foundations of his house. The fog still slept on the wing above the drowned city, where the lamps glimmered like carbuncles; and through the muffle and smother of these fallen clouds, the procession of the town's life was still rolling in through the great arteries with a sound as of a mighty wind. But the room was gay with firelight. In the bottle the acids were long ago resolved; the imperial dye had softened with time, as the color grows richer in stained windows; and the glow of hot autumn afternoons on hill-side vineyards was ready to be set free and to disperse the fogs of London. Insensibly the lawyer melted. There was no man from whom he kept fewer secrets than Mr. Guest; and he was not always sure that he kept as many as he meant. Guest had often been on business to the doctor's; he knew Poole; he could scarce have failed to hear of Mr. Hyde's familiarity about the house. he might draw conclusions; was it not as well, then, that he should see a letter which put that mystery to rights? and above all since Guest, being a great student and critis of handwriting, would consider the step natural and obliging? The clerk, besides, was a man of counsel; he would scarce read so strange a document without dropping a remark; and by that remark Mr. Utterson might shape his future course.

"This is a sad business about Sir Danvers," he said.

"Yes, sir, indeed. It has elicited a great deal of public feeling," returned Guest. "The man, of course, was mad."

"I should like to hear your views on that," replied Utterson. "I have a document here in his handwriting, it is between ourselves, for I scarce know what to do about it; it is an ugly business at the best. But there it is; quite in your way; a murderer's autograph."

Guest's eyes brightened, and he sat down at once and studied it with passion. "No, sir," he said; "not mad; but it is an odd hand."

"And by all accounts a very odd writer," added the lawyer.

Just then the servant entered with a note.

"Is that from Dr. Jekyll, sir?" inquired the clerk. "I thought I knew the writing. Anything private, Mr. Utterson?"

"Only an invitation to dinner. Why? Do you want to see it?"

"One moment. I thank you, sir;" and the clerk laid the two sheets of paper alongside and sedulously compared their contents. "Thank you, sir," he said at last, returning both; "it's a very interesting autograph."

There was a pause, during which Mr. Utterson struggled with himself. "Why did you compare them, Guest?" he inquired, suddenly.

"Well, sir," returned the clerk, "there's a rather singular resemblance; the two hands are in many points identical, only differently sloped."

ADVERTISED A HAIR WASH.

Senator Joe Bailey Was Disgusted at the Notoriety He Achieved Through Advertisements.

Senator Joe Bailey, of Texas, enjoys the prominence he has achieved in the councils of the nation, but does not hanker after the sort of fame some people seem disposed to force upon him. He has protected the constitution from the assaults of the irreverent and utilitarian political degenerates who sometimes seem to him to delight to trail it in the dust, but he does not like to be used to sustain the pretensions of medicine makers or the pretensions of hair promoters. "A short time ago," said Senator Bailey, with feeling in his voice, "two lady friends in Chicago whom I esteem very highly sent me a newspaper in which, to my surprise and disgust, my portrait was printed, along with those of 'Jo' Cannon and some other equally respectable members of the congress, as guarantors of the excellence of some stuff used by the barbers of the house of representatives. I just sat down and wrote to the advertisers to drop my portrait and intimated that worse might follow. And, do you know, I got a reply in which the advertisers fished for another recommendation by suggesting that I was really not acquainted with the merits of their nostrum. They got out of it, however, by saying that our barber told him he had tried the stuff on Cannon and me and that we had not objected. I never knew that he had."

AUTOMOBILE VEILS.

And Some Other Expensive Novelties for Protecting the Complexion of Ladies.

Everything in dress seems to smack of the automobile these days, and now we have automobile veiling, which is much heavier than a chiffon veiling and finished with hem-stitched edges. Besides looking very nice it has the virtues of being durable and of being a great protection for the complexion. One little shop on Fifth avenue has brought out this no y together with many others of the more fancy sort, says the New York Sun.

For the women who do not mind spending hundreds of dollars for veiling in one season, there is a chiffon veil hemstitched all around by hand in the daintiest manner. Many fancy effects on white mesh veiling are made by using a large fat dot of white chenille with the tiniest little dots of black chenille half way around it.

Again there are bunches of grapes in white chenille dots with a little coil stem done in black silk thread. The newest thing in colored chiffon veiling has a medium large dot of velvet matching the color on one side and white on the other.

WATER KEEPS MEN ALIVE.

This Says That Healthy Persons Can Live for Fifty Days Without Other Nourishment.

It is no secret to medical men and physiologists that there is a great deal of nourishment in water. Even that which is sterilized contains enough of solids to keep a human being from death for a long time.

During a prolonged fast the loss of weight is unusually rapid at first and decreases as time goes on. Death ensues when a certain percentage of the loss has been reached, and this percentage varies according to the original weight. Fat animals may lose half their weight, thinner ones perhaps two-fifths, a man or woman, of rather spare build, weighing 143 pounds, might, therefore, lose about 55 pounds before succumbing. Children die after a fast of from three to five days, during which they have lost a quarter of their weight. Healthy adults, however, have fasted 50 days when water has been taken. A German physician reports the case of a woman aged 47 years who fasted for 43 days, taking water freely. She lost 44 pounds out of 143 pounds and died from exhaustion.

Great Work of Finsen Rays.

Dr. Neils Finsen has been interviewed in his laboratory in Copenhagen regarding his experiments in the cure of various diseases by the use of the so-called Finsen rays of light, discovered and put to therapeutical use by him. He is a shy and slender young man, full of enthusiasm, and never visited London, where his system has just been put in operation successfully. Queen Alexandria and many English physicians have visited his hospital in Denmark. He thinks eventually the use of the rays of sunlight will produce more beneficial results than those of electric light. In a new hospital he is having built both kinds will be used, with new and powerful apparatus. Finsen says the system is beneficial to many other diseases than ulceration.

King Edward's Maces.

The king of England has ten maces, which are kept in the Tower of London. They are all of different degrees and will be used at the coronation. The lords have their own mace, and will not allow the house of commons' mace to enter their house. It accompanies the commons to the door of their lordships' house, but it is always left outside.

CITY JUDGE PITIED HIM.

Sentence Suspended on Young Man Charged With Assault and Drunkenness.

Harry Brittin, a young man, who the police declare is not gifted with being overly bright and whose remarks to the court bore out the allegation, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon, this morning, charged with drunkenness and assaulting Harris Goldstein, a Watchung avenue shoemaker.

He was arrested last evening by Patrolman Overbaugh. From appearances it seemed as if Brittin had been pulled through a threshing machine as his face was minus big patches of cuticle while a deep gash stood out prominently on his nose. The patolman said that he had injured his face in falling. Accepting the statement in regard to his mental capacity, the court suspended sentence.

Arrangements for the Republican mass-meeting to be held at Reform Hall tomorrow evening are practically completed. There was a meeting of the committee today at the office of William Newcorn, and there will be a meeting of the Republican city committee this evening.

The party will then be escorted back to the railroad station, where a train for Elizabeth will be taken. After the departure of Mr. Murphy and his escorts, Hon. Edward L. Wilson, of Red Bank, will speak.

At Elizabeth a large reception will be given to Franklin Murphy. All the Republican clubs in Union county will be in that city and both the Lyceum Theatre and Jacob's Opera House have been engaged for meetings. Mr. Murphy will speak at both places. It has been arranged that Mr. Murphy shall arrive in Elizabeth during the afternoon and review the firemen's parade, after which he will be entertained at dinner by Senator Kean. It is not expected that the Assembly candidates will speak in this city.

WELCOMED BACK THE PASTOR

RECEPTION GIVEN TO REV. DR. AND MRS. W. C. SNODGRASS.

Ladies' Aid Society and the Epworth League United Forces for Last Evening's Reception.

The Epworth League and Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E church united forces last evening to tender a welcoming reception to their pastor, Rev. Dr. Wm. C Snodgrass and his wife, who spent the summer abroad. While they have been home now for some time, this was the first formal social event held in church circles since their return.

There was a good attendance, the congregation turning out in full force to welcome their pastor. During the first part of the evening, a musical programme was provided by the Epworth League. James R. Joy acted as master of ceremonies and made the welcoming speech. At the close of the programme, the pastor responded and thanked his congregation very heartily for the kindly spirit shown.

The programme included soprano solos by Miss Alice Carroll, accompanied by Miss Grace Carroll, bass solos by Raymond A. McGee, accompanied by Mrs. J. R. Joy, and piano solos by Miss Saidee Mae Howell.

Refreshments were then served under the direction of the Ladies' Aid Society, the president, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, having general supervision. The literary committee, Mrs. Frank French chairman, and the social committee, Miss Persis Snodgrass chairman, of the Epworth League, also assisted. The remainder of the evening was spent in social chat.

COBWEB SOCIAL.

Given by Epworth League of Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Last Evening.

A delightful affair, styled a cobweb social, was given in the Monroe Avenue church last evening under the auspices of the Epworth League. There were sixty persons in attendance, and at the close all voted the occasion a complete success.

On entering the church the attendant was given the end of a string and instructed to follow it as far as it went. It was crossed with other strings and the fun in unraveling was greatly enjoyed. A small flower or an appropriate article would be found at the termination.

After all had found the opposite end of the strings refreshments were served, and during their disposal a number of piano selections were rendered by Miss Daisy Brouard. The social was in charge of the entertainment committee of the League, and the proceeds will be added to its treasury.

REGISTRY LIGHTER THIS YEAR

SMALL LOSS IN ALL THE PRECINCTS THROUGHOUT THE CITY.

Yesterday Was Last Chance to Register Before Election Day Tuesday.

The registry books are closed and only those whose names are on the registry lists are entitled to vote Tuesday. As might be expected the registry is not quite as large as last year, inasmuch as that was for the presidential campaign.

As a rule the house to house canvass of the boards of registry was very complete, and few names were added yesterday afternoon and last evening.

In the First district of the First ward the total registration was 573, a slight decrease from that of last year. In the second district 8 names were added to the registry list, making a total of 232, not quite as many as were registered last year. The total loss in the First ward was 40.

A total of 604 names were placed on the list in the First district of the second ward. Of this number twenty-three were registered yesterday. Here also the size of the list is not equal to that of last year.

In the Second district of the Second ward three names were added and one taken off, making a total of 255.

In the Third ward there was a slight falling off in the registration. This deficiency in numbers is found in the First district where there are twenty names less than last year. In the Second district there is no change in the numerical strength.

There will necessarily be a falling off in the vote of the Fourth ward compared with last year's, inasmuch as in the three districts 1509 names have been enrolled, whereas last year there were 1580.

A total of 523 names were placed on the list in the First district, and nineteen of these were added yesterday. In the Second district fifteen names were put on the book yesterday, making the total registration 516 The Third district registration is 468.

His Slight Mistake.

The prospect of a dinner will generally keep a hungry man awake. But the victim of absent-mindedness seems at times unable to distinguish between what to eat and what to leave. This was the case with the man who went into a London restaurant, called for a newspaper, and only when roughly aroused from his reading by a waiter, ordered coffee and a ham sandwich. The waiter executed the order and deposited with the homely fare a large pasteboard check. The absent-minded one went on reading his paper. Some quarter of an hour after the waiter returned. "Anything more, sir?" he asked. "Yes," snapped the man, "get me a fresh sandwich; the one you brought me was dry as a bone." The waiter looked down and gasped. "Lor!" he exclaimed, "here's the sandwich I brought! You've eaten the check!" —Rochester Post-Express.

Diplomatic Peanut Boys.

Boys who sell peanuts in the grandstands at the baseball grounds are never discouraged if there is "nothing doing" in their line until after the fifth inning. Patrons of the game do not begin to feel "peekish" until after five o'clock, and then the peanut boy works diplomatically. If he sells one bag in a row of men he does not pass on to the next aisle, but waits in the back seats until his first customer begins to eat peanuts. In a minute or two men who never had any thought of buying peanuts beckon to him to come forward. Usually his basket is empty before he reaches the next aisle and he goes back for a fresh supply. One bag of freshly roasted peanuts in the hands of a man who eats them as though he enjoys them is sure to create an appetite for a dozen more bags among his neighbors.—Philadelphia Times.

Those Wise Children Again.

George is five years old, and his father read him the impresive story of George Washington and the cherry tree and the subsequent frank admission. Noticing the look of astonishment on the child's face, his father asked: "Don't you think he was a very good boy?" "Good, papa?" said George, incredulously. "Why, of course he knew his father had got wise, anyhow."

This reminds us of the story of the mother who, after reading "Casabianca" to her little daughter, remarked: "Now, wasn't he a good little boy?"

"Yes," sighed the child. "He was awfully good, but he wasn't one bit smart."—N. Y. Sun.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1901. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR.

CITY SITUATION IMPARTIALLY SUMMED UP; SKETCHES OF THE MUNICIPAL CANDIDATES.

Democrats Have a Chance of Electing Three Councilmen, But Otherwise Republicans Will Undoubtedly Win.

CHIEF FIGHT IS OVER CANDIDATES FOR COUNCIL.

INTEREST IN CITY ELECTION OVERSHADOWS THAT IN THE RESULTS IN STATE.

Factional Fight in Second Threatens E. E. Pray's Chances—Bitter Campaign in the First—Democrats Hopeful in the Fourth—Something About Councilmanic Candidates.

If the makers of the Meeker Election Law had any idea that the combination of State and municipal elections would serve to make the latter subordinate and draw the party lines closer in city affairs, they will undoubtedly be disappointed in Plainfield this year. Despite the fact that there is a governor to be elected in New Jersey, this year, the city ticket promises to occupy the position of chief interest as far as the general public of Plainfield is concerned. While there has been but comparatively little interest here in State and county issues, no end of gossip is to be heard regarding the fight in the city.

As it stands today, Plainfield is overwhelmingly a Republican city, it always has been and, at present, there is no reason to believe that it will be heaval in city affairs this year. While twenty-four hours may bring forth an entire new state of affairs, an impartial view of the situation today leads to the belief that most of the Republican candidates will be elected. The possibilities for Democratic victory are in the fight for the councilmen from the First and Fourth wards and one councilman-at-large.

An exceedingly bitter fight is in progress in the First ward between Councilman William Gloak, Republican, and Former Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, Democratic. Mr. Gloak has the advantage of the strong Republican organization which is particularly well organized there. Mr. Hetfield is a vigorous campaigner with lots of experience. He has a faculty of saying what he means without beating around the bush, and otherwise for many years to come. This fact, however, does not prevent the city election from furnishing many exciting contests. A great majority of the Plainfield voters have been in the habit of forgetting party lines when the municipal election comes around and voting on local issues or the personalities of the candidates. This has made it possible for the Democrats, or a combination of Democrats and independent Republicans entitled the Citizens' ticket, to elect a number of local officers in the past. The Republicans have even lost control of the Common Council for a year or two at a time. At present, however, they are in complete control and hold every city office of any importance.

In Tuesday's election, there will be an opportunity for the enemies of the present administration to gain control of the Common Council as three councilmen-at-large and four ward councilmen are to be chosen. It is on these offices that Tuesday's local fight will chiefly be made. No attempt is made to defeat City Judge William N. Runyon for re election as the Democrats have not even put up a candidate against him. The fight over the school trustee is not likely to be particularly hot. Some bitter encounters are likely to develop, however, over the Councilmanic nominees.

A careful caucus among the workers of both parties in the nine voting precincts of the city does not give evidence that there is to be any great upheavel in city affairs this year. While twenty-four hours may bring forth an entire new state of affairs, an impartial view of the situation today leads to the belief that most of the Republican candidates will be elected. The possibilities for Democratic victory are in the fight for the councilmen from the First and Fourth wards and one councilman-at-large.

An exceedingly bitter fight is in progress in the First ward between Councilman William Gloak, Republican, and Former Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, Democratic. Mr. Gloak has the advantage of the strong Republican organization which is particularly well organized there. Mr. Hetfield is a vigorous campaigner with lots of experience. He has a faculty of saying what he means without beating around the bush, and he promises to give Mr. Gloak a hot fight for the seat in the Common Council. What lends particular interest to the fight is that the two men met before two years ago and Mr. Gloak won out.

There is very little chance that Lewis G. Timpson, Democratic, will defeat Councilman Jan vanHerwerden, Republican, in the fight for councilman from the Second ward. Mr. Timpson's popularity will undoubtedly give him a number of Republican votes, but he has practically no show of election unless the opposing factions of Second ward Republicans include the fight for councilman in their present difficulties.

Over in the Third ward only a landslide can prevent the election of Leslie M. Daniel, Republican, over John H. Hillman, Democratic.

The Democrats are strongest in the Fourth ward, and there they are planning a hot fight for their candidate, John Casey. Councilman Robert L. Lee, the Republican nominee, is considered a strong man, however, and the odds are in his favor, although there is a prospect of an exciting campaign.

Factional troubles among the Republicans of the Second ward begin to seriously threaten the chances of election for Edward E. Pray, one of the Republican nominees for councilman at large. The trouble has been a long time brewing. It bubbled out at the ward primary. It was decidedly evident at the city convention. It appears to centre chiefly about John E. Keely, a member of the city and county committees from that ward. He has been an indefatigable worker there, and has gradually extended his influence so that he was able to set at naught the wishes of a number of prominent Republicans of the ward and nominate Mr. Pray when the other faction had desired Daniel Ginna's nomination. Of course, that was not the beginning of the trouble, but it has served to rouse the opposition to Mr. Keely to determined action.

As a means of breaking Mr. Keely's power in the Second ward, the opposition is preparing to bring about the defeat of his choice, Mr. Pray, if possible. Several Second ward Republicans have been outspoken in the determination to cut Mr. Pray for J. P. Homan, one of the Democratic candidates. There have been a number of secret conferences and a bunch of campaign literature bearing on the subject may be expected to make its appearance shortly.

It is a question as to whether this movement against Mr. Pray will be strong enough to cut down the normal majority he would naturally receive.

Edward E. Pray.

It promises, however, to make things interesting.

While A. H. Atterbury, one of the Democratic candidates, will run well in the Second and Third wards, he will be cut in the First and Fourth where rumor has it that Councilman Buckle's name will be substituted. As far as Mr. Buckle's chances are concerned, only the most unexpected can prevent his election. He is practically sure of being returned to the Common Council.

Clarence L. Murphy, the third of the Republican trio for the Common Council, will probably be elected by a fair majority.

Of the Democratic nominees for Councilman-at-large, Former Councilman J. P. Homan appears to have the best chance, owing to the Republican split in the Second. Next to him is Isaac M. Field. Only a Democratic landslide can accomplish the election of Mr. Field and Mr. Atterbury.

James F. Buckle, one of the Republican nominees for Councilman-at-large, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., November 30, 1852. He received his education in the public schools of Beverly, this State. For thirty years he has been a resident of Plainfield, being in business for many years as a member of the firm of Woolston &

James F. Buckle.

Buckle, dealers in paints, wall paper, etc.

Mr. Buckle has always taken much interest in the affairs of this city. He is now serving his second term as a member of the Common Council, and he served in a similar capacity for one term in the Borough Council. He has always been a staunch Republican and has always helped his party. He is a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M.; Plainfield Council, No.

HEARTY WELCOME READY FOR FRANKLIN MURPHY

The Republican Candidate For Governor Will Reach Plainfield This Afternoon.

SPEAKS AT MASS-MEETING

WILL BE ENTERTAINED AT DINNER BY FORMER MAYOR GILBERT.

Leaves on 8:38 Train for Elizabeth, Where He Addresses Two Meetings—Plans for Tonight's Meeting at Reform Hall.

The Republican city committee met last evening and completed all arrangement for the mass meeting to be held this evening in Reform Hall. It is proposed to make the meeting the banner one for this end of the county, and the attractions will be strong enough to enthuse every Republican citizen. The committee has been planning for this meeting since the campaign opened. Instead of having a number of smaller meetings it was considered best to hold one large meeting.

As stated yesterday Mayor O. L. Jenkins, as chairman of the city committee, will call the meeting to order, after which Col. Mason W. Tyler will be chosen chairman. There will be plenty of music and good speeches in one grand effort to roll up a big majority for the Republican ticket.

Franklin Murphy, the candidate for Governor, accompanied by U. S. Senator John Kean, will arrive in Plainfield on the 5:27 train. They will be taken at once to the home of Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert on West Eighth street, where they will be entertained at dinner.

Promptly at 7:30 o'clock the party, accompanied by LaVere's Band and a number of prominent citizens, will leave Mr. Gilbert's house for Reform Hall. The party will pass through Eighth street to Park avenue, through Park avenue to Front street, through Front street to Central avenue and to Reform Hall. It has been arranged to give the candidate a royal reception along the line of march and at Reform Hall.

The hall will be opened at 7 o'clock. Promptly at 8 o'clock Mr. Murphy will begin his speech. He will talk for one half hour, leaving the hall at 8:30 sharp to catch the 8:38 train for Elizabeth, where he will make two speeches.

After the departure of Mr. Murphy and the other members of the party, Hon. Edward L. Wilson, of Red Bank, will speak. He is a person of note and a powerful talker. There will be more music by the band and other speeches. Seats at the hall will be reserved for women. It is estimated that one thousand persons can be accommodated at the hall, and it is believed that fully that number will be present.

A list of fifty vice-presidents has been chosen and these persons will occupy seats on the platform. There will also be on the platform members of the city government and prominent leaders in the Republican party.

PARADING AT ELIZABETH.

Warren Engine Company Sent a Big Delegations and Steamer to County Seat.

Warren Engine Company is participating in the firemen's festivities at Elizabeth today. In company with a number of guests the members left this city on the trolley at 8 o'clock. The engine was sent over yesterday afternoon. Captain W. C. Smith leads the fire laddies in the parade and he expects to see his company carry off the honors for drilling.

Accompanying the Warren contingent are Mayor N. B. Smalley, Recorder Thomas Doud, Collector George F. Brown, Chief of the Department J. S. Stahl, Assistant Chief of the Department Charles Keller, and several members of the Council. Mayor Smalley will participate in the Perth Amboy fire department parade at the conclusion of the Elizabeth affair this afternoon.

NOMINATED OFFICERS.

Meeting of Women's Society for Christian Work of Seventh-Day Baptists.

An adjourned meeting of the Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was held yesterday. The only business of importance was the presentation of the report of the nominating committee which tendered a list of names for officers. The members selected have not as yet signified their intentions in the matter, and the names will not be made public until the next meeting during the coming week.

ENDEAVOR SOCIAL OF THE HARVEST SEASON.

Charming Affair Given at Seventh-day Baptist Church Last Evening.

SEASONABLE DECORATIONS

ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME OF MUSIC AND READINGS GIVEN.

Welsh Rarebit, Pumpkin Pie and Crullers Formed the Basis of the Supper Which Was Served.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-day Baptist church a delightful social was given in the lecture-room of the church edifice last evening, which was attended by a large number of the members of the congregation and their friends.

In one sense it partook of the nature of a harvest-home affair. In the lecture-room near the platform was a corn stack, about which was placed shocked corn and pumpkins. In the room where the refreshments were served the idea was also well carried out. On the tables were turnips and carrots, which were used as pedestals or bases for small candles. About the room were placed jack-o'-lanterns.

The affair was in charge of the entertainment committee of the society and it had provided a pleasant programme. The opening number was a piano duet rendered by Miss Marie Rogers and Miss Bessie Dunham. Miss Cornelia Miller sang a soprano solo, and she was followed by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis who favored the assemblage with selections from Robert Burns. The recitations were his "Hallowe'en" and "The Cotter's Saturday Night." Miss Miller closed the formal entertainment with a soprano solo.

At the conclusion of this part of the evening's affair refreshments were served. The repast consisted of pumpkin pie, crullers and coffee. With it the guests were permitted to taste delicious Welsh rarebit. This last dish was served by Mrs. F. J. Hubbard, Mrs. M. L. Clawson and Mrs. F. H. Smith. Salted peanuts were passed around by Miss Eva Rogers and Miss Bessie Dunham. A corps of waitresses consisted of the Misses Mildred Green, Mary St. John, Cornelia Miller, Bertha Mitchell, Bessie Randolph, Myrtle Randolph and Louella Clawson.

RETAIL CLERKS' DANCE.

It Was The First Social Affair Given by Local Organization of Retail Clerks.

One hundred and twenty-five young people, comprising the members of Retail Clerk's Association, No. 14 and their friends, enjoyed a delightful dance, last evening, in the Camera Club rooms, under the auspices of the association. It was the first affair of this nature given by the organization since its formation and did much to get the young people better acquainted.

The dancing commenced early in the evening and was continued without cessation until midnight, when refreshments were served. It was afterward resumed and, with music from O'Reilly's orchestra as an incentive, was kept up until an early hour this morning.

The committee which arranged the dance and was in charge last evening, consisted of James McLean, Charles Fritts, Frank Marcley, Lewis Brucher and Clarence Brokaw.

E. B. CLARK RESIGNS.

Business Prevents His Continuing as Member of Board of Hospital Governors.

The many friends of Muhlenberg Hospital will learn with deep regret that E. B. Clark has resigned as a member of the Board of Governors. Mr. Clark tendered his resignation at a meeting of the board this week and with great reluctance it was accepted. He has many other duties that at present engage his attention and, in view of this fact, does not feel like continuing as a governor. During the many years that Mr. Clark has served the hospital his wise counsel and timely aid has resulted in the accomplishment of much good.

Ended The Case.

The case of Joseph Blimm against Charles C. Vail and the Continental Insurance Company came up yesterday before Judge Vail at Elizabeth, and the Judge refused to grant the request of the plaintiff's counsel in asking that a receiver be appointed. On the other hand Judge Vail vacated the order, thus quashing the whole business. He would not listen to argument and the case was thus abruptly ended.

FIRE DEPARTMENT GONE; CITIZENS FOUGHT FIRE.

Small Chimney Fire at Residence of Henry Goldsmith Caused Lots of Excitement.

TURNED STREAM IN CHIMNEY

SOMEBODY DROPPED MATTRESS ON POLICEMAN'S HEAD.

Relief Hose Company Boys Found Their Rooms Locked, the Foreman Having Gone Away—Broke in the Door.

When the valiant protectors of North Plainfield's life and property were off on a jaunt this morning, a home was threatened with destruction by mad flames. Exactly at 8 o'clock the big fire alarm, which has not been overworked of late, sounded and a handful of firemen in company with Special Officer Lawrence Fahn and a delegation of citizens rushed to the house, 23 Warren street, occupied by Henry Goldsmith, where a chimney was on fire.

The Warren Engine Company had left a short time before to participate in the firemen's parade at Elizabeth. Henry DeMott and others set to work in dead earnest. It was some time before the department responded.

In the meanwhile one would-be fireman in his zeal tore and banged at the shutters of a window in his efforts to get a view of the conflagration, which had spread to the flooring of the parlor. After a struggle he found it was a false window.

While this was going on someone had effected an entrance to the place of the fire, and immediately a big mattress came sailing out the window, landing on the head of Special Officer Fahn, who was not expecting any bouquets on this occasion.

By the time the department put in an appearance, Relief Hose Company, No. 3, arriving on the scene first, there was more excitement than fire. Some one suggested that a stream be run down the chimney and the plan was quickly carried into action. After it was decided that the house was sufficiently flooded with water the volunteers retired, and Mr. Goldsmith set to work raking up a large and varied assortment of property which had been thrown from the house and scattered in every direction.

The house is owned by Isaac Titus, of Hillside avenue. The damage done consisted of badly ruined furniture and goods. The flooring was well eaten by the flames. The loss will amount to $150.

The foreman of Relief Hose Company had departed for Elizabeth with the hose house key in his vest pocket, and there is likely to be a special meeting of the company to arrange for the repairing of a smashed-in door at its headquarters.

OFFSET NOT ALLOWED.

Case of Pflug Against Grogan Tried in Justice Hand's Court.

The contract case of William Pflug against William Grogan was tried before Justice Hand yesterday afternoon and a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for $34. The amount sued for was $57. The defendant's counsel, Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield, filed an offset, which was not allowed. The plaintiff was represented by William DeMeza.

Justice Hand yesterday gave a verdict of no cause for action in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Rothfield against Wolfson, tried before him Monday.

Mrs. Strong's Paper on Japan.

At the meeting of the Current Events Club, of North Plainfield, held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, of Rockview avenue, Mrs. Robert B. Strong of East Ninth street, read an exceedingly interesting paper on Japan. The paper was prepared by Mrs. Strong in the course of study adopted last year by the Monday Afternoon Club and was read before the club last season.

In Justice Huff's Court.

The contract case of Nischwitz & Starker against Staats will be tried before Justice Huff Nov. 6. Justice Huff has issued summons in the contract case of Anderson against Leland, returnable Nov. 6. F. J. Blatz represents the plaintiff.

Interesting Meeting.

TROLLEY CARS CRASH IN THE DENSE FOG

Misunderstanding in Reading Signals Caused Another Accident on Second St.

NO ONE SERIOUSLY HURT.

THE MOTORMEN JUMPED WHEN THEY SAW COLLISION INEVITABLE.

Big Cars 64 and 72 Met on East Second Street, Just East of Switch Near Richmond Street—Few Passengers Aboard.

The hoodoo stretch of single track on East Second street, between Richmond street and Netherwood avenue, on the Plainfield-Elizabeth line was the scene of another trolley accident at 8 o'clock this morning. Two of the company's largest cars, Nos. 64 and 72, crashed together about 100 yards east of the Second street switch. Five passengers in one car and four in the other received a shaking up but no one was hurt. Both motormen escaped injury by jumping.

Car No. 72, in charge of Motorman McCaffrey and Conductor Vaughn, both of Elizabeth, was going east and reached the Second street switch first. According to the crew, the signals were set for a clear track, which would allow them to proceed to the double track at Netherwood avenue. The signals were evidently misread as car No. 64, west bound, with Motorman Connors and Conductor Barclay, had already entered upon the single track, and was but a short distance west of Berckman street. The fog was exceptionally heavy at the time, and it was impossible to perceive objects more than thirty feet away.

The distance was too short to stop the cars and prevent the crash. The speed was lessened somewhat, but the shock was heavy enough to tear away the platforms of both cars and partially derail them.

One of the passengers, Miss Epner, of East Front street, was severely shaken and she was taken home. Dr. Pittis was summoned but she refused medical attendance.

As a result of the accident the schedule of the road was disarranged and it was nearly noon before cars were running smoothly. The travel was unusually heavy this morning, owing to the large number from this city who went to Elizabeth to see the firemen's parade.

TEA TABLE TALK

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Yesterday afternoon an enterprising West Front street merchant placed an automatic lung tester in front of his store just as a group of newsboys happened along. The contrivance is set in motion by dropping a penny in a slot which allows the experimentor to try his blowing powers, the pressure being registered on a dial. One of the diminutive paper vendors spied the machine and a copper was soon rattling through the opening. His effort was met with howls of derision by the crowd and the next instant all were struggling for a chance to get rid of their wind. Inside of ten minutes forty-three pennies had been "blown" in, and there was serious indications of a lot of newsboys becoming wind broken, when fortunately for themselves the supply of coppers became exhausted.

Just Like Postscripts.

The great lawyer had drawn up the woman's will and was reading it over to her. When he had finished she expressed her satisfaction.

"That's right," she said. "There are some queer words in it, but it has the right meaning."

The lawyer took five sheets of blank legal-cap paper and fastened them to the will.

"What are you doing with all that paper?" she asked.

"Madam," he replied, politely, "you are yet comparatively young and presumably have many years to live. Knowing a little about your sex, I am merely making proper provisions for the codicils."—Chicago Post.

Question of Language.

A new language question has arisen, this time in the little island of Malta, an English possession and the base of the British fleet in the Mediterranean. The population is almost wholly Italian, and until recently Italian has been the language of the courts. The British colonial office not long ago fixed a date after which English should supplant Italian in the courts. This action led to strong popular protests, and the local council of government refused all taxation for public improvements unless the obnoxious order was rescinded.—Youth's Companion.

Making Light from Smoke.

A Belgian engineer, Tobiansky, has invented an apparatus for producing light from smoke. It appears that the origin of the smoke is a matter of indifference. It is simply forced into a receiver, where it is saturated with hydrocarburet, and can then be burned, giving a brilliant illumination.—Science.

A New Back For An Old One—How It Is Done In Plainfield.

Sometimes the back aches with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; sometimes pain shoots across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use plastering or rubbing the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. To exchange a bad for a new and stronger one follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. B. A. Martin, of No. 70 Jackson street, says: I had pain in my back and loins for about a year or more no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning, just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Notwithstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain but they strengthened me in other ways.

BULLER'S LADYSMITH DISPATCH.

The National Review Accepts the General's Challenge.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The National Review gives the essential terms of the "spatchcocked" dispatch of Sir Redvers Buller to General Sir George White when in command of the beleaguered British garrison at Ladysmith. According to this authority, the message ran as follows:

"I have been repulsed. You will burn your ciphers and destroy all your ammunition. You will then make the best terms you can with the Boers, after I have fortified myself on the Tugela."

General Buller in the speech which led to his dismissal from the command of the First army corps challenged The National Review to publish the complete dispatch and to explain how it was obtained, declaring that he would then publish a certified copy of the original and allow the public to judge the matter.

The editor of The National Review now explains that he got the dispatch from a civilian who was in Ladysmith at the time and who said there was nothing secret about it. He asserts also that he understands that both General Buller and General White have officially asked permission to publish the authorized version, and he cannot conceive why permission has been withheld.

BIG CHICAGO BLAZE.

Seventy-five Families Homeless and Loss of Property Heavy.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Seventy-five families lost their homes and $250,000 worth of property was destroyed in a fire last night that started in Peterson & Co.'s picture frame factory, at Union street and Austin avenue.

Fanned by a strong wind, the flames got beyond control and spread to the small packing establishment of Feinberg & Stopp and a long row of residences adjoining. Two blocks of dwellings skirting Milwaukee avenue were wiped out before the fire was subdued. The Peterson factory, which, with contents, was valued at $175,000, fully insured, was destroyed. The bulk of the remainder of the loss was on residences, fairly well covered by insurance.

There were many rumors of lives lost in the fire, but it is believed that all people living in the burned buildings escaped.

Heavy Order For Cars.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—In order to facilitate the moving of coal and to relieve the blockade at the mines the Pennsylvania Railroad company has decided to place orders immediately for 13,000 pressed steel cars. These will include both gondola and box cars. The scarcity of freight cars is not confined to the Pennsylvania railroad, but is general throughout the country. The names of the companies which will receive the orders for the cars were not announced. Options have been obtained, and the contracts will be closed with the companies guaranteeing the most rapid delivery.

Steamers From Nome.

PORT TOWNSHEND, Wash., Oct. 31.—The steamers Queen and Valencia have arrived from Nome. Each brought 800 passengers. On the Queen were 100 stowaways who succeeded in boarding the vessel by climbing up the anchor chain while the vessel was at anchor in the roadway at Nome. Passengers say that 500 men were left at Nome, all of whom are penniless, with no means of making a living during the winter, and a reign of terror is predicted. During the entire voyage of the Queen petty thefts were of daily occurrence.

AMERICAN CONGRESS

Delegates at City of Mexico Getting Down to Business.

THE APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEES.

A Difference of Opinion as to Press Privileges—A Limited Number of Newspaper Representatives Likely to Be Admitted.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 31.—The pan-American congress yesterday decided to name a large number of committees. The leading committee, that on arbitration and court of arbitration, will consist of nineteen members.

In connection with the committees the delegations have the right to appoint one member each for the committee on arbitration and court of arbitration. It is understood that the United States delegation will appoint W. J. Buchanan as its representative on the arbitration committee owing to the fact that he speaks Spanish and is familiar with South American questions through his residence at Buenos Ayres as United States minister. The personnel of the other committees will be appointed by the provisional president of the congress, but it is thought that he will follow largely the wishes of the delegations.

The committee on international equity and court of claims is equal in importance to that on arbitration. It is understood that John Parrott, a United States delegate, will be a member of the committee on international equity and court of claims.

The discussion of press privileges yesterday morning was attended with some surprises. Isaac Alzamora, vice president and delegate of Peru, made a splendid speech in favor of the amplest privileges to the press, while the Chilean delegates manifested opposite opinions.

The recommendation to include the Louisiana Purchase exposition among the subjects of general welfare was introduced by ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, who dwelt on the importance of the St. Louis fair. John Barrett, another United States delegate to the congress, spoke at greater length on the same subject and alluded to President McKinley's proclamation bespeaking the attention and support of the whole world for the fair.

Mr. Barrett added the hope that Latin-America would give its hearty support and participation to the fair as a mark of good will toward the United States.

The congress did not complete the discussion of regulations at the morning's session. The chief feature of the session was the report of the committee on committees, of which ex-Senator Davis was chairman. The recommendations for appointment of committees, as already reported, were approved.

An extra session has been called for tomorrow morning to dispose finally of the press privileges in the congress. It is expected that a limited number of newspaper representatives will be admitted.

One of the principal subjects which the congress will discuss at a future session is means for the suppression of anarchy.

Colombian Plotters In Prison.

COLON, Colombia, Oct. 31.—General Pedro Nel Ospina, Colombian minister of war, together with former President Caro and certain other Nationalists, recently conspired to oust Vice President Marroquin, the acting executive. A timely discovery of the plot resulted in the flight of Senor Caro, who took refuge in the German legation at Bogota, and the arrest of General Ospina, Dr. Holguin, former minister of foreign affairs, and Senor Saavedra, all of whom are now imprisoned at Cartagena, where General Enrique Arboleda and other prisoners are expected to arrive soon.

All Bids Rejected.

HAVANA, Oct. 31.—The municipal council of Havana has rejected all bids submitted for the sewering and paving contracts, taking the position that it had previously expressed disapproval of the specifications and conditions of bidding, that the present bids involve grave errors, that the municipal council does not have at its disposal the necessary funds despite its great efforts to obtain them and that the city cannot make contracts in the premises until the money is provided. Twenty-three out of twenty-four members of the council attended the meeting.

Negotiations Proceeding.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 31.—The negotiations for the ransom of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the abducted American missionary, are progressing satisfactorily, it is understood, but beyond this those having them in hand maintain absolute secrecy, as they are convinced that publicity would be detrimental to Miss Stone's interests and safety.

POSTOFFICE FIGURES

Estimates For Fiscal Year Aggregate $135,885,596.

HEAVY FREE DELIVERY EXPENSE.

Over Four Billions of Ordinary Postage Stamps Issued During the Year Ending July 1—Largely Increased Estimates.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The estimates for the entire postal service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, aggregate $135,885,596. This is inclusive of $1,037,370 for departmental salaries and $216,650 for contingent expenses. The postmaster general submits no estimates for special facilities for fast mails between New York and Washington and Atlanta and New Orleans and between Kansas City, Mo., and Newton, Kan., though there is usually a fight for these appropriations in congress. A round half million dollars is asked for "transportation of mail by pneumatic tube or other similar devices by purchase or otherwise." The total for rural free delivery is $6,250,000, an increase of $2,750,000 over the current year. The compensation for postmasters amounts to $20,000,000; letter carriers and substitutes and temporary carriers, $17,430,450; star route service, $6,715,000; railroad transportation, railway postoffice car service and railway mail service, $52,463,456. The grand total for inland mail transportation is $63,019,956 and for foreign mails $2,542,000.

The total for manufacture of postage stamps is $280,000; stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers, $716,000; postal cards, $177,000; registered package tags, official and dead letter envelopes, $146,000, and fees to special delivery messengers, $742,000. The total for mail depredation service and all other wants of the fourth assistant postmaster general is $626,000.

The issue of ordinary stamps for the next fiscal year is estimated at 4,870,710,731 against almost 4,500,000,000 during the current year. The postal cards are expected to reach an aggregate of 735,159,008. Ordinary postage stamps issued during the fiscal year closed July 1 last numbered 4,154,838,300, including 187,383,080 of the Pan-American commemorative issue. Of these 46,805,460 were of 8 and 10 cent denominations. It is estimated that the issue of 8 and 10 cent stamps for the next two years will increase about 30 per cent yearly and that other denominations and special delivery stamps will increase at least 8 per cent yearly. The issue of books of stamps next year is estimated at 6,750,000.

Fatal Family Quarrel.

VIRGINIA CITY, Mon., Oct. 31.—Two-year-old Ethel Plumb was killed, Mrs. Plumb, the child's mother, was shot in the hip, and Mrs. Plumb's mother, Mrs. Parke, was shot in the shoulder during a fight with pistols between Plumb and his wife, who for some time have not lived happily together. Mrs. Plumb has recently been making her home with her mother. Plumb appeared there, and the pistol fight followed. The child fell dead at the first shot from her father's pistol. The man, who is now in jail, escaped other injury than a powder burned face. The woman will recover.

Port Collections Largely Increased.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A statement prepared at the treasury department shows that the amount of duties collected on personal baggage arriving at the port of New York during September, 1900, was $54,966 against $225,012 for September last, an increase of over 400 per cent for the current year. For the seven months ended Sept. 30, 1900, the amount of duties collected on personal baggage arriving at the port of New York was $152,455 as against $655,048 for the corresponding period this year.

Boers Deprived of Saltpeter.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The German steamer Herzog has arrived at Hamburg from South Africa, having on board 6,000 hundredweight of saltpeter. SCHLEY RELIEVED.

Cross Examination of the Admiral Over at Last.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The long ordeal to which Admiral Schley has been subjected since Monday morning ended yesterday afternoon when his cross examination was concluded and he was allowed to leave the witness stand. When the judge advocate finished the cross examination shortly after 3 o'clock, the court propounded to the admiral thirty-four questions prepared by the members of the court. These questions touched many points of the campaign of the flying squadron, but mainly centered about the difficulties encountered in coaling and the reasons for the retrograde movement. Not one of them related to the battle of Santiago. The judge advocate's cross examination covered the retrograde movement, the reconnoissance of May 31, the loop of the Brooklyn and the alleged colloquy with Lieutenant Hodgson about the Texas.

One of the most interesting features of the day was the development of the fact that the report of the battle written by Admiral Schley July 6, 1898, was not the original report. The original report never was published, and in accordance with a previous decision the court yesterday declined to allow it to go into the record. Admiral Schley was allowed to explain, however, that Admiral Sampson declined to receive the first report because it did not mention the presence of the New York. "I felt that the victory at that time," said Admiral Schley in explaining the matter, "was big enough for all, and I made this change out of generosity and because I knew if the New York had been present she would have done as good work as anybody else."

Indian Mounds Discovered.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—David Ives Bushnell, Jr., who is in charge of the archæological department of the Peabody institute of Boston, while on a visit to the site of the World's fair in Forest park yesterday discovered six Indian mounds on the high ridge of ground where the art building and the state and foreign buildings are to be located. Steps have been taken to save from injury at least one of the mounds for exhibition at the Louisiana Purchase exposition. "The mounds are in the precise condition in which the Indians left them," says Mr. Bushnell. "They have never been opened. I cannot tell from the superficial examination I have given them whether they were burial mounds or simply dwelling mounds, but in either case the scientific opening of the constructions should result in very interesting developments."

Mine Workers Confer.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 31.—A number of representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and of different state organizations are here for a conference with both the organized and the unorganized miners of West Virginia and Virginia. A similar conference was held at Parkersburg last month, and on the report of the conferees at that time President Mitchell has called the meeting for today to devise plans by which the miners in these two states can be organized into state unions and made auxiliary to the United Mine Workers of America, the same as in other coal producing states.

Royal Squadron Sighted.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The British squadron escorting the royal yacht Ophir, bearing the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, was sighted at 1 o'clock a. m. today six miles off the Lizard. A wireless message had previously reported the Ophir fifty miles from the Scilly islands.

Fall River Workers Not to Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 31.—At a mass meeting of the mill operatives here two of the five unions—the Spinners' and Loom Fixers'—voted against a strike Monday next, and as a result of this vote there will not be a strike.

North Carolina Postoffice Robbed.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 31.—At Rutherfordton, N. C., professional safe crackers blew open the safe in the postoffice and secured over $500 in cash. There is no clew, though burglars' tools have been found.

TO SCARE THE TURK.

French Fleet Sent to Demand a Settlement.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—"The entire French Mediterranean squadron left yesterday afternoon," says the Toulon correspondent of the Figaro. "While one division put in at Salins-d'Hyeres another composed of three battleships and two cruisers under the command of Admiral Caillard proceeded to the Levant. Two thousand troops will be added to this force. Admiral Caillard's orders are that if complete satisfaction is not immediately given by the Ottoman government to all the claims of France he shall seize the custom house of the port nearest his squadron. It is believed his destination is the island of Mitylene or Salonika. The island commands the entrance to the Dardanelles and the gulf of Smyrna."

Several morning papers confirm the Figaro's Toulon advices. Rumors to the same effect were current in Paris late last evening, but the foreign office professed to know nothing about the matter.

Diamond Thief Caught.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—The mystery surrounding Annie Larint, a young woman who was caught by the police while trying to pawn a collection of diamonds in this city, has been solved. Morris Mendelbaum, a real estate broker, having residence at 122 East Eightieth street, New York, identified the woman as a servant who had been employed at his home and had disappeared with jewelry which she had abstracted from a safe in his house. Mr. Mendelbaum said the woman, whom he knew as Ida Snellor, was sent to his house on Sept. 10 by an employment agency. On Oct. 13 she disappeared, taking jewelry valued at $4,000 and $300 in cash. He positively identified the woman and the jewelry which was found on her. A diamond sunburst valued at $1,000, he says, is still missing.

Carnegie's Greatest Gift.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 31.—When Andrew Carnegie, who is now on his way to this country, reaches Pittsburg, plans and estimates will be submitted to him for a polytechnic institute that will call for an outlay of from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000 for construction and an endowment fund of $25,000,000. The ground will be donated by the city, but the rest of the expense will be borne by Mr. Carnegie. The new institute will train and educate apprentices and students in all trades. Its various buildings will probably cover sixty acres of ground. According to the plans there are to be a college, a school and day and night schools for apprentices.

The Next Papal Consistory.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Unofficial advices just received from Rome confirm the understanding that no papal consistory at Rome will be held before next February. In view of this fact Cardinal Martinelli, the papal ablegate, will leave this country just before the consistory, which, in connection with its other work, will confer the red hat upon him. While there may be some additions to the roll of cardinals, it is certain that none of these will be from the United States. The full roll of cardinals is fixed at seventy, and the pontifical desire is to have as many of them as possible near Rome.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—The thirty-second annual meeting of the general executive committee of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society has begun, and sessions will be held daily until the end of the week. Missionaries were present from India, China, Japan, Mexico and South America. Each of the eleven branches of the executive committee was represented. Mrs. Cyrus D. Foss of this city, president, opened the meeting with a brief address.

Ryan Knocked Out by Root.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 31.—"Australian" Jimmy Ryan was knocked out in the second round of a twenty round contest at Music hall by Jack Root of Chicago. The fight was for the middleweight championship of the west, and Root was a decided favorite. Ryan, who has but one eye, forced the fighting, but Root blocked him throughout and in the first round held him at his mercy and hammered him on the blind side continually.

SUBJUGATING SAMAR

General Smith Expects to End Campaign by Christmas.

INSURGENT LEADER HARD PRESSED.

The Colonel of the Ninth Praises Heroism of Those Who Fell at Balangiga—Governor Taft Ill, but Recovering.

MANILA, Oct. 31.—Advices received here from Catbalogan, capital of the island of Samar, say General Smith has reliable information regarding the whereabouts of the insurgent leader Lukban, who is being hard pressed. Small skirmishes take place daily. Catbalogan was under fire on Tuesday. General Smith expects to clear the island of insurgents by Christmas.

Colonel Robe of the Ninth infantry in his official report of the Balangiga disaster in regimental orders praises the magnificent heroism of the dead American soldiers. To the survivors he says:

"Your splendid, courageous, defensive and aggressive warfare at Balangiga has gone into history as a rare achievement of your regiment. I am proud of you. To you and to those who fought and fell the army is indebted for a superb demonstration of what the bravery of a few determined men may accomplish under most unequal and unfavorable circumstances."

Governor Taft has been sick in the hospital for ten days past. He has undergone a successful operation and is now recovering.

Serious Auto Accident.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—A Long Island train crashed into Henri Fournier's automobile at Westbury Crossing, smashing the machine and throwing out the occupants, Fournier, Arthur Lewis, H. J. Everall, A. G. Batchelder, H. P. Fullerton and a Mr. Guery, of whom Fullerton will probably die. Batchelder's condition is serious, but he will probably recover. He and Fullerton and Guery, who was badly shaken up, are in Nassau hospital, Mineola. The others received painful but not serious injuries. Reports as to responsibility for the accident are conflicting. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., had been in the automobile, but had left it a little while before the accident.

American Coal In France.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Consul General Skinner, at Marseilles, under date of Oct. 4, informs the state department of the ever increasing success of American coal in the French market. During the first half of 1900, says Mr. Skinner, 457,752 tons of English coal arrived at Marseilles as against 7,739 American. From January to July of this year, however, the figures stood 389,303 tons English and 97,622 tons American. The only disquieting element in this trade, Mr. Skinner says, is the necessity for employing foreign shipping for transportation of American coal.

Franchise Tax For Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31.—The Howard tax franchise bill has passed the Georgia house of representatives. It provides that the authorities of the state shall deduct the value of the plant or equipment of corporations from the total value of the stock and bonds of corporations and that the difference so arrived at shall be declared to represent the value of the corporation's franchise and that a tax in accordance with that valuation shall be levied on the franchise. The measure was transmitted to the senate.

To Prosecute Union Leaders.

CARDIFF, Oct. 31.—The Coal Owners' association, in consequence of the union's stopping work last Friday and Saturday and threatening to stop on other days in order to keep up the price of coal and therefore of wages under the sliding scale agreement, has decided to prosecute the individual leaders. Accordingly the federations of miners of south Wales and Great Britain, representing 140,000 miners who are affected, have called a meeting at which some counter action will be taken.

Governor Hunt's Work Praised.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Luis Munoz Rivera, the leader of the Federal party in Porto Rico, accompanied by Wenceslas Borda and his son, called on President Roosevelt. Mr. Rivera told the president that he and his party would do all in their power to support and co-operate with Governor Hunt. He also stated that Governor Hunt's administration was improving the situation in the island.

Fatal Railway Collision.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—A wreck occurred on the Baltimore and Ohio road east of Brady's tunnel, a short distance east of Washington, which resulted in the death of three men and the injury of ten more, two of whom may die. The wreck was caused by a head end collision between an empty freight engine and the westbound Wheeling accommodation train.

A High Priced Colt.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 31.—The three-year-old bay colt Tertimin, pacer, has been sold by the Flemings to W. P. Stein of West Virginia for $7,000, the highest price ever paid for an Indiana bred colt. He is by Jersey Wilkes, dam by Abdallah Woodford. He went in 2:21¼ as a two-year-old. This year he has paced a mile privately in 2:08 and a half in 1:00¾.

The Hospital's Needs.

In these days immediately preceeding election, many other subjects of interest to the community are almost lost sight of by the great majority of the people. Announcement was made sometime ago of the "harvest home" which is to be held at Muhlenberg Hospital, Thursday of next week. It will be an important event in the routine of that public institution and should attract the attention of every citizen of Plainfield.

That old time prejudice against a hospital has largely disappeared, particularly in intelligent communities like this one. There is little or no question now as to the usefulness of a hospital and the need of its general support by the public at large. Plainfield possesses an excellent institution in its way, but the time has come when it requires larger and better equipped quarters. It appears only a question of a few months before ground will be broken in the southern end of the city for one of the finest hospitals in New Jersey.

It requires funds to build such an establishment, but the board of governors has been quite successful in raising nearly all the money required. During all this agitation, however, it should not be forgotten that the old hospital is still there and must be kept going. It has no regular revenue and depends on the generosity of the people of city and borough to keep it going.

This "harvest home," which is to be held next Thursday, is really on the order of a donation party. An opportunity is given to the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield to meet the young women who are in charge at the hospital and learn something of their duties, requirements and needs. There is also the opportunity to contribute something toward the maintenance of the place. It need not necessarily be cash. There are other things needed just as much.

The public of city and borough is cordially invited to attend this "harvest home." If you have never been to one of those annual receptions, just stop in at the Nurses' Home next Thursday, and see for yourself what is being done and what need there is for assistance from you and every other good citizen. Do not let the excitement over the result of the voting Tuesday drive the needs of the hospital from your mind. There is no telling who will be the next to require the services of this same institution.

Franklin Murphy, the Republican candidate for governor, will be in Plainfield this evening and the people of Plainfield, or rather some of them, will have an opportunity to see what kind of a man he is. The Republicans are having their troubles over the fact that Reform Hall is not going to begin to hold the crowd which will want to attend the mass meeting. Special seats are reserved for the women.

The need of painting white the fence which separates the tracks at the North Avenue station has already been demonstrated.

Golf for young women has proved a very popular feature at the Park Golf Club course this season.

WASN'T A SURPRISE.

But The Party Given to Mr. And Mrs. Will F. Williams Was Very Delightful Nevertheless.

It was eight years ago today that Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, of Westervelt avenue, were married. The affair was intended as a surprise, but the celebrants were prepared to receive their guests.

The evening was passed in playing games. Prizes were offered and Miss Lottie Montross and Irving Niles won first honors. After the games a bountiful supper was served and at a late hour the guests departed, leaving their best wishes for many happy returns of the day.

It was just two weeks ago that Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smalley, of Somerset street, celebrated their eighth wedding anniversary and the same guests were present on that occasion. Mrs. Smalley, who is a sister of Mr. Williams, arranged last evening's celebration.

HARVEST SUPPER AT HOLY CROSS CHURCH.

Excellent Supper Served While Ladies' Orchestra Discoursed Sweet Music.

THEN THE ENTERTAINMENT.

AUTUMNAL COLOR SCHEME USED IN THE DECORATIONS.

"Wade Whipple" Was One of the Evening's Entertainers—Will Clear Goodly Sum—Those in Charge of the Affair.

With a view to providing pleasure for the parishioners and their friends and at the same time secure funds for church purposes, the women of Holy Cross church gave in the parish house, last evening, what they termed a "Harvest" supper. In addition to providing an excellent meal, an entertainment of exceptional merit was presented.

The large room of the parish house was decorated in a very tasty manner, the autumn color scheme being carried out to a nicety. About the walls were festoons of beautiful autumn leaves and in nook and corner were grinning jack-o-lanterns, made from pumpkins. Each table had a center piece of a pumpkin topped with seasonable vegetables and surrounded with pretty flowers. The decorations were very unique and greatly admired. They were the work of Miss Florence Stevens.

Supper was served from 6 until 9 o'clock, and during that time sweet music was discoursed by the Ladies' Orchestra of ten pieces. In the interim a programme was given consisting of original, humorous recitations by G. O. Stevens, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., better known by his nom de plume of "Wade Whipple," and shadowgraph pictures by Miss Florence Stevens. Both are artists of unusual proficiency in their respective lines and the several numbers they gave were longly encored.

While the entertainment was very pleasing, the meal furnished was doubly so and the tables were occupied by diners all the evening. The energetic corps of waitresses was kept busy, but every one was carefully provided for. As a result of the supper the women will realize a neat sum, which will be used to liquidate the parish indebtedness.

The entire affair was in charge of a committee consisting of Mrs. J. O. Stevens, assisted by Mrs. F. S. Brown, Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mrs. I. S. Murray, Mrs. W. Montgomery Downey and Miss Davis. Among the waitresses were Mrs. Moore, Mrs. William MacClymont, Mrs. W. A. Westphal, Mrs. A. E. Faber, the Misses Burr and many others.

RECEPTION AT GOLF CLUB.

GIVEN BY COMPETITORS FOR THE HOOLEY CUP.

Delightful Affair at the Park Golf Club House—Approach and Putting Contest Held.

In honor of the successful conclusion of the season's play for the Hooley cup, the young women of the Park Golf Club tendered a reception to their friends at the club house on the side of the mountain yesterday afternoon. A large crowd turned out for the occasion, which was a marked success. In addition to the social feature an approach and putting contest was held.

The cosy little club house was gay with its decorations of the autumnal season. The tea table was presided over by Mrs. George T. Rogers and Mrs. George D. Hallock, who were assisted by the young women of the club who have taken part in the competition for the Hooley cup. A number of the guests came prepared to play and spent part of the afternoon on the course. There was also an unusually large attendance of members. The course was in good condition and the day was a fine one for the sport.

Late in the afternoon, an approach and putting contest was started on the ninth hole. A large gallery witnessed the play. The event was won by Miss Adelaide G. Ball and William B. Faber with a score of ten strokes in their three trials. The second prize was awarded to Miss Frances Phillips and Charles Dupee who won the playoff in a tie with Miss Lydie Loizeaux and Miss Harriet Shreve and Miss Edith Clapp and J. O. McKelvey.

The other competitors were Miss Kossuth Faulks and Miss Mary Wells, Miss Edith Dyer and Charles B. Morse, Miss Florence Huntington and Miss Viola Conklin, Miss Josephine Lapsley and Miss Helen Brown, Rev. and Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich, Miss Alice Carroll and Miss Elsie Brokaw, Miss Helen Phillips and Charles E. Faber, Miss Helen Bushnell and Miss Mary Whiton, Miss Hall and Dr. Frank French.

FUNSTON TO RESIGN.

Man Who Captured Aguinaldo Will Quit the Army for Profitable Commercial Work.

Army officers returning from the Philippines report that Gen. Fred Funston expects to tender his resignation as brigadier general in the regular establishment and engage in private business. He is quoted as having said as soon as all active military operations in the islands cease he will give up his place in the army and will represent a large commercial concern which has made him a handsome offer for his services. His resignation is expected to be forthcoming before October. The report that the Kansan would resign was thoroughly discussed by officers at the war department, and while no one seemed to have any direct information concerning his intentions the statement that he would leave the army was generally accepted as true. People in Washington who know Funston say that he is not by nature adapted to the routine of a military part in times of peace and that his spirit of daring and enterprise will lead him into other fields.

BRIG. GEN. FRED FUNSTON.
(Will Leave the Army Soon to Engage in Commercial Work.)

Officers who have returned within the past few days said he did not expect the promotion that resulted from his capture of Aguinaldo and that when he was shown the cablegram from the war department announcing his appointment as a brigadier general he expressed astonishment that his exploit should have led the president to accord him such recognition. At that time, it is said, he was making arrangements to get out of the army, his intention then being to accept a proposition of a large business concern to represent it in the Philippines. The promotion for the time being, of course, diverted his attention from such plans. The offer is said to have been renewed since, and as it would bring him a much larger salary than that of brigadier it is understood he has almost decided to accept it.

BRAVE CAVALRY HORSE.

Its Memory Has Just Been Perpetuated by the Erection of a Monument in Ohio.

Survivors of the Twelfth Ohio cavalry have unveiled a monument erected over the grave of "Frank," a veteran war horse connected with that regiment during the rebellion.

Frank was a thoroughbred Kentucky colt, five years old when he entered the service 36 years ago. Fleet of foot, strong of limb, and with the splendid endurance of the true thoroughbred, he soon earned for his rider, Abe Conger, of company A, the distinction of being frequently detailed for special service. Several extraordinary marches of over 80 miles a day are placed to his credit, but the event which most endeared him to the hearts of the troop was his being a participant in the capture of Jefferson Davis.

IN HONOR OF FRANK.
(Monument Erected in Memory of Famous Ohio War Horse.)

During the term of his service he acquired a wonderful veneration for his country's flag and many are the pathetic stories told in this connection. It is the special pride of Capt. Harter to relate that one day when a flag was being raised at a schoolhouse near the field in which Frank was grazing he jumped the fence as soon as he saw it and stood beneath its waving folds until it was removed at night.

The monument, which is on Capt. Harter's farm at Upper Sandusky, is a single bowlder, extremely hard and red and gray in color, with sharply cut facets which sparkle and glisten in the sunlight as it beams upon the spot which will long be venerated in honor of one of man's best friends and an influential faetor in the making of history.

A joiner and builder of Karoma, Oklahoma, who was employed in building a schoolhouse at that place, related the following narrative to his fellow workmen one day during noon hour, while they were eating dinner: "Before I came to Oklahoma, I used to live in Chicago. I worked at the bricklayer trade and was troubled with dyspepsia a great deal. My head ached terribly at times, and I durst not eat raw vegetables of any kind. I tried all kinds of medicine with no effect. My case grew rapidly worse; I [illegible] to quit work. One day an old friend of mine visited me and asked me what kind of medicine I was taking. I named a whole list of medicines that had been prescribed for me, all having little or no effect. 'John,' said he, 'try Ripans Tabules. You can get them at the corner drug store.' I sent my little boy to the store and told him to get me some. He soon came back with them and I commenced to use them. Before I had used half of the box, I began to get better, and when I had used it all, I was well and went to work again. Since then I have always kept them in the house. And if you will come to my house," he said, turning to a man who had complained of headache, "I will give you a medicine that you will have faith in."

SEPARATE WAISTS.

Growing Tendency to Have Them Match the Skirt.

Separate waists are still being worn, but there is a marked tendency to have them harmonize with the skirt. Thus made to go with a skirt of black velvet a blouse of yellow lace will be run through by tiny black velvet ribbons. Stunning silk waists are made of gray peau de soie, with yellowish chiffon fronts and large scalloped collars of flame colored panne.

The all over lace waist, whether black or white, is undoubtedly the most useful for theater or semidress wear. For dressy wear, of course, nothing can take the place of a gown.

Many economically bent women make at home skirts of white cloth or white crepe de chine and velling, and to wear with these they have a couple of simple white waists made of pretty materials. Silk mousseline waists trimmed with beautiful embroideries are much worn with these white skirts. The mousseline is made up over soft white louisine silk or liberty satin. Liberty silks and chiffons, accordion plaited and trimmed with handsome lace collars, make smart waists also.

A tailor made suit of gray corduroy is here represented. The jacket, which reaches to the waist line, is double breasted and fastens with gold buttons. The collar, shoulder capes and facings of the coat are of white silk braided. The underblouse is of white crepe de chine. The skirt is plain, with a flaring lower edge and strapped seams.

The hat is of pearl gray velvet trimmed with black spotted taffeta.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR HOUSE WEAR.

Challie a Useful Material—Empire and Watteau Styles.

Pretty and useful house gowns can be made of challie in the dark blue or red figurings. These do not show soil and can be used for morning wear, while the more delicate pompadour figurings are very dainty for evenings or afternoons.

Tea gowns of crepe de chine made empire fashion, with boleros or fichus of lace are pretty additions to any woman's wardrobe. They are easy to make at home and are almost universally becoming.

Watteau styles should never be attempted by those who are not slender. Especially is this true of the watteau back. The plait, even on the most girlish figure, should taper almost to nothing between the shoulders. Otherwise it gives a round shouldered effect.

Negligees of fine brussels net are made over taffeta slips. They are banded by wide lace beadings through which velvet ribbons are run. Petticoats of black or colored china silk striped by means of innumerable white valenciennes insertions are also very dainty.

The smart dressing jacket in the illustration is made of old rose flannel with a broad collar and cuffs of quilted black satin edged with bands of the rose flannel. It is secured at the throat and waist line with cords and tassels of old rose silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

By Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Rather quaint," said Utterson.

"It is, as you say, rather quaint," returned Guest.

"I wouldn't speak of this note, you know," said the master.

"No, sir," said the clerk. "I understand."

But no sooner was Mr. Utterson alone that night, than he locked the note into his safe, where it reposed from that time forward. "What!" he thought, "Henry Jekyll forge for a murderer!" And his blood ran cold in his veins.

CHAPTER VI.

Time ran on; thousands of pounds were offered in reward, for the death of Sir Danvers was resented as a public injury; but Mr. Hyde had disappeared out of the ken of the police as though he had never existed. Much of his past was unearthed, indeed, and all disreputable; tales came out of the man's cruelty, at once so callous and violent, of his vile life, of his strange associates, of the hatred that seemed to have surrounded his career; but of his present whereabouts, not a whisper. From the time he had left the house in Soho on the morning of the murder, he was simply blotted out, and gradually, as time grew on, Mr. Utterson began to recover from the hotness of his alarm, and to grow more at quiet with himself. The death of Sir Danvers was, to his way of thinking, more than paid for by the disappearance of Mr. Hyde. Now that that evil influence had been withdrawn, a new life began for Doctor Jekyll. He came out of his seclusion, renewed relations with his friends, became once more their familiar guest and entertainer; and while he had always been known for charities, he was now no less distinguished for religion. He was busy, he was much in the open air, he did good; his face seemed to open and brighten, as if with an inward consciousness of service; and for more than two months the doctor was at peace.

On the 8th of January, Utterson had dined at the doctor's with a small party; Lanyon had been there; and the face of the host had looked from one to the other as in the old days when the trio were inseparable friends. On the 12th, and again on the 14th, the door was shut against the lawyer. "The doctor was confined to the house," Poole said, "and saw no one." On the 15th, he tried again, and was again refused; and having now been used for the last two months to see his friend almost daily, he found this return of solitude to weigh upon his spirits. The fifth night, he had in Guest to dine with him; and the sixth he betook himself to Dr. Lanyon's.

There, at least, he was not denied admittance; but when he came in, he was shocked at the change that had taken place in the doctor's appearance. He had his death warrant written legibly upon his face. The rosy man had grown pale; his flesh had fallen away; he was visibly balder and older; and yet it was not so much these tokens of swift physical decay that arrested the lawyer's notice, as a look in the eye and quality of manner that seemed to testify to some deep-seated terror of the mind. It was unlikely that the doctor should fear death; and yet that was what Utterson was tempted to suspect. "Yes," he thought, "he is a doctor, he must know his own state and that his days are counted; and the knowledge is more than he can bear." And yet when Utterson remarked on his ill-looks, it was with an air of great firmness that Lanyon declared himself a doomed man.

"I have had a shock," he said, "and I shall never recover. It is a question of weeks. Well, life has been pleasant; I liked it; yes, sir, I used to like it. I sometimes think, if we knew all, we should be more glad to get away."

"Jekyll is ill, too," observed Utterson. "Have you seen him?"

But Lanyon's face changed, and he held up a trembling hand. "I wish to see or hear no more of Doctor Jekyll," he said in a low, unsteady voice. "I am quite done with that person; and I beg that you will spare me any allusion to one whom I regard as dead."

"Tut! tut!" said Mr. Utterson; and then after considerable pause, "Can't I do anything?" he inquired. "We are three very old friends, Lanyon; we shall not live to make others."

"Nothing can be done," returned Lanyon; "ask himself."

"He will not see me," said the lawyer.

"I am not surprised at that," was the reply. "Some day, Utterson, after I am dead, you may, perhaps, come to learn the right and wrong of this. I can not tell you. And in the meantime, if you can sit and talk with me of other things, for God's sake, stay and do so; but if you can not keep clear of this accursed topic, then, in God's name, go, for I can not bear it."

As soon as he got home, Utterson sat down and wrote to Jekyll, complaining of his exclusion from the house, and asking the cause of this unhappy break with Lanyon; and the next day brought him a long answer, often very pathetically worded, and sometimes darkly mysterious in drift. The quarrel with Lanyon was incurable. "I do not blame our old friend," Jekyll wrote, "but I share his view that we must never meet. I mean from henceforth to lead a life of extreme seclusion; you must not be surprised, nor must you doubt my friendship, if my door is often shut even to you. You must suffer me to go my own dark way. I have brought on myself a punishment and a danger that I can not name. If I am the chief of sinners, I am the chief of sufferers also. I could not think that this earth contained a place for sufferings and terrors so unmanning; and you can do but one thing, Utterson, to lighten this destiny, and that is to respect my silence." Utterson was amazed; the dark influence of Hades had been withdrawn, the doctor had returned to his old tasks and amities; a week ago the prospect had smiled with every promise of a cheerful and an honored age, and now in a moment, a friendship, and peace of mind had disappeared. Within a week Doctor Lanyon sickened and within something less than a fortnight he was dead. The night after the funeral, at which he had been sadly affected, Utterson locked the door of his business room, and sitting there by the light of a melancholy candle, drew out and set before him an envelope addressed by the hand and sealed with the seal of his dead friend. "PRIVATE: for the hand of J. G. UTTERSON ALONE, and in case of his predecease to be destroyed unread," so it was empatically superscribed; and the lawyer dreaded to behold the contents. "I have buried one friend today," he thought; "what if this should cost me another?" And then he condemned the fear as a disloyalty, and broke the seal. Within there was another inclosure, likewise sealed, and marked upon the cover as "not to be opened till the death or disappearance of Dr. Henry Jekyll." Utterson could not trust his eyes. Yes, it was disappearance; here again, as in the mad will, which he had long ago restored to its author, here again were the idea of a disappearance and the name of Henry Jekyll bracketed. But in the will, that idea had sprung from the sinister suggestion of the man Hyde; it was set there with a purpose all too plain and horrible. Written by the hand of Lanyon, what should it mean? A great curiosity came on the trustee, to disregard the prohibition and dive at once to the bottom of these mysteries; but professional honor and faith to his dead friend were stringent obligations; and the packet slept in the inmost corner of his private safe.

It is one thing to mortify curiosity, another to conquer it; and it may be doubted if, from that day forth, Utterson desired the society of his surviving friend with the same eagerness. He thought of him kindly; but his thoughts were disquieted and fearful. He went to call indeed; but he was perhaps relieved to be denied admittance; perhaps, in his heart, he desired to speak with Poole upon the door-step, and surrounded by the air and sounds of the open city, rather than to be admitted into that house of voluntary bondage, and to sit and speak with its inscrutable recluse. Poole had, indeed, no very pleasant news to communicate. The doctor, it appeared, now more than ever confined himself to the cabinet over the laboratory, where he would sometimes even sleep; he was out of spirits, he had grown very silent, he did not read; it seemed as if he had something on his mind. Utterson became so used to the unvarying character of these reports, that he fell off little by little in the frequency of his visits.

CHAPTER VII.

It chanced on Sunday, when Mr. Utterson was on his usual walk with Mr. Enfield, that their way lay once again through the by-street. When they came in front of the door both stopped to gaze on it.

"Well," said Enfield, "we shall never see more of Mr. Hyde."

"Did I ever tell you," said Mr. Utterson, "that I once saw him, and shared your feelings of repulsion?"

"It was impossible to do the one without the other," returned Enfield. "And, by the way, what an ass you must have thought me, not to know that this was a back way to Doctor Jekyll's! It was partly your own fault that I found it out even when I did."

"So you found it out, did you?" said Utterson. "But if that be so, we may step into the court and take a look at the windows To tell you the truth, I am uneasy about poor Jekyll; and even outside, I feel as if the presence of a friend might do him good."

The court was very cool and a little damp, and full of premature twilight, although the sky, high up overhead, was still bright with sunset. The middle of one of the three windows was half-way open, and sitting close beside it, taking the air with an infinite sadness of mien, like some disconsolate prisoner, Utterson saw Doctor Jekyll.

"What! Jekyll!" he cried. "I trust you are better."

"I am very low, Utterson," replied the doctor, drearily, "very low. It will not last long, thank God."

GENEVA CENTURY TREE.

Story of How It Grew from the Walking-Stick of a Traveler — Has Shaded Many Congregations.

On Maple Hill, one mile west of the village of Geneva, stands one of the largest trees in this state. It is 120 feet high, 115 feet in diameter, measured through the branches, and the diameter of the trunk is eight feet. Maple Hill is the home of Charles Bean. It is the highest ridge in the vicinity of Geneva and the tree can be seen for many miles from nearly every point of the compass. For many years the turnpike (now Hamilton street), on which the tree stands, was an Indian trail. The trail became a state road in 1794.

Somewhere about 100 years ago, says the Buffalo Express, a prospector named Ephraim Lee passed through the present site of Geneva, on a trip over the old Albany and Buffalo turnpike. On his journey around the foot of Seneca lake he cut a stick to help himself along. At the summit of Maple hill he stuck his cane in the rich earth and, lying down, went to sleep. It was late when he awoke, and he resumed his tramp, forgetting the freshly cut, green stick, which soon rooted and sprouted and grew to be the "monarch of the forest." Lee's story preserved the tree, when the forest was cleared all about it, and in 1843 the trunk was driven full of spikes, so that an unsentimental road master could not cut it down! It is believed that the iron is the cause of its wonderful, thrifty old age. When Gen. La Fayette visited Geneva he was met by a cavalcade which waited under this tree for the distinguished visitor, and on subsequent occasions it has shaded many a congregation of religious worshipers.

NO TIPS FOR CHIROPODISTS.

A Social Problem That One Woman Has Not as Yet Succeeded in Solving.

She had just come from the "parlors," as their manager called the place, and had availed herself of the treatment of one of the staff. She was walking firmly, planting her feet on the ground as if she had never known what it was to tread gingerly along, says the New York Sun.

"I suppose he's as much entitled to a tip as the girl that fixes my nails," she said to her companion, "but I cannot for the life of me bring myself to tip a chiropodist. I give the girl her quarter after she has fixed my nails just as regularly as I pay 50 cents at the desk. But I have never yet tipped the chiropodist, and it was only a few months ago that I realized he expected it.

"I thought he was very solicitous after he was through, asking how I felt and saying good-by as I left his room; but I never suspected that he wanted a fee, as I had never heard of tipping chiropodists. Afterward I asked somebody, who told me that these men always expect to be tipped.

"I could never decide on how much to give them, even if I wanted to. It costs only 25 cents for a treatment, and I couldn't give him a tip of the same size. On the other hand, I could not offer one of those men ten cents. I think I'll wait and let the chiropodist's tips become a little bit better settled before I begin."

LESSONS BY PHONOGRAPH.

A New Device in Teaching Correct Pronunciation in Foreign Tongues.

Teaching modern languages by means of the phonograph is a new device. It is employed by some of the many correspondence schools that have sprung up all over the country in the last year or two.

At the headquarters of the school the teacher speaks the lesson into the funnel of the machine. These records are then mailed to the student, who may live a thousand miles away, together with a phonograph and several blank records.

In his own home the student sets the phonograph going and listens while it repeats as pure German, Italian or French as the teacher knows how to speak. Having learned the lesson he repeats it to the talking machine and sends the record back to the school, where the teacher criticises it for his benefit.

Printed lessons are sent out also, but from the phonograph it is asserted the pupil learns correct pronunciation as he never could from books, and almost as well as he would from the instructor at first hand.

Failings of an Emperor.

His Imperial Japanese Majesty Mutsu Hito, the one hundred and twenty-third mikado of the empire, always wears a simple uniform, and never goes about alone. When the mikado had his first photograph taken he exclaimed that if he was as ugly as it represented him to be he would never sit for his portrait again. At the emperor's request the Japanese legations in other countries refused to issue his picture. In truth, the mikado is a plain man, somew

The Union Field Club would like to arrange football games with teams averaging eighty and ninety pounds. All communications should be addressed to Henry Stephany, 108 Summit avenue.

The Union Field Club would like to play a game of football with St. Mary's team or the Netherwood Terrors. The team also wants two games for Election Day and one game for the following Thursday.

The game which was to have been played between the football teams of MacKenzie Academy, of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and the Leal's School, of this city, on the Hope Common gridiron yesterday afternoon was cancelled. The New Yorkers wired that they were unable to come to Plainfield.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

In the recent fall track and field sports held at Rutgers College two former Plainfield High School boys figured to advantage. Fred Mason was third in the high jump and Edson Davis came out third in the pole vault and second in the 220 yards dash.

The defendants were represented by Walter L. Hetfield. The plaintiff brought suit to recover $81, the balance he claimed as due him for wages. After listening to the argument on both sides, a jury of twelve men brought in a verdict of no cause for action.

The jury was composed of the following persons: Samuel Boss, M. J. Cashin, William Feiring, William Tobin, W. H. Clum, Marcus Beekman, Jeremiah Cash, E. S. Brokaw, U. B. Crane, A. H. Stites, C. Hartfelder and A. Sargeant. The jury was out a half hour when the verdict was returned.

Planning Campaign.

McMurtry, the candidate for sheriff, will visit the borough, and this evening a meeting will be held at the headquarters to which all are invited.

DAVID CURTIS INDICTED.

BUT THE ORIGINAL CHARGE WAS SOMEWHAT MODIFIED.

Other Indictments of Interest to Plainfield—Dr. Tubbs Was Fully Exonerated in Curtis Case.

Considerable interest has been manifested locally in the findings of the Union County Grand Jury, which handed in yesterday a batch of forty seven indictments, one of which was against a Plainfielder. The latter is David L. Curtis who was held on a serious charge preferred by Miss Lillian B. Thorn. The indictment was modified somewhat from the original charge and the penalty will not be near as great. The most Curtis can receive is a fine of $50 or six months imprisonment at hard labor, or both. He will probably be arraigned Saturday.

Dr. W. R. Tubbs, the Westfield physician whose name was connected with the affair and brought before the Grand Jury, was honorably discharged. The charges against him were thoroughly investigated and proved to be without foundation. Dr. Tubbs declared his innocense from the start, and his complete vindication was very gratifying to him and his friends.

A number of other indictments of interest to Plainfielders were those of James Simpson and Sarah Speirs, the pair who robbed the home of W. A. W. Burnett, of Sandford avenue, of $1,700 worth of furs and clothing, and Harry Mettler and Charles VanShank, alias "Long Island Blackey," who, with Charles Grether, now awaiting trial for murder in Pennsylvania, assaulted and robbed Mrs. Mary Demko, of Dunellen avenue. VanShank is awaiting the action of the Hunterdon county Grand Jury, and on completing the term given by the court will have to answer to yesterday's indictment.

THE CITY SITUATION AND THE CANDIDATES.

711, Royal Arcanum; Unity Lodge, No 102, Knights of Pythias; Exempt Firemen's Association and All Souls church.

Persons who have watched Mr. Buckle's career in the Council know best how he has served the city. At present he is chairman of the police committee and is a member also of the fire and buildings and license committees.

Another of the Republican candidates for Councilman-at-large, Clarence Logan Murphy, eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. T. Logan Murphy, was born in Tamaqua, Pa., June 3, 1868. Mr. Murphy, who is now a counsellor-at-law, was educated in the public schools, being graduated from the North Plainfield High School in 1884. In the fall of the same year he accepted a position in the wholesale dry goods commission business, and six years later he resigned his position to enter the law office of John H. VanWinkle, in this city.

In February, 1895, he was admitted to the bar, and immediately entered upon the practice of law. In 1897 he formed a partnership with Francis J. Blatz under the firm name of Murphy & Blatz. Mr. Murphy received his degree as counsellor-at-law in 1898. He is known as a lawyer of ability and he has secured a lucrative practice. He has a large circle of acquaintances. In 1889, Mr. Murphy, who is an expert chess player, won the championship of New Jersey. He is a Republican and has always done what he could for the success of his party.

Of the Republican candidates for councilman-at-large, Edward E. Pray, of Bahway road, is probably the least known. Mr. Pray is a native of Andover, Mass., where he was born in 1848. He received his early education there and was a member of the Sunday-school class of Harriet Beecher Stowe. When a young man he left school to go to California and remained there until 1875, when he came to New York. He then founded the banking and brokerage house of Pray, Tufts & Co., at what was then 16 Broad street, New York.

In 1877, Mr. Pray went to Colorado where he was one of the pioneers on what was then the Ute reservation. With others, he organized Garfield county and personally located and named the town of Glenwood Springs and was a pioneer there in the location of the coal lands and opening up the Newcastle belt. In 1888, at the outbreak of the Ute War, he was commissioned by Governor Adams as chief of scouts in the field.

Mr. Pray returned to New York in 1891 and became interested in the production of antiseptics from coal tar, his principal business resulting from that in the Amilin Chemical Company, of New York. He has considerable interests in real estate and trolley franchise properties at Niagara Falls. He has lived in Plainfield nearly six years. He has never held any political office and has never taken an active part in politics although always a staunch Republican.

James P. Homan, whom the Democrats have selected as one of their candidates for councilman-at-large, is a thorough business man and, although he is in no sense a politician, he has figured as a successful political candidate.

Mr. Homan was born in Somerville in 1856. He learned his trade, as a practical carriage and wagon-maker, in Bound Brook and Branchville, finishing his apprenticeship in this city. Later he removed to New Market and there conducted a business for a short time. In 1876, Mr. Homan purchased the carriage business of John A. Brown, on Somerset street, and has met with much success since then.

In December, 1897, he was elected on the Citizens' ticket as a councilman-at-large, and was the only man on that ticket who was successful. While in the Council he was a member of the police and license committees and was chairman of the auditing committee. Two years later he ran again for the same office, but was defeated. Mr. Homan has been a director of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association since 1892. In National politics he is a Democrat, but in local affairs he says he votes "for the best man regardless of politics."

Isaac N. Field, who has been named as a candidate for councilman at large, is a retired business man. He is a descendent of the Field family, which settled near Bound Brook in 1685.

Mr. Field was born near Bound Brook. He engaged in the merchantile business in St. Louis and remained there twelve years. Since then he has resided in Brooklyn, Bound Brook and New York, finally settling in this city. While in the west he was a member of the National Guard of Missouri. On removing to New York he became identified with the Seventh Regiment, National Guard of New York, and is now a veteran member of that organization.

He is esteemed by all who know him.

Albert H. Atterbury, one of the trio of Democratic candidates for councilman at large, was born in Trenton forty-one years ago, and comes from an old New Jersey family, his great grandfather being Elisha Boudinot.

He was graduated from Yale in 1882 and from the Columbia Law School two years later. Since then he has been active in the practice of his profession. Mr. Atterbury is a convert to Democracy, casting his first Democratic vote for Grover Cleveland in 1884.

His political belief is best summed up in his own words: "In National affairs, I am a firm believer in free trade, sound money, civil service reform, anti-imperialism and a reduction in the enormous and increasing waste of public money. In State affairs I favor economy of expenditure, the restriction of taxation within as narrow limits as possible, biennial sessions of the legislature. I am utterly opposed to all schemes for multiplying offices and for the public ownership of so-called "public utilities."

FELLOW WORKERS WEDDED.

A PRETTY HOME CEREMONY TOOK PLACE LAST EVENING.

Miss Viola Huff and Julius G. Williams United in Marriage at Bride's Home.

The marriage of Miss Viola Huff, daughter of Mrs. Helen Huff, of 830 West Front street, to Julius G. Williams, of 1035 West Front street, took place last evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother in the presence of a number of relatives from Somerville, New York, Millington and this city. It was a pretty home affair and there were many features that added to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The decorations consisted of palms, ferns and holly. In a bow window in the parlor there was a beautiful arch of holly, and it was beneath this arch that the happy couple stood while they were made one. The couple was unattended and they entered the parlor at the appointed hour, while Miss Eva Tunison, a cousin of the bride, of Somerville, rendered the wedding march. They were met by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who performed the ceremony according to the ritual of the Reformed church. The bride wore a becoming traveling gown of a West Point blue shade and carried bride roses.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Williams received a shower of congratulations from the guests, who wished them a long life and a happy one. After congratulations supper was served and all present joined in having a good social time. The couple did not go away on a wedding trip, but instead went to housekeeping at 173 North avenue, where a suite of rooms had been completely furnished and awaited them.

Both the bride and groom are members of Trinity Reformed church, the Christian Endeavor Society, the Sunday-school, and are very active in Christian work. The groom is a valued employe of Love Bros., the West Front street grocers.

They were handsomely remembered in the way of gifts. They received furniture, china, cut-glass, lamps, bric-a-brac, and many other articles of use and beauty. A very substantial present was received from the groom's employers in the form of a check.

Only a short time ago many friends of the couple, including several from the store of Woodhull & Martin, where the bride was employed for some time, gave her a shower party. At that time the list of presents included a great many things that have been used to furnish the new home.
